Hearing on Marijuana

Have a Joint, Legislators Told

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Legalization of marijuana was called for Monday at the State Capitol, during which youths called on lawmakers to "turn on" with pot to understand the views of the young.

"What I would like to do is lock the doors and give everybody a joint," said Douglas Howell, who works in a community cooperative store in the student area of Madison.

"If you've never experienced marijuana, I can see no validity in your debating it," he told the State Affairs Committee of the Legislature.

The committee was considering bills dealing with the dangerous drugs law of Wisconsin, which currently covers marijuana use despite the criticism of users and researchers that it is not a narcotic.

One of the bills, authored by Assemblyman Lloyd Barbee, D-Milwaukee, would remove all legal sanctions from use of the weed in Wisconsin.

Barbee said his bill would take a "realistic" approach to the widespread use of marijuana, which, he said, should be handled through educational means.

A State Affairs Committee-authored bill would remove the criminal penalties for marijuana possession and use, and make those offenses misdemeanors. It also would establish a state council to oversee potential drug abuse problems in the state.

A third bill considered, also authored by the committee, would establish a drug education and drug abuse program in Wisconsin.

Subject of the greatest amount of attention, however, was Barbee's bill to legalize marijuana.

Refuting the claim that non-users can't knowledgeably discuss the problems of marijuana use was Dr. Joseph Benforado, a University of Wisconsin pharmacologist who heads the state advisory committee on drug abuse.

"It's just impossible to say that you can't know something about a drug unless you have tried it," he said.

Wrong Contention
The contention that marijuana is not "bad" because it is not physically addictive is a fallacy, he said, because the drug cocaine is not addictive either, but is potentially physically harmful to users.

He urged that the committee lessen the criminal penalties on marijuana use, but not legalize it, stating that insufficient research has been done on its effects.

Using many of the same arguments, Dennis Sandage, a staff aide to unannounced gubernatorial candidate David Carley, called for a cessation of all legal action involving marijuana use until adequate research on its effects can be obtained.

Arguing for the legalization were a number of admitted users, including Howell and Robin Cohn of Milwaukee.

"Not Addictive"
"I smoke marijuana and I don't think that anybody has a right to tell me not to do it," said Cohn. "It's not addictive. I could smoke it every day for four months and then not smoke it for a year."

Cohn said he was arrested once for marijuana possession, and that he felt like many other arrested users. Being penalized for violating what you believe is improper, he said, and unneeded laws leads to disrespect of law in general.

No marijuana user has to commit crimes to support his practice because there is no physical addiction, Cohn told the committee.

Purported connections between marijuana use and "hard drug" use are fictional, said Edward Elson, a Madison attorney and store owner. "Hard drug" users actually start with cigarettes and beer, he said.

Further Delay?

Soviet Reply Will be 'Soon'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Kremlin has sent word that it will reply "soon" to President Nixon's bid to begin U.S. Soviet talks on curbing the nuclear arms race.

This message from Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to Secretary of State William P. Rogers Monday night fell short of U.S. hopes. It meant indefinite further delay on the already much delayed disarmament parley the two superpowers agreed long ago to hold.

Gromyko did not specify what he meant by "soon." State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey commented: "We were satisfied that what was said was meant, and we accepted it."

Rogers and Gromyko held a three-hour dine-and-talk session at Rogers' hotel suite. The Middle East, the United Nations, Germany Berlin and the treaty to outlaw the spread of nuclear weapons—but not Vietnam or Red China — also were discussed.

"Good Dinner"
Neither Gromyko, who said "we had a very good dinner," nor the Americans claimed progress on these issues. U.S. sources did say the discussion provided a clearer understanding of the opposing views on the Middle East and the two sides agreed to continue the talks between Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin on this crisis.

Rogers apparently found the going slow in his first private meeting with his Soviet counterpart since Nixon took office, avowing "negotiation rather than confrontation" with the Communist camp. Gromyko hosts a follow-up meeting Friday night.

On SALT — the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks which Nixon had publicly hoped to get under way by mid-August in Vienna or Geneva—Gromyko told reporters only that "the time will come" for a Soviet statement.

McCloskey reported Gromyko told Rogers: "We will give you a reply on a time and place for preliminary talks soon."

U.S. officials said the term preliminary talks meant discussion of the mechanics—methods of conducting the talks, agenda, use of interpreters, place, time and similar details.

It has been three years, according to the U.S. version, since the United States first proposed the talks. Neither Washington nor Moscow has backed down from its professed desire to hold discussions aimed at restraining their spiraling atomic arms rivalry.

U.S. officials doubt that Gromyko's "soon" means an answer before Rogers leaves the U.N. General Assembly session early in October. But they still expect Moscow's reply will come in a matter of weeks rather than months.

$662 Million Sought Over 5-Year Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today he will ask for $662 million in the next five years to develop a supersonic transport aircraft.

The United States must go ahead with the plane—called the SST— "to maintain its leadership" in the world aircraft industry. The United States must go ahead with the plane—called the SST— "to maintain its leadership" in the world aircraft industry, Nixon said.

"I want the United States to continue to lead the world in air transport," he declared at a White House briefing. "The SST is going to be built."

Nixon noted his decision on the 1,800-mile-an-hour, 300-passenger airliner came after a "spirited debate within the administration."

Opponents of the project have argued it is impractical, too expensive and too noisy.

Nixon asked $96 million this year in new funds from Congress in addition to $99 million in unused carryover appropriations for the SST program.

This would rise to $314 million in fiscal 1971, then progressively fall to $189 million in fiscal 1972, $48 million in fiscal 1973 and $15 million in fiscal 1974.

Must Limit Noise

To meet a major objection from some opponents, Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe said the SST would not be allowed to fly over population areas until the noise factor comes within acceptable limits.

Volpe said government investment in the SST would total $994 million of the approximately $1.4 billion needed to build two prototype aircraft by 1972.

The first test flights are scheduled for late 1972, with commercial use expected by 1978.

The $195 million in SST funds this fiscal year will allow construction to begin. The government approved this spring final design plans for the giant plane. James M. Beggs, undersecretary of transportation, said the government's investment in the SST is still expected to be approximately $1.2 billion, despite Volpe's estimate of $994 million. The discrepancy comes from various shifts in funding and stretch-outs, he said.

Washington Officials

Nixon announced his decision in a White House conference room crowded with newsmen. Flanking him were members of the Washington, congressional delegation, the state's governor, Dan Evans, and officials of the Department of Transportation.

The plane will be built in Washington by the Boeing Corp. Volpe fielded questions after the President's general statement.

In addition to the need for continued U.S. leadership in world aviation, Nixon gave a further reason for going ahead with the SST—the plane "would

Quorum Calls Not Accurate

House 'Deliberately' Made Errors

WASHINGTON (AP) — There might have been a pattern of minor but deliberate errors in recording the presence of House members last year, the House Ethics Committee chairman said today.

But in reporting this, Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., said a study by this panel showed no indication this type error occurred in recording actual votes, only quorum calls.

"Improved voting methods are unquestionably indicated,"

Price said in calling for a modernized, error-proof system in the House.

Price's committee, at the request of Speaker John W. McCormack, investigated irregularities in recording House roll-calls last fall.

In May the committee said it found no evidence of complicity in a series of rollcall errors disclosed last September, but called for a modernized voting system to minimize chances of human error.

Price, in a statement prepared for a House Administration subcommittee, said today all 428 rollcalls in the second session of the 90th Congress—233 votes and 195 quorum calls—were examined.

Price said the study showed there may have been a minor pattern of purposeful error in quorum calls but no indication whatever of such mistakes in actual votes.

He said steps already have been taken to insure the complete removal of the possibility of purposeful errors.

Price did not elaborate on what was meant by "purposeful errors," a phrase used in the statement put out by his subcommittee.

Neither did he list the steps taken, but the House has assigned two clerks, instead of just one, to record members' responses in the House chamber.

And the subcommittee is studying plans for electrical and

'Expert Witness'

Judge Sees Nude Dance... Again

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The judge was Earl Warren Jr., the courtroom—once again—was a bar.

And there, stepping right out of the middle of a movie screen to the stirring "William Tell Overture" was Miss Carol Doda, pioneer of the topless entertainment.

Without her top, naturally. Her role was that of "expert witness," sort of, in Sacramento's case of the bottomless dancers.

Miss Doda was summoned from her San Francisco nightclub Monday by the defense in the case in which Sheila Brendenson and Suzanne Haines are charged with lewd and dissolute conduct and indecent exposure for dancing nude at the Pink Pussy Kat beer bar in Sacramento.

make clear their entire strategy in having Miss Doda put on her act for Judge Warren's Municipal Court jury, but they talked of "community standards." The question of whether so-called "bottomless" dancing goes beyond commonly accepted community standards is an issue in the case.

Miss Doda's 35-minute act consisted of her dancing and singing without a top, with two male companions. As they performed, a movie showing her nude was projected behind them on a screen which they could pass through.

Miss Doda said the movie was "like a satire of pornography." Asked why she has expanded her former act, she told newsmen it's like "mayors want to become governors, senators want to become presidents."

Mitchell Manipulated Judiciary Appointment

Attorney General Was Invisible Force

Blocking Liberal Goodell From Committee

BY ROBERT EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The long arm of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell strong man of President Nixon's Cabinet, reached into an inner sanctum of the U.S. Senate last week to block a liberal Republican — Sen. Charles Goodell of New York — from being named to the Judiciary Committee.

Evans Novak

Working secretly behind the scenes, Mitchell persuaded Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan to assert his seniority over Goodell and claim the Judiciary Committee seat himself. This saved the Nixon administration the embarrassment of a Republican vote on the Judiciary Committee against confirmation of Judge Clement Haynsworth, the conservative South Carolinian named to the Supreme Court by President Nixon.

This intrusion by the steely Attorney General into the Senate's most intimate internal affairs — without recent precedent — shows again the pervasiveness of his influence in Mr. Nixon's Washington. It is a piece with his secret effort this summer persuading House Republican leaders not to oppose a Southern sponsored anti-school integration amendment. The common denominator of these interventions is Mitchellism, a political strategy to combine the 1968 Nixon and Wallace votes. A Republican Senator on the Judiciary Committee publicly opposing Haynsworth would scarcely conform to Mitchellism.

The chain of events that brought the attorney general into Senate politics began with the death of Everett McKinley Dirksen. A week later, on the afternoon of Sept. 15, the Senate Republican Committee on Committees met to fill Dirksen's seats on two prestigious committees, finance and judiciary.

Routine Shattered

That's normally a routine task with the choices strictly determined by seniority. The Committee on Committees discovered that the highest seniority bidders for the vacancies were Griffin for finance and Sen. Edward Gurney of Florida for judiciary. Gurney, the most conservative of the new Republicans elected in 1968, would be a solid Haynsworth vote.

But just as the Committee on Committees was about to approve Griffin and Gurney, one of its members — Sen. Jacob Javits of New York — suggested that his junior colleague, Goodell, might like the judiciary seat. Appointed to the Robert F. Kennedy seat in the autumn of 1968, Goodell had a few month's seniority on Gurney. After a telephone call, Javits confirmed that Goodell would indeed like to serve on judiciary.

Thurmond Shocked

That brought Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina close to apoplexy. Goodell, who has moved abruptly to the left since entering the Senate, looked like an anti-Haynsworth vote to him. Moreover, Goodell's role on the Judiciary Committee as a civil rights activist would conflict head-on with Thurmond's role as prophet of Republicanism Down South.

Stalling for time, Thurmond proposed that Sen. Paul Fannin of Arizona, a conservative with seniority over Goodell, might like the judiciary seat. Reminded that Fannin is not a lawyer and that the Judiciary Committee is traditionally restricted to lawyers, Thurmond was unmoved. He placed a telephone call to Fannin.

Fannin's return call moments later was taken by Sen. Wallace

Bennett of Utah, who listened intently and reported that Fannin had no interest in the Judiciary Committee. But Thurmond refused to accept that, protesting that he personally wanted to talk to Fannin. A second call was placed to Fannin; again Fannin said no. But it was now past 6 p.m., and Thurmond succeeded in adjourning the Committee on Committees until the following afternoon.

During the overnight recess, conservative Republicans searched frantically for a lawyer-Republican with fairly conservative credentials and a willingness to serve on judiciary. They finally settled on the widely-respected Griffin, whose 30 per cent 1969 liberal voting record as measured by the ADA is far more respectable than Goodell's 80 per cent. Besides, just that preceding weekend, Griffin had announced his reluctant support of Haynsworth.

Contacted by Mitchell

Contrary to rumors now circulating in the Republican cloakroom, Thurmond did not talk to Griffin. The overture came from another conservative stalwart, Sen. Roman Hruska of Nebraska. But what really caused Griffin to switch his request from finance to judiciary was not Hruska but the secret overture from the attorney general. Alerted by Thurmond, Mitchell quickly contacted Griffin and pressed him to claim the judiciary seat.

Griffin's agreement was in no way motivated by animus toward Goodell. They were old comrades in the House and Goodell privately has been boosting Griffin for Senate Minority Whip. Rather, Griffin was informed that Thurmond and other conservatives would never accept Goodell and that the choice therefore was between Griffin and somebody much more conservative. There was even talk of shattering tradition and forcing through a non-lawyer (conservative Sen. Clifford Hansen of Wyoming was mentioned) outranking Goodell in seniority. That would have insured a bloody intra-party battle.

So, when the Committee on Committees reconvened the next afternoon, the high seniority bidders for the Dirksen vacancies turned out to be Griffin for Judiciary and Hansen for Finance.

The hand of Strom Thurmond was clearly visible. Invisible but more portentous was John Mitchell's. Mitchell had come to the Senate.

Frank Buckelmeyer, Right, calls himself a roving volunteer. He has visited 94 Veterans Administration hospitals in the past six years, just to cheer up the patients. (AP Wirephoto)

Vet Volunteers To Visit Vets

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Frank Buckelmeyer is in the sixth year of a self-assigned mission to provide a little companionship for hospitalized war veterans across the nation.

Now 73, Buckelmeyer, who served in the Navy in World War I, says he has been to 94 Veterans Administration hospitals, spending one to four weeks at each. Some patients he sees haven't had a visitor in years. He writes letters for them, reads the newspapers aloud or just chats.

"If my health holds out long enough for me to finish my visits to all 166 VA hospitals I'll start all over again," he says.

Buckelmeyer lives with the utmost frugality on a $94 Social Security check and an $84 pension monthly.

He buys bargain suits for $5, stays in $7-a-week hotel rooms and travels by bus.

He eats a gruel of vinegar, honey and oatmeal for breakfast, a lunch at whatever hospital he is visiting, and a fried pie and tea for supper.

Buckelmeyer spent 27 years as a Great Lakes sailor after his World War I discharge, then worked on the Mississippi and finally went to Alaska. There, the chipper little ex-tar—he is 5 feet 4 inches tall—relates:

"I became a sourdough — working the salmon industry for a few months to get money, then living way back in the woods with my dog. They called me Woodrider Lake Shorty."

Stricken by a blood clot, he moved to Seattle to be near a VA hospital and started visiting veterans. "It takes a while to get to them because nobody has just sat down to talk to them in such a long time," he says.

Buckelmeyer visits hospitals in the South during the winter and tours the rest of the country when the weather warms up. Most of the VA hospitals he has not yet visited are in the East.

Asked why he wants to spend the rest of his life as what he calls "a roving volunteer," Buckelmeyer pointed to 94-year-old William Smith, a Spanish-American War veteran who has been in VA hospitals for 30 years, and said:

"Look at Mr. Smith. Why, that could be me some day and I would want someone to visit me."

Hectic Campaigning Brandt Optimistic of Becoming Chancellor

KASSEL West Germany (AP) — Foreign Minister Willy Brandt goes into the final days of his campaign for West Germany's general election Sunday to New York, where he met with the Western and Soviet foreign ministers.

"I am by nature a cautious optimist, but at the moment I am more optimistic than cautious," Brandt told a newsman Tuesday after a hectic day of campaigning in the State of Hesse.

The Socialist foreign minister, who is trying to unseat Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, leader of the conservative Christian Democrats, returned early in the morning from a one-day trip to Bonn. Then he toured five communities in Hesse, delivering in each a 25-minute speech outlining the policies of his Social Democratic party.

Although he spent the night aboard the plane, Brandt did not appear tired. His trip to New York to meet the foreign ministers attending the U.N. General Assembly seemed to have two purposes.

The display of energy was not lost on his audiences of voters. And it gave Brandt grounds to refute Kiesinger's campaign charge that a government led by the Socialists would weaken construction projects to protest West Germany's ties with its Western allies.

"My talks in New York have convinced me that this is not so," Brandt said.

He also said he found Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko more relaxed than at their previous meeting and that they discussed, among other things, trade between their two countries and an exchange of technological information.

Brandt's party, which has been in the coalition government with the Christian Democrats for the past 34 months, seems closer to becoming the largest party in the West German parliament than in any other election. It has steadily gained votes in past elections and is now facing the voters for the first time after having been in the government.

Brandt said his optimism was not based on a poll published in the Times of London and widely circulated in Germany showing his party ahead of the Christian Democrats.

The pollsters may have questioned too many Protestants and they would throw open their doors to all qualified minority group journeymen, prepared to draw their votes from Protestant groups, while the Christian Democrats are the Catholic party.

Union Leaders Rap Plan on Racial Hiring

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Angry union leaders threatened today a boycott of federal construction projects to protest a government plan they said would set racial hiring quotas.

"It's going to raise the roof," said one AFL-CIO building trades leader after the Labor Department announced it would go ahead with the controversial Philadelphia plan.

Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz said in Washington Tuesday the plan would be put into effect in Philadelphia and expanded nationwide as soon as possible to insure more high-paying construction jobs for Negroes and other minority groups.

The plan would require contractors on federal projects of $50,000 or more to hire a certain number from minority groups for iron work, plumbing, pipefitting, sheet metal and electrical jobs.

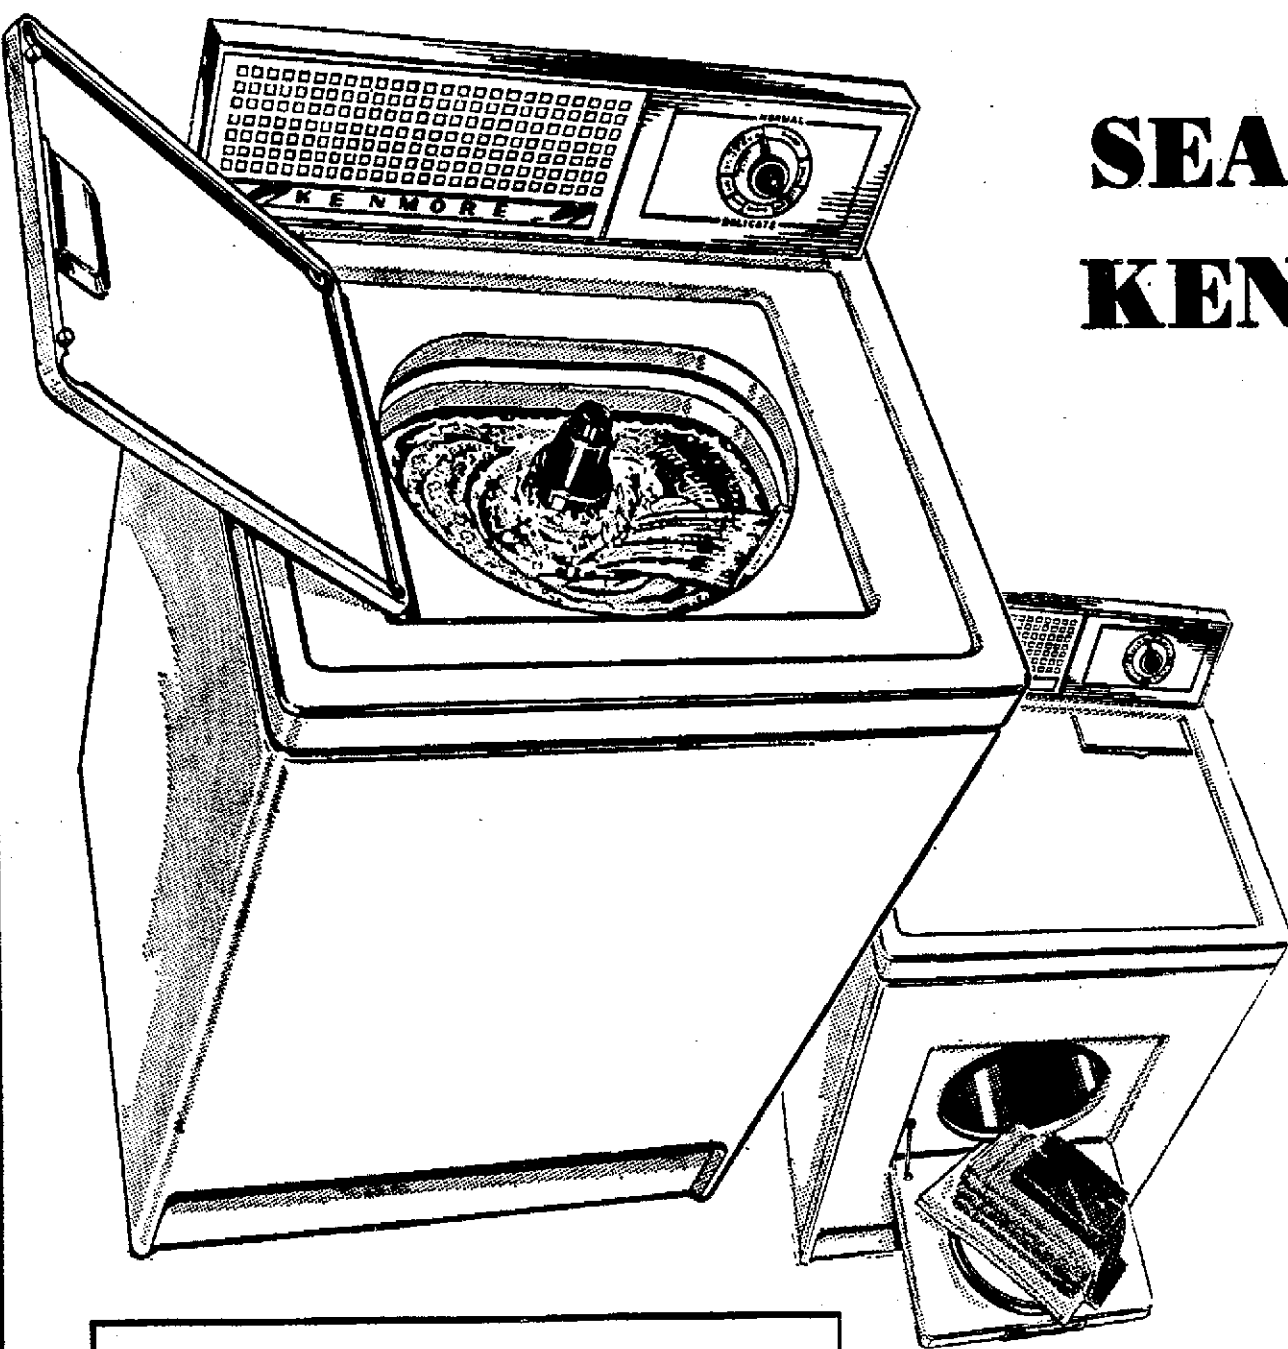

Shultz has said Negro workers in those trades in the Philadelphia area amount to less than two per cent, but the unions claim about 12 per cent.

Leaders of the AFL-CIO Construction and Building Trades Department, who earlier said they would throw open their doors to all qualified minority group journeymen, prepared to draw their votes from Philadelphia plan as "infamous" and a "union-busting" tactic.

SST, Capitol Work Linked by Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The historic but crumbling west wall of the Capitol and the sleek but unbuilt supersonic transport plane have been linked by two senators who say they're trying to save a piece of the past and make the future bearable.

In both cases—the $45 million plan to extend the Capitol's west front 88 feet and the billion-dollar effort to develop a 1,700-mile-an-hour commercial plane—the bond is money and the natural well-being of the citizenry.

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., took similar stands Monday in opposing extension of the Capitol to provide added space for restaurants, offices and toilets.

They also took aim at the SST, revived Monday by President Nixon who urged spending $662 million over five years to develop it.

Proxmire said the SST would create sound pollution with a vengeance. "Each SST would lay down a carpet of sonic booms 60

Mrs. Meir Departs for Visit in U.S.

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir flew to the United States today for talks with President Nixon and a sentimental journey to her old hometown, Milwaukee.

"I am going on a mission of pleasure and hope," the 71-year-old premier told newsmen. She declined to say what she would ask of Nixon, commenting, "I'll tell you all about it when I get back." And she said it would be "exciting" to visit the Milwaukee school where, as Goldie Mabovitz, she taught the fourth grade in 1918.

Mrs. Meir took an El Al airliner which was to land in Philadelphia after a brief stop in London. She will go to Washington Thursday. In addition to Milwaukee, she will visit Hollywood for a "Salute to Golda" reception to be given by the movie industry.

Mrs. Meir has been widely reported planning to ask President Nixon for more economic and military aid, including additional Phantom and Skyhawk jet warplanes.

She also will meet with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

Cairo Radio said the purpose of Mrs. Meir's visit far exceeds a quest for military and economic aid, that "another plot is being planned against the Arab nation." The broadcaster said that a visit by the late Premier Levi Eshkol to the United States and talks with President Lyndon B. Johnson resulted in the "conspiracy . . . of the six-day war" in June 1967.

Bandits Hold Up Bank Near Police Station, Stopped in Gun Battle

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — It took four bandits only 17 seconds to rob a bank, but that was too long.

Police converged on the scene from their station a few blocks away recently and captured three men in a gun battle.

The fourth man escaped.

Police said all the $17,834 loot was recovered.

One of those arrested, Bobby Harrison, 27, was wounded in the shoulder. Also arrested were Billie Ralph Holloway, 33, and Donald Eugene Smith, 25.

Police Maj. M. J. Alligood said police were alerted when an alarm operated from the bank rang at headquarters.

Tijuana Not the Same Since Anti-Drug Fight

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — This border city's sidewalks, once crowded with tourists, have been almost deserted by the fun-seeking, money-spending American.

The gringo has stopped coming to Tijuana and the once-bustling city isn't the same.

There aren't as many shoe-shine boys and gum peddlers. Shops are empty and cab drivers don't bother to look up as people walk by.

Owners of curio shops, nightclubs and restaurants report business has dropped 40 to 75 per cent.

The flow of American tourists has diminished, the Mexicans say, because of lengthy delays at the border when they go back north.

The delays are caused by intensive searches by U.S. Customs in Operation Intercept, the campaign against drug smuggling that started Sunday.

"Dope smuggling must be stopped," Fortino Cabrera, president of the Tijuana Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday, "but not at any cost."

"At least not at the cost of such an economic blow to the people of Tijuana."

Elias Medel sells 15-cent tacos at a little stand on Avenida Revolucion, the main street.

"I've sold about 40 tacos," he said. "On a good day, sometimes I sell as many as 500. This is very bad."

Rosa Avelar, who runs a candle store, said:

"Most of our customers are Americans. Business is terrible. The United States is hurting us."

"Our merchants and people are getting together to stop shopping in the United States. We want the Americans to know what it's like."

A policeman prepared to write a parking ticket for a car with California license plates. "Gently," said a merchant. "Gently. There are too few."

And a hawkler calls out at a rare American:

The World of Paris, the World of Vietnam microphone and begins to read his prepared statement in Vietnamese.

"In order to find a solution to the Vietnamese problem," he says, "the sine qua non condition is that all parties involved must be motivated by the same desire to end the war by way of negotiation instead of violence."

A Vietnamese interpreter translates his remarks into French, and an American interpreter carries them into English. Across the 26-foot round table with its baize cover the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegations sit impassively.

Thirty-two delegates rim the table, eight to a delegation, like an enormous poker game. Behind them sit the "second team," lawyers, recorders, clerks. By agreement, only 60 people can be in the conference room at a time. 30 from each side.

In Vietnam, it is 5:30 p.m.

A Vietnamese man in a panama hat and white shirt threads his way through the barbed wire and approaches Maj. Loeffke. The major listens to the man for a few moments and breaks into a wide grin. Loeffke, a former Special Forces officer who speaks fluent French, has recruited his own string of agents to seek out Viet Cong sympathizers among the people of Cam Tam who work the Long Que rubber plantation. This agent has informed him of the whereabouts of two Viet Cong agents.

"It's like knocking your head against a brick wall finding something to work on," says Loeffke. The rubber workers communicate with the Viet Cong in subtle ways: a stick in the ground wearing a Vietnamese conical hat meaning to stay away; the hat next to the stick meaning it is safe to approach.

Paris 10:45 a.m.

In the Avenue Kleber, a double-decked sightseeing bus goes by the seven-story whitish-gray building. The tourists are from Holland, and the guide tells them in Dutch that this is where the peace talks on Vietnam are being held.

"Perhaps today, the war will be over," he tells them playfully. They laugh and grind away with their movie cameras.

In Vietnam, it is 5:45 p.m.

Sgt. Jason Dale, 21, of Devil Lake, N.D., is saddling up for war, one of two Americans who will set up a night ambush with five Vietnamese popular force soldiers, and Dale is not slow to express his unhappiness. "I got stuck with it," he says.

It will be a long wet night for Dale, and for a platoon from his company led by Lt. Carol Stewart from Albion, Ill., who will lay an ambush to the east where enemy movement is expected.

Paris 11 a.m.

Ambassador Lam, now half way through his statement, pauses for a drink of water from a carafe at his elbow.

"As far as the Republic of Vietnam is concerned," he resumes, "when we agreed to sit at this meeting table, we asserted our will to put an early end to the war by way of negotiations. We accept a solution in which there is no winner or loser, as long as there is a just, long-lasting and guaranteed peace."

In Vietnam, at 6 p.m., a bedraggled Vietnamese girl self-consciously stands outside a hamlet militia post near Xuan Loc, the provincial capital. She is 17 years old. Her name is Nguyen Thi Nhon. She has been with the Viet Cong 13 months and she is surrendering.

"When we wash her, she will be good looking," comments a U.S. district adviser.

Thi Nhon says she was conscripted in August 1968 and worked in a labor force. Later she became a nurse. She surrendered, she said, because she heard a taped broadcast by one of her friends who had surrendered two weeks earlier.

No, she said, she had never heard of the peace talks in Paris.

Not far away, a "slapstick" road mine is detonated by a Vietnamese army truck. The 20-pound blast wrecks the truck and wounds two Vietnamese soldiers.

Paris 11:30 a.m.

Lam, after speaking 56 minutes, sits down. There is no comment, no discussion, no applause.

Ambassador Lodge speaks next, for 12 minutes. After two introductory paragraphs, his statement is a repeat of President Nixon's statement Sept. 16 on the withdrawal of 35,000 more American troops.

In Vietnam, it is 6:30 p.m.

Pfc. King lies on the operating table at the 93rd Evacuation Hospital at Long Binh. Dr. Hooshang Kodivar of Huntington, W. Va., probes King's thigh wound and removes the small AK47 bullet. King is wheeled away and another wounded soldier takes his place.

Taking advantage of the last flickering light of day, two sleek A37s from the U.S. Air Force's 3rd Fighter Wing bombard a tiny clearing in War Zone C. The 1st Air Cavalry Division is landing a company of infantry there before dark, and the jets are preparing the way.

Paris 11:43 a.m.

Lodge concludes, and a member of the South Vietnamese delegation proposes a 20-minute recess. The delegates troop out their separate doors to their separate working rooms, beyond the coffee bars, where lunch is waiting.

"The toilet," says Steve Ledogar, press spokesman for the American delegation, "is the only truly democratic room in the building. It is shared by all delegations."

In Vietnam, at 6:50 p.m., a wet, forbidding night is settling across the land.

Maj. Loeffke's ambush patrols are whispering in their final positions, "25, 25, 25, this is 26, over," says the hushed, hoarse radio voice as a platoon leader seeks to establish communication with his squad.

In Cam Tam village, the kids who were begging C-ration cigarettes from the American GIs scamper to their thatched homes. The babies stop crying.

Paris 12 Noon

The Americans are always meaning to speak to the French Foreign Office about the sameness of the menu at the Hotel Majestic. Both sets of Vietnamese are always meaning to suggest that more Oriental dishes be added, but even in an area of agreement there is no initiative. Today, as always, there is a cold meat platter with ham and chicken, potato salad, french bread, beer, cola and tiny tarts garnished with a single strawberry.

In Vietnam, barely 15 minutes after dark, 10 rounds of mortar fire slap into the jungled bivouac of a 1st Air Cavalry unit 50 miles northwest of Saigon. Enemy troops slide up to the barbed wire. The night roars with claymore mines, tracers, rockets that continue for an hour. The North Vietnamese are driven away as helicopter gunships and artillery shred the jungle. Eight Americans are wounded. Enemy losses: unknown.

Paris 12:23 p.m.

Leading off for his side, Dinh Ba Thi scores President Nixon's troop withdrawal as a "perfidious maneuver," a "noisy clamor" and "arithmetical acrobatic feats which add to the general confusion."

The United States prolongs the war, he charges, "to gain time to strengthen the puppet army and patch up the puppet administration."

In Vietnam, it is 7:25 p.m.

A silver C141 Air Force Starlifter speeds along the wet tarmac of Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase and heads for San Francisco; its cargo, 10 aluminum caskets containing the bodies of American GIs. Such planes have flown home 15,642 of America's dead sons since the peace talks began May 13, 1968.

Paris 1:17 p.m.

Col. Ha Van Lau, last in the oratorical relay, picks up the baton for Hanoi.

"Eight months have elapsed since Mr. Nixon entered the White House, and people in the United States and elsewhere wonder what he has done to bring an end to the U.S. war of aggression in Vietnam."

It is nearing 8:20 p.m. in Vietnam.

The Armed Forces Radio Network, in its evening news, says that the 34th session of the Paris peace talks is under way.

"Just a bunch of people doing something that doesn't mean anything," grunts Maj. Henry M. Warren of Friona, Tex., sitting on a cot in the ramshackle forward headquarters of the Vietnamese 48th Regiment at Cam Tam as he digs into a can of C-ration turkey loaf. "The Viet Cong aren't planning any settlement. They go on building their base camps out there. They're not preparing for peace; they're preparing for war."

Lt. Nguyen Van Ngan, 28, who has seen war since he was born, shakes his head. "No," he says, "the Americans will leave us to fight, and we will fight alone. We will have to."

Paris 1:50 p.m.

The sun has come out over the gray mansard roof of the Hotel Majestic, but a cloud crosses the normally stoic features of Col. Lau. He looks sadly up at the ceiling and concludes his remarks with a quote from his late leader Ho Chi Minh: "The Vietnamese people firmly demand the withdrawal of all U.S. and satellite troops..."

The ritual allows each side an opportunity for rebuttal, or "additional remarks," as the Americans prefer to call it. Lodge leads off with a four-minute plea to the other side "not to seek to belittle" the American troop withdrawal. Lam for once declines further comment. Thi and Lau add five-minute assaults on "Mr. Nixon's numbers games."

The third man in the Hanoi delegation says: "If no one else has anything to say, I propose we meet again next Thursday at 10:30. The 34th plenary session of the Paris meeting is over."

Vietnam 9 p.m.

Capt. James V. McGinnis is writing to his wife Joan in Wilmington, N.C. He tells her he misses her and that he is looking forward to seeing her on leave in November in Hawaii. He doesn't tell her he is sitting in a lonely rat-infested outpost with all but a handful of his men out on ambush patrols. He doesn't tell her that he hasn't shaved in days and that he is sick and tired of C-rations.

A few miles away, a rain-drenched trooper from A Company, 5th Battalion, 12th Regiment of the 199th Brigade, is feeling his way carefully through the jungle when his hand closes on the cold body of a man. One of his buddies finds another. The two dead are North Vietnamese killed in a fire fight that afternoon.

The scouts take grim satisfaction in their find. One of their own, Pfc. Johnny Miller, 21, from Mount Olive, Ala., was hit in the same battle that afternoon. He died in their arms.

Church-State Conflicts Are Target of Two Amendments

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Two constitutional amendments to ease church-state conflicts have been aired before a legislative committee, as religious spokesmen seek approval of released time for religious teaching of students and church use of public school buildings.

Considered by the Assembly education committee were proposals to change the state constitution to clearly state that public school students may be released from class during the school day to attend religious instruction off the school grounds, and another to allow the state's charter to allow religious groups to use public school facilities.

Unconstitutional? Donald Rush, representing the Wisconsin Catholic Conference, told the committee the released time concept has never been dealt with by the State Supreme Court, but that the U.S. Supreme Court has indicated that it is proper.

Three opinions of Wisconsin attorneys general have indicated, however, that the practice is unconstitutional, he said, and therefore it has been dropped from use in Wisconsin, where it was once quite popular.

Education committee chairman Lawrence Johnson, R-Algoma, asked Rush why, in view of those opinions, released time is still being practiced widely in the Fox River Valley.

"I suppose it is just local people getting together and doing what they want to do," said Rush.

Backing the released time concept was Father Leo Joyce, head of religious education for the Madison Catholic diocese. He said that weekend or night time religious training for youngsters is becoming impractical and psychologically difficult to carry out.

Singular Benefit Supporting that position as well was Father Francis Wavra, head of religious education for the LaCrosse diocese. Released time training, he said, "has a singular benefit to the religious and moral life of both a student and his school."

Opposition was voiced to the plan, however, by Mrs. Carol

Holt of Mequon, representing a group dubbed Preserve Our Public Schools (POPS).

Pointing out that the proposal contains no limits on the amount of time that could be spent away from a school for such purposes, she warned of dangers in the proposed constitutional change.

She said that the plan could easily lead to discrimination, due to changes in scheduling and other policy decisions made to accommodate a released time program.

If students are allowed to miss classes, the entire class suffers, Mrs. Holt warned. If the student does not make up the work, the class is held back. And if the teacher devotes special attention to such make-up efforts, her time is unfairly distributed.

Mrs. Holt urged the religious education remain a personal decision of families.

Personal Decision

Backing the proposal that churches be allowed to use public school buildings in off-hours was Mrs. Russell McCarthy of Cambridge. She told the committee that her parish has more than 200 students enrolled in religious education classes, lacks sufficient quarters to house the classes, and is located next door to a large public school which could be used for the purpose if the constitution was changed.

Other, non-church groups are allowed to rent the public school quarters, she told the committee. The local school officials keep a close watch over such groups, and have refused some groups permission to use the facilities, while allowing other groups, she said.

But the law plainly prevents churches from applying for such permission, said Mrs. McCarthy.

"Far Out"

Assemblyman Ernest Korpela, D-Washburn, asked Mrs. McCarthy if she felt that "far out" religious groups or communist speakers should be allowed to use the facilities to preach their doctrines if the law was changed.

"I don't think we should allow any communists in there," she said. "I think we should try to get rid of them."

Proposals to change the constitution must be passed by two successive biennial sessions of the Legislature and approved by the voters in a referendum before they can be effective.

Both resolutions are being considered for the first time.

Mailmen Put On Shotgun Duty

NEW YORK (AP) — When welfare checks are mailed out twice a month, postmen walk in pairs in areas of the Bronx and Brooklyn, in an attempt to thwart would-be thieves.

The doubling up on routes in highcrime areas—known as "shotgun duty"—costs the U.S. Post Office about $360,000 a year, officials said Monday.

Volunteers are sought among the huskier postmen. They are unarmed, but keep a sharp look out while the other mailmen puts the checks into mailboxes.

Kimberly Board to Continue Small Meetings With Public

KIMBERLY — The board of education Monday night voted to continue special small meetings in various schools in the district in an effort to keep the public informed on school policies and programs. The program also aims at allowing administrators and school board members to learn more about the feelings of the general public. Initially meetings have been set for Oct. 7, 15 and 23 at the Senior High, Junior High, West-side Elementary and Janssen schools. Administrators from these schools and one representative of the board of education will be present.

Letters will be sent to parents of school children in which the parent may indicate a desire to attend one of the small meetings and indicate which session preferred. Meetings will be arranged and an effort made to keep parental attendance down to about 15 people to insure general participation. Suggestions School officials will attempt to answer any questions or problems parents may bring up or take back to the general board of education any suggestions for improvement in school operation or educational changes. The board approved a cheerleading clinic to be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 7 in the high school gym, sponsored by the National Cheerleaders Association, Dallas, Tex. Edward Baier, Beaver Dam, Wisconsin director of the association, will conduct the clinic in cooperation with Mrs. Jane Voltz, local cheerleader adviser. Cheerleaders from throughout the area will be invited and over 250 students are expected for the clinic, according to information furnished the board.

Bond Is Forfeited By Michigan Man In Fatal Accident

An Iron River, Mich., man whose car was involved in a fatal accident north of Appleton June 10, forfeited a $57 bond in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Tuesday on a charge of failing to yield from a stop sign.

Robert J. Mortel, 22, was charged by county police following a two-car accident on County Trunk E, a mile north of Appleton.

Ronald M. Mc Keever, 29, route 1, New London, a passenger in a car driven by Clifford E. Roman, 501 E. Beacon Ave., New London, was killed in the crash which seriously injured several other persons.

Rate Increase Proposed for City Bus Line

Council Committee Suggests Hike Plus Cut Back in Service

A common council committee, as president, she asked for has recommended telling Fox, "the immediate continued con- Valley Bus Lines, Inc., to ask sideration of the subsidy re- state permission for a rate quest." increase rather than being given Ald. John Ayers (12th), com- a subsidy by the city. mittee chairman, suggested a public hearing to sample opinion on the subsidy.

The council's public safety committee also suggested that the firm cut back service from Ald. John Reynolds (7th) sug- its half-hour schedule to an gested the rate increase might be "a more logical approach" hourly system.

The bus line had asked the council to consider a subsidy of either $20,400 to maintain service on the present schedule, or in the $14-$15,000 range for service, suggested adding the proposal to cut back service as well. The dual recommendation passed, to be considered at the Oct. 1 council meeting.

391 Freshmen Start Classes At Lawrence U.

Group Is Third Largest in School's 123 Year History

The third largest freshman class in Lawrence University history started formal classes Monday, the start of the school's 123rd academic year.

The 391 members of the class of 1973 rank just behind the 398 freshmen admitted in 1965 and last year's record group of 423. The addition of 28 transfer students brings this year's total to 419, compared to 445 in 1968.

Among this year's new students are 197 freshmen men and 194 women, plus 11 male and 17 female transfers. The latter group includes four students classified as "assistants" in languages and other teaching fields. Sixteen men and 26 women among the newcomers are enrolled in the Conservatory of Music.

Past academic performance of the new students is somewhat higher than last year. This Committee Divided

Pornography Measure Goes To City Council Next Week

A proposal to license sellers of printed matter in an effort to keep pornography out of Appleton goes to the common council next week, with a divided committee recommending rejection.

The welfare and ordinance committee Tuesday advised the council against adopting the resolution, which in turn called for adopting a licensing ordinance.

One of the authors of the resolution, Ald. Edward R. Maloney (9th), expects to have a ruling from the state attorney general's office by then, on the legality of such restrictions, committee men were told.

License Required

The proposed ordinance, which has generated heated public debate, would require a license for selling or trading "books, magazines, paperbacks and other printed or related material."

The license would be issued annually, at a nominal fee and on condition that the licensee does not violate or cause to be violated local or state pornography regulations.

A license could be refused by recommendation of the committee and approval of the council, on grounds of "repeated citizen complaints or arrests." Conviction of a violation would mean immediate revocation of a permit.

County Boards Try Aid to Urban Areas

Committee Named to Work With Association, State Legislature

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Wisconsin's urban counties have taken a step toward making their problems better known, both within the Wisconsin County Boards Association and at the state legislative level.

An urban counties committee was named Tuesday by the association's president, State Sen. Myron Lott of Green Bay. The move was the result of a meeting held Monday morning, prior to the start of the association's convention, of chairmen of most of the state's urban counties.

Named to the study committee were Richard Pire, Dane County; Earl Hollister, Kenosha County; John Thomas, LaCrosse County; Norman Block, Marathon County; Sylvester Esler, Outagamie County; Eugene Grobschmidt, Milwaukee County; and Richard LaFave, Racine County.

15 Invited

Lott said he would work with the committee as association president and would represent Brown County.

He said Winnebago County had been invited to Monday's meeting but they did not send a representative. He added that about 15 counties had been district plan will come under scrutiny from an eight-member committee — one from each of what parallels the move taken by the state's larger cities in will meet with the governor.

setting up the Alliance of Cities separate from the League of Municipalities, Lott stressed they planned on working through the existing County Boards Association structure.

Unique Problems

Emphasis, he said, would be in defining the problems which are unique to urban counties for the entire association and also to take a more active roll in state legislation.

It is seldom, Lott said, that a representative from a county board appears before the Legislature.

At the same time, Lott appointed a committee to study home rule and administrative aspects of county government.

Two members of the urban county committee, Thomas and LaFave, will serve on this committee along with Jerome Outagamie County; Eugene Grobschmidt, Milwaukee County; and Raymond Schoephorster of Sauk County. Lloyd Owens, Waukesha County, vice president of the association, will coordinate efforts of the committee.

Similar committees were named to study the welfare of the program situation and the association's bylaws.

The governor's administrative about 15 counties had been district plan will come under scrutiny from an eight-member committee — one from each of what parallels the move taken by the state's larger cities in will meet with the governor.

For Apartment Complexes School Board Asked To Oppose Rezoning

The board of education has to the requested zoning change been asked to sign a petition "This (zoning change request) opposing rezoning land near is being held until there is an Appleton East High School for ordinance on the books setting apartment complexes up this type (planned residential) of zoning." Ald. Glenn Milhaupt, 1724 S. Telulah Ave., Thompson (13th) said who said he is one of several. He suggested it would be at nearby property owners oppos- least six months before this is ing plans for one 88-unit com- sidered.

Milhaupt said he wished to get the petition signed now to be ready when the matter is con- sidered.

Unsure whether they could sign since the board of educa- tion actually doesn't hold title to land Development Co., has school property, board mem- agreed to buy the land for one, bers, during a meeting Monday two, and three-bedroom apart- night, agreed to ask for a legal means. The land is now zoned open from City Atty David single family residential John- Geenen. Committee Approves Action

Junked Cars - City Eyesore

Knowing they may collide head-on with a traffic jam of obstacles, members of the city welfare and ordinance committee recommended approval of resolutions Tuesday night intended to get rid of two junked cars.

The autos are a dismantled wreck and a stock racer that may have value to the owner but according to Inspection Director Charles Magnette are "junk to the eye."

They are located at N. Richmond Street and Alvin Street addresses.

Magnette said the mother of the college student who owns the racer has promised to have it removed before her son returned to school this fall, but it remains past the Sept. 20 deadline the inspector set.

The owner of the other car was jailed on unrelated charges in the midst of lengthy attempts to have the car removed, and police have been unable to contact him since he was probationed. The car is on someone else's property, however.

Many Problems

City Atty. David Geenen outlined numerous difficulties in eliminating the eyesores.

He said the health officer, director of inspection, and police chief each are supposed to enforce provisions of the junked car ordinance that come under their jurisdiction.

Where the jurisdictions divide, however, "is somewhat in limbo," Geenen said.

Besides, the city budget lacks funds for towing fees, and officials have found auto junkyard operators often reluctant to accept wrecks because of the low market value of scrap metal.

Geenen suggested that with the wreck that is not on its owner's property, it may help to get the land owner's permission to remove the car. He added that the junkyard still may hesitate to accept the car if the title can't be produced.

Ald. John Steidl (18th), who submitted the resolutions, said he recognized the difficulties involved, but was nevertheless anxious for action.

He asked whether the city could simply have the cars hauled off and send the owners resolutions, giving the police a bill. Geenen replied present chief and Magnette their cue to take action.

Commission Makes Recommendations

Long Range Park Plan Moves Ahead

A long-range park and recreation plan for Appleton has development of the Langedykke moved into final stages of preparation. The city plans east side, and include some commission this week made facilities recommended for development in cooperation with add 1,575 acres of park and other local units of government.

Robert Grossman, Chicago, presenting the report for the Bartholomew firm, said the city currently has a total of 532 acres of land devoted to parks and playgrounds, including parks serving residents in a half-mile radius each, and three new school grounds that serve instead of neighborhood parks in many areas. Needs by 1985,

These are in addition to when population is expected to exceed 100,000 persons, are estimated at 1,053 acres.

Land Purchases

To fill the void, the planners recommend budgeting 10 to 15 per cent of each year's park and recreation expenditures for purchase and development of new land and facilities.

The report states that at the level of present park and recreation budgeting, the 10 to 15 per cent figure would yield between $50,000 and $75,000 annually. By taking advantage of exist-

Alfonsi Sees Little Hope for Recreation

Post-Crescent Staff Correspondence

MADISON — Wisconsin's outdoor recreation program may not get the boost that conservationists had hoped for, according to Assemblyman Paul Alfonsi, Minocqua, chairman of the Assembly's conservation committee.

Speaking before the Wisconsin County Board Associations here Tuesday, Alfonsi said prospects for approval of a $56 million bonding plan for outdoor recreation appear dim.

The bonding for recreation was approved along with a $144 million bond proposal for pollution abatement in a state-wide advisory referendum last spring.

The combined bond plans were commonly referred to as ORAP 200.

Pay-As-You-Go

Alfonsi said he feels the pollution abatement bonds would be approved and that outdoor recreation development would continue temporarily on a pay-as-you-go basis from the one cent cigarette tax imposed in 1961. This tax has been

Rolls of Carpeting Reported Stolen

Three rolls of carpeting, valued at $310, were reported stolen from a large apartment building at 1500 E. Longview Terrace.

The loss was reported Tuesday afternoon by an official of the Paul Bogosian Co., Wauwatosa. The missing carpeting, which was to have been installed in the apartment house, was stored on the first and second floors.

Teen-Agers Hospitalized for Apparent Overdose of Pills

Appleton detectives today an overdose of sleeping pills, were still trying to piece together events that led to two teen-agers being taken to the hospital.

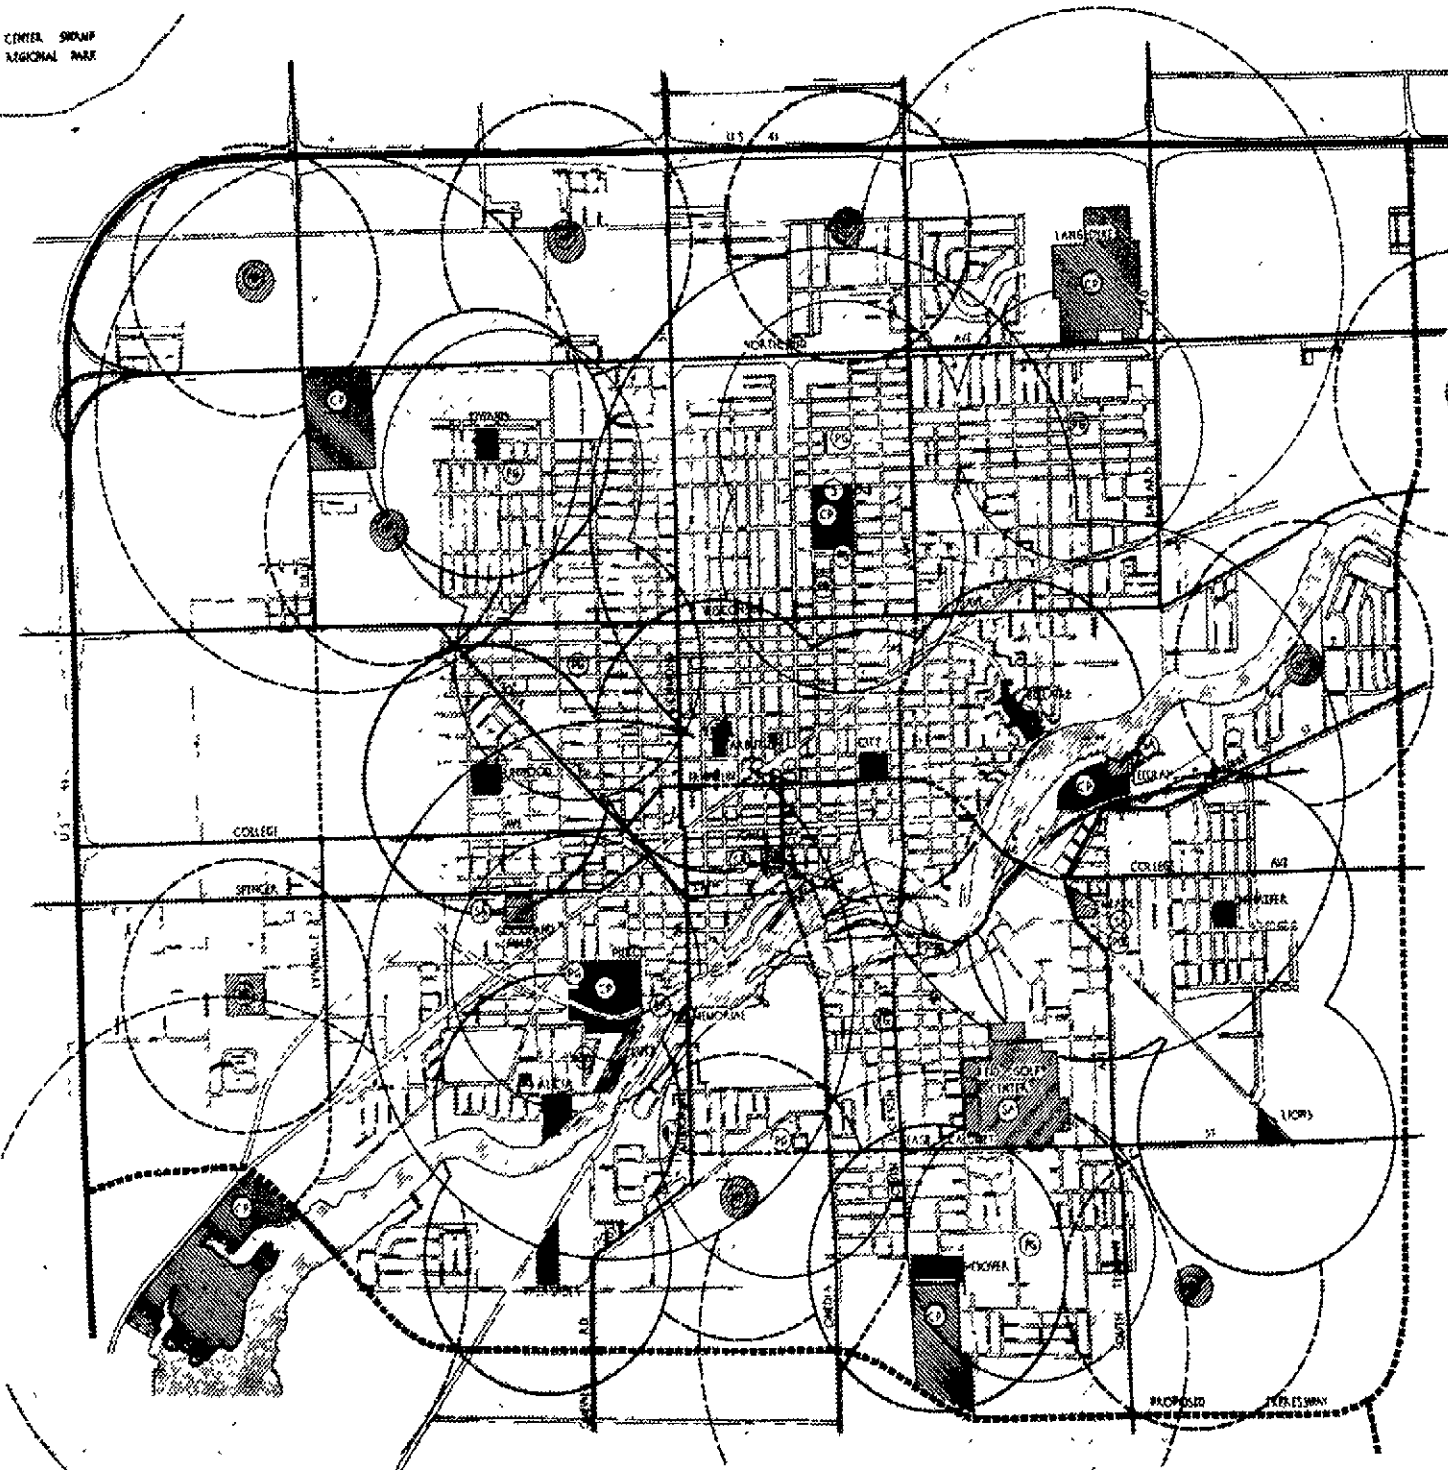

Elizabeth Hospital for treatment were able to gather only of apparent pill overdoses Tuesday night and early this morning.

Police began their investigation about 8:40 p.m., after the fire department rescue squad took a 16-year-old boy from a N. Drew Street home.

Detectives said they believed the boy took four or five pills that had been prescribed for him upon his release from a hospital Tuesday morning.

Police were called back to the Drew Street house about 12:30 a.m. when a 15-year-old girl reportedly passed out from what was believed to have been pills, detectives said.

The girls reportedly started walking, and came to the Drew Street house about 11:15 p.m. Although only one of the three girls was hospitalized, police said a second one seemed to be in a daze and was generally incoherent. Her parents contacted a doctor. The third girl did not seem too affected by the pills, detectives said.

The Pattern of Parks and recreation areas in Appleton is shown in this diagram by Harland Bartholomew and Associates, Inc., planners. Large circles indicate the mile-radius service areas of "community" parks shown at their centers; smaller circles show half-mile radius areas served by neighborhood parks and school playgrounds. The planners urge development by 1985 of eight new neighborhood parks and three community parks, indicated by broken-lined circles, as are parks currently reserved but undeveloped.

Family Just Moved In New Seymour Home Destroyed by Blaze

SEYMOUR — A fire of unde-termined origin destroyed a new home, reportedly valued at $41,000, this morning after the family had spent its first night there. He had intended to take the money to the bank today. He noted the white marble stone that faced the home was ship-ped her from Indiana. He said he and his family, Seymour fire fighters called shortly after 7 a.m. to the home of Ronald Bodart, which is near the scene of the fire, when Mrs. Bodart spotted flames coming from the roof while she was cleaning in a nearby house they had just vacated.

According to a member of the family, the fire started behind the fireplace next to the garage and was burning in the roof when the fire fighters arrived. Fire fighters remained at the scene for more than three hours, but they were unable to save the home. It was reported the family started moving into the home Sunday and completed the move Tuesday night, which was the first night the entire family slept there. Bodart reported the home was partially insured, however, he told The Post-Crescent that he had $3,000 in cash in the house.

Common Problems Two-County Assessing Proposed by Martin

NEENAH — Assemblyman David Martin Tuesday night proposed combining Winnebago and Outagamie counties for assessment purposes. Referring to a Tarr Task Force recommendation for consolidating the assessment duties under county government structure, Martin said, "I feel it would be better to be closer aligned to Outagamie County, than with the southern part of Winnebago County, because I think property values have more in common."

He said he favored consolidation of the assessment duties because, "Everyone would be assessed on an equal basis and it would be more professional."

"But rather than one for Winnebago and one for Outagamie, I would like to see the two counties joined into one assessing unit," Martin said.

Neenah Director of Administration R. V. Hauser challenged the county idea, saying "There would still be a dual assessment. First, by the county then again by the state. Why couldn't the state take everything over right from the start?" he asked.

Under the present system, the state supervisor of assessment sets the equalized value of all municipalities to determine the percentage of state aid each receives.

Hauser suggested having that office handle all assessing duties.

Martin expanded on the idea

1,000 in Wisconsin File Drug Claims

MADISON (AP) — Some 1,000 Wisconsin residents have filed claims totaling $250,000 for overcharges in buying drugs, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren's office announced.

The claims grew out of a price conspiracy case brought by the federal government against five drug makers. An estimated 38,000 claims were filed nationally for alleged overcharges for antibiotics. The firms agreed this year to settle terms.

Revived Housing Authority City Looks to HUD

MENASHA — Members of the new Menasha Housing Authority former authority chairman didn't waste any time getting down to business Tuesday night. In its first meeting since members present.

Federal Funding

The group spent a busy two hours exploring possible methods of finding the need for and proceeding on the project, hearing redevelopment director Robert Osheim describe the requirements for federal funding of a project and other problems which may be encountered.

One thing seemed to be clear up from the start. "It's probably obvious that you can't build a low-rent housing project for the elderly without some kind of subsidy," Osheim said. Members agreed.

The group's new chairman, Gerald Wagner, and other members listened intently as former chairman and housing authority leader Risley told them of the problems the group faced in its earlier attempt at public housing after it was formed in June, 1967, by former Mayor Kenneth Holmes.

NM Officials Review Tax Protests

NEENAH — Two state legislators, appearing on a forum to explain and answer questions on the new 4 per cent sales tax, got a less than gentle reminder of the heralded "taxpayers revolt."

Assemblyman David Martin and Senator William Draheim attended a joint session of the Neenah and Menasha city councils and Town of Menasha board to explain local effects of the new taxes needed to finance the recently-adopted state budget.

Martin called the 4 per cent tax "The most controversial tax that the state has ever adopted. It is even more controversial than the first sales tax passed in 1961."

"The two major reasons for this is the confusion it is causing in the grocery stores on what should be taxed and what should be exempted and the second is 23 per cent in the health and social services and 12 per cent just a week after it was passed."

"If it had not gone into effect when it did, the state would have been losing $5 million a week," he said. "And we would have had to find other places to raise the money we would have lost."

One-Third Increase

Martin pointed to a 51 per cent increase in the school aids, 23 per cent in the health and social services and 12 per cent in the University of Wisconsin and State University systems spending over the next two years as major reasons for the 33 per cent state budget increase.

He also predicted more increases after the legislature meets in special session next week to review Gov. Warren Knowles' request for more money.

Both Martin and Draheim were attacked for passing the new sales tax because, as Menasha Ald. Herbert Bailey put it, "There are other places to raise taxes other than where it will hurt most."

The Neenah assemblyman, however, defended the sales tax as "A method of taxation."

Income Tax

"We could have gone to the income tax for the needed revenue, but Wisconsin is already ranked second in the nation for use of the income, tax, and 44th in the nation in the use of the sales tax," he explained.

"Besides both Michigan and Illinois, two of the Wisconsin's competitor states, are using the sales tax extensively as a means of raising revenue," Martin said.

Martin admitted the major reason for the delay in passing the new budget was "politics."

"The other party refused to participate in the budget unless it could determine the amount of taxes to be raised and the method of taxation to be used," he said.

"And, this revenue proposal is the only one which could be agreed on by the GOP," he added.

GOP Mistake

The Republican decision to go it alone to set a new tax proposal was "a mistake" according to Martin. He pointed to major disagreements within the party on the type of tax to be used to meet the spending demands.

"Some wanted the 4 per cent on the expanded base, while others were in favor of the 3 per cent with the credit refund. I'm still in favor of the 3 per cent," he said.

Ald. Michael Ellis, Neenah, asked why municipal construction was included in the sales tax. "This is another hidden tax which local taxpayers are going to have to pay, isn't it?" he asked.

Martin conceded that it was, but he added, "This is expected to bring in $19 million and if we would not have included municipal construction, we would have had to find another way to raise the $19 million," he explained.

He defended the sales tax saying, "It is a method of taxation that has been tried, proven — and it works."

According to Martin, the 51 per cent increase in school aids could mean as much as $387,800 more for Neenah and $70,000 more for Menasha in added school aids.

Legislature Gets Decision On Butte des Morts Bridge

NEENAH-MENASHA — Although there seems to be overwhelming and enthusiastic support for construction of a bridge across Little Lake Butte des Morts, the future of such a span probably is more dependent upon state legislators than the State Highway Commission.

Despite wide-spread support for the 1,200-foot span, expressed at Tuesday's public hearing at Sabre Lanes in the Town of Menasha, the releasing of nearly $40 million in funds under the Long Bridge Act is vital to the bridge project.

William R. Redmond, state highway commission chairman, stressed this point when he said, "No decision on the hearing will be made until we know whether funds are available for construction."

And, when the state legislators re-convene the first week in October, they will vote whether to release the $40 million earmarked for long bridge construction.

"If they (state commissioners) come out and say there is a need for the bridge, the state will have to put up more than a third of the cost. However, if funds aren't available you can forget about the bridge," Supv. Roland Kampe, Town of Menasha, said today.

However, Kampe was pleased with the outcome of the commission hearing. "I think the commission will decide there is a social, economic and environmental need for the bridge," the town chairman said. "The support given to this project on Tuesday should bear out this point," he added.

And, the commissioners could not help but be impressed over the overwhelming support for the bridge.

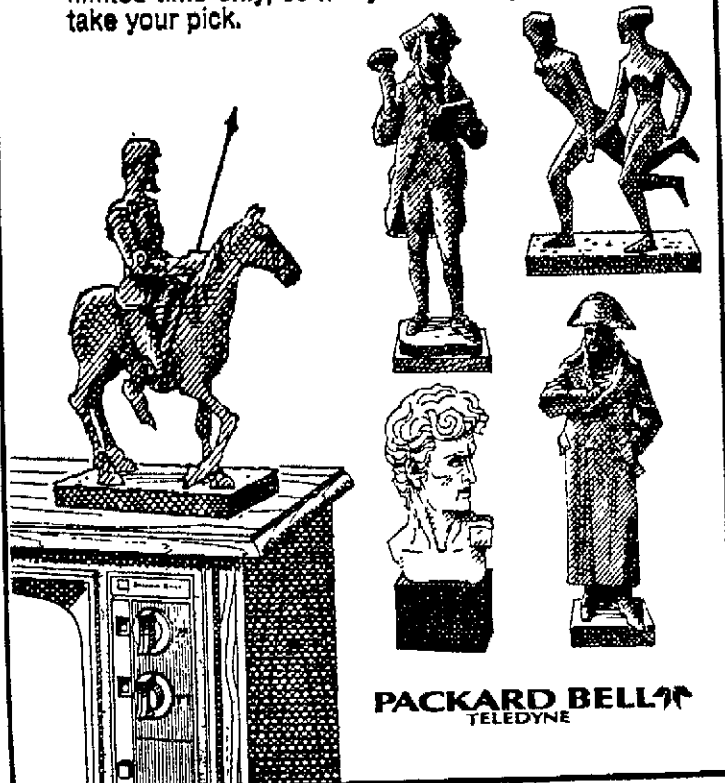

Over 150 persons attended Tuesday's long-awaited hearing and persons from all walks of life, from the common citizen to state legislators and industrial executives, testified to the need for such a bridge.

S. Vietnamese Force Suffers Heavy Losses

SAIGON (AP) — A company of 130 South Vietnamese civilian irregulars led by American Green Berets suffered more than 50 per cent casualties in heavy fighting six miles south of the Cambodian border, military spokesmen reported today.

Within hours after the fighting ended, five waves of U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese bases and staging areas along the border north of Saigon with some 750 tons of explosives.

Seven of the South Vietnamese civilian irregulars were killed and 62 were wounded in the six-hour fight Monday three miles northwest of the Thien Ngan Special Forces camp. Four Green Berets were wounded.

American fighter-bombers and artillery came to the rescue of the embattled company and South Vietnamese headquarters said 35 North Vietnamese bodies were found afterward.

New Offensive

The U.S. Command sent its biggest bombers against the bases along the border in an attempt to break up preparations for a new enemy campaign expected in November.

U.S. spokesman said the Stratofortresses hit North Vietnamese "activity base camps, supply and staging areas" between a mile and a mile and a half from the border. The target area stretched from 65 miles north-northwest of Saigon to 83 miles north of the capital.

Earlier, four American observation helicopters were shot at in the same general area, 60 miles north-northwest of Saigon.

The helicopters returned the fire with machine guns and directed artillery onto the enemy positions. U.S. headquarters said 16 enemy soldiers were killed. No U.S. casualties were reported, and the helicopters returned to their base.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, reported two days ago that "a lot of prisoner of war statements and other documents indicate there will be a winter-spring campaign." It would be a continuation of the enemy's autumn campaign, which has been marked by periods of comparatively heavy attacks alternating with longer stretches of light activity.

In the past, the heaviest attacks have been made north-west of Saigon and have been staged from camps along the Cambodian border.

Vote Likely Today On Postal Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster Gen. Winton M. Blount and the postal unions carried their battle to the 11th hour in efforts to win the first congressional test of the administration's plan to set up a business-type postal system.

Blount reportedly personally visited wavering House Post Office Committee members on the eve of today's vote to secure their support for the plan while union officials applied pressure to vote it down.

The challenge to the corporate concept came from an alternate postal reform bill, favored by the unions, introduced by committee Chairman Thaddeus J. Dulski, D-N.Y.

The corporation would put the nation's mails under a board of directors who would be responsible for all business operations, including setting of postal rates subject to congressional veto.

More Businesslike

Dulski's plan would keep the Post Office Department intact and leave postal employees in civil service with wages set by Congress but would give the department more businesslike control over its operations.

The outcome of the vote was in doubt up to the start of today's session with the major issue the administration plan's labor-management provisions.

The unions had insisted on the right to strike, otherwise, they say they would be at the self-supporting, government-owned postal corporation's mercy.

Blount stood by the proposed corporation machinery for compulsory arbitration, in lieu of the right to strike, when major contract disputes had reached an impasse.

There were reports the unions might accept a compulsory arbitration provision but only if such arbitration was automatic for wage and benefit disputes.

Actor Hayden's Son Will Defend Self on Charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A son of actor Sterling Hayden is slated for trial in U.S. District Court Oct. 21 on charges he failed to report for a physical examination and for induction into the service.

Christian Winslow Hayden, 21, pleaded innocent Monday, saying he will defend himself.

Young Hayden, long-haired and bearded, said he will move for dismissal on grounds the charges are in violation of "domestic and international law, and religious and moral codes."

Young Hayden was acquitted by a federal judge last year of a charge of failing to report for induction. The court held that a local draft board committed procedural errors.

Haynsworth Deal

Judge Would Have Waited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge Harrison L. Winter of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals testified today he would have avoided a stock purchase made by his colleague, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. under the circumstances at the time.

However, Winter told the Senate Judiciary Committee that Haynsworth's purchase of $16,000 worth of Brunswick Corp. Stock on Dec. 20, 1967, had not in the slightest degree impaired his belief in his fellow jurist's integrity and ability.

Winter said the appellate court had decided a case in favor of Brunswick for closure of 100 yards inside the demilitarized zone and wounded three Americans at an artillery base near Gio Linh, at the eastern end of the zone. U.S. Marine artillery returned the fire, silencing the enemy guns, headquarters said.

U.S. Command reported that two of the three American helicopters shot down Monday during an infantry assault on the edge of the Que Son Valley south of Da Nang were destroyed, bringing the number of American helicopters reported lost in Vietnam to 3,042.

U.S. headquarters said there were 21 enemy rocket and mortar attacks between 8 a.m. Monday and 8 a.m. today. Eleven Americans were wounded but none were killed.

One mortar attack came from 100 yards inside the demilitarized zone and wounded three Americans at an artillery base near Gio Linh, at the eastern end of the zone. U.S. Marine artillery returned the fire, silencing the enemy guns, headquarters said.

Winter's nomination of Haynsworth, chief judge of the 4th Circuit Court, to fill a vacancy on the Supreme Court, was publicly announced a decision in favor of Brunswick Feb. 2, 1968.

But the Justice Department, in a letter to committee Chairman Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., supported Haynsworth last weekend with a letter saying the case had been "substantially decided" on Nov. 10, 1967.

The Justice Department letter said the case involved competitive liens on used bowling alley fixtures in Charleston, S.C., and it would not appear that the outcome "could conceivably have affected the market value of Brunswick stock."

All Transactions

After the letter was made public, Bayh asked Eastland to request a list of all of Haynsworth's stock transactions since his appointment to the federal court in 1967. Haynsworth previously disclosed his current stock holdings.

Bayh's administrative assistant, Robert Keefe, said the senator wanted to check on whether Haynsworth owned any Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad stock at the time that he sat on cases involving that firm.

Haynsworth testified last week he has disqualified himself in all cases in which "I have had a stock interest."

Standard Equipment by 1974

Aviation Industry Clams Gains In Collision Avoidance System

BALTIMORE (AP) — The aviation industry put on display today three sets of equipment designed to prevent catastrophic in-flight collisions between airplanes.

The Air Transportation Association, which sponsored the exhibit, said airlines hope to invest up to $70 million to make one of the systems standard equipment on planes before 1974.

The equipment consists of a digital computer to be carried in an airplane, transmitting and receiving equipment and an extremely accurate time-keeping device called an atomic clock.

According to manufacturers, the equipment is designed to keep tabs on all aircraft within a specific area, enabling each pilot to know the altitude, distance and rate of approach of all other planes near him.

Testing of the equipment is scheduled to end Dec. 31. The airlines then will decide which of the three systems should be put into general use.

The Air Transport Association sponsored an inspection of the equipment at Martin Airport near Baltimore where the Martin Marietta Corp. is conducting tests for the airlines under a $1.8 million contract.

"An active airline industry search for a suitable CAS (Collision Avoidance System) has been underway for 14 years," a statement prepared by the association said. "Ten of those years were marked by disappointment and a few false hopes."

"Then, three years ago, pessimism gave way to optimism."

The break came when Collins Radio of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, developed a workable technique, the association said. Currently, it said, "solid state electronic technology developed to the point where a practical CAS could be built."

bring the world closer together in a physical sense and in time."

Referring to the SST as a "massive stride forward in transportation," Nixon said it would bring Tokyo as close to Washington in travel time as London is now.

Volpe listed further reasons for the administration's favorable decision on the SST—the need to protect the U.S. balance of payments, the great impact on industry, employment the SST will provide and the necessity to compete with existing Russian, British, and French SST programs.

Tough Senate Battle

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., present during the announcement, predicted a tough Senate battle over the SST appropriation.

"It will be a real fight not unlike the battle over the ABM," said Jackson, one of the project's prime supporters.

Backers of the SST had called for $200 million to keep the project going full blast through next June 30.

Opponents of the project contend much of the $600 million the government already has put out for research and design study has been wasted. They say sonic booms would make it impossible to fly the plane over inhabited areas and that the federal funds are needed to solve other domestic problems.

It is estimated another $600 million in government funds will be required before the first of two prototypes of the Boeing Corp. produced 1,800-mile-per-hour aircraft can be flight tested in 1972.

The airplane, to carry 300 passengers, would be expected to go into commercial use in 1978.

The U.S. government has accepted Boeing's revised, fixed wing design and the company is ready to begin production this year.

Contact provisions provide the government would recover its investment after the sale of 300 planes. Boeing hopes to sell more than 500 SSTs by 1990, which would mean possibly a $1.1 billion royalty to the government.

U.S. efforts to build a big supersonic jet have been spurred by similar projects in the Soviet Union and by a British-French combine.

A Boeing official, complaining about the delay in the decision, said last month the sonic boom problem and other obstacles had been overstated.

Bob Withington, Boeing's SST program director, said the company had been working on the assumption the plane would be flown over land at subsonic speeds. And he said he thought the noise level for takeoffs and landings could be controlled.

"We have the technical know-how to do it," Withington said, "all we need now is the hardware."

Errors Found In Rollcalls mechanical equipment to modernize House operations.

One procedure used in his unit's inquiry, Price said, was to check the tallies as they appeared in the Congressional Record against confirmed absences of members from the city on indicated dates.

This result, he said, showed a 1.86 per cent error in quorum calls and a .28 per cent error in votes.

Other rollcalls were checked for other type errors, Price said, and discrepancies were found between the rollcall book and tally sheets, between the tally sheets and Congressional Record and disagreeing totals. Price said in many instances similarities of names appeared to be responsible for the discrepancies.

"While the percentage of error, especially with respect to 'yea' and 'nay' votes (which is approximately one fourth of 1 per cent), may be considered tolerable in many distributions, clearly the sensitivity of this problem demands that even that rate of error be removed if possible," Price said.

year's group includes 32 valedictorians and nine salutatorians, compared to 23 valedictorians and 12 salutatorians in 1968. An increase in the honor 10 per cent rank in high school graduating classes brought the women from 60 per cent last year to 62 per cent this year, and the men from 35 per cent last year to 42 per cent this year.

Students come from 33 states and the District of Columbia, as opposed to 35 states and the capital district in 1968. Seven foreign addresses are represented, equal to last year's number. Wisconsin, which traditionally supplies about one-third of the student body, is home to 147 new students. Numbers from other states include Illinois, 90; Minnesota, 28; Massachusetts, 23; Ohio, 13; Missouri, 12; and New York, 10. Other states are represented by fewer than 10.

Among the foreign addresses are France, England, Turkey, India, Ghana, Germany and Singapore. Each has provided one student, excepting India with three, and Turkey with two.

Kin of Alumni

Fifty nine of the new students have had relatives on Lawrence alumni rolls, 11 fewer than last year. Eight were preceded at the university by both parents, and 16 have one alumnus parent. Three others list alumnae of Milwaukee-Dowmer College among their families. Downer and Lawrence College merged in 1964 to become Lawrence University.

Two freshmen have extensive Lawrence heritages. Francis Hill Siekman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Siekman, Appleton, represents the fourth generation of her family at Lawrence. Randall A. Wiley, grandson of the late Sen. Alexander Wiley Jr., is the 10th member of his family to attend the university. Wiley is from Chippewa Falls.

Freshmen who have had both parents precede them are Mark Bauer, Neenah; Ramsey Forbush, Falls Church, Va.; Sarah Gaedke, Milwaukee; William Humlekier, Fond du Lac; Kristen Johnson, Appleton; Katherine Miller, Appleton; Jonathan Mook, Oshkosh; and Robert Viel, Brookfield.

Thirty five of the new students are children of educators, either at the secondary or college level. Their parents represent such institutions of higher learning as The Institute of Paper Chemistry and Virginia Polytechnic Institute; the universities of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Chicago; Ohio Wesleyan, Boston, DePauw, Northern Illinois and Bowling Green State universities; Robert Carleton and Coe colleges; and Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh.

Town of Menasha Seeks Solution to Water Problems

Town of Menasha officials have asked to meet with Appleton Water Department representatives to decide what to do about 27 city households that share water mains with town residents who plan to disconnect.

Robert L. Jacobs, town clerk and secretary of Sanitary District No. 4, explained that town residents in the former Sanitary District No. 2 area will shift from city to town water service on Oct. 1.

The District 2 residents have voted to consolidate with the larger District 4, explained Jacobs.

"The sanitary district commission desires to meet with the proper officials from the city of Appleton to resolve the question of water service to the 27 homes in the city of Appleton presently being serviced from the water mains in the area," he said.

He asked Water Department officials to set a meeting "at your convenience, as soon as possible."

raising about $4.2 million annually.

The Republican leader said the state had other bonding priorities which at the moment were more important than the outdoor recreation program. These included pollution abatement, bridges and highways.

However, Alfonsi added these other programs also are important to the state's billion dollar tourist industry. Tourism does not affect just one area, Alfonsi said.

Improved Highways

He cited, as an example, that improved highways in the southern part of the state aid the tourist industry in the northern part of the state.

Alfonsi said he also would push for a change in the present method of spending state outdoor recreation funds. About 80 per cent of these monies goes for land acquisition and 20 per cent for development.

He said he would like to see the ratio closer to 50-50. "Land that is not developed cannot help a community," he said.

Vote Is Split About Licenses

chairman, earlier declared himself opposed to the proposal, explaining he had signed it only to bring it into discussion. Polzin, a member of Kalata's committee, voted alone in favor of the measure.

"I suppose I'm one of those flag wavers," he said, "but I never felt decency was such a bad thing to wave the flag for."

Opposing the resolution were Alds. Glenn Thompson (13th) and Arthur Hollihan (11th). Kalata, as chairman, didn't vote, though he said with charges pending in local courts against book dealers, he believes it would be "inappropriate" to adopt a new ordinance on the subject.

Nothing Wrong

Polzin warned that, though he believed it untrue, committee members might give the impressions that they see nothing wrong with pronography if they voted to reject the resolution.

City Atty. David Geenan observed that the ordinance the city now has against selling obscene matter to minors is the only such law that has been upheld when tested before the Supreme Court. "As far as I know, all of the (book store) owners are respecting this ordinance," said Geenan, suggesting that "This may be as far as you want to go" in imposing restrictions.

Health Report

—The committee passed over requests for a bowling alley license and combination Class "B" liquor and beer licenses for the Super Bowl, E. Northland Avenue and Ballard Road, for lack of recommendations from the health department which reported facilities to be inspected were incomplete.

The committee was told the bowling alley plans to open Oct. 1, the night the council would meet to act on the licenses, possibly complicating the opening plans.

—Bills from the welfare department for administration and assistance were approved with the comment that, unlike previous meetings, none of the bills carried red-penciled objections from Mayor George Buckley.

The stage may have been set for another in the series of rows between Buckley and Welfare Director Merton C. Ehrlicke, however, when the committee approved his request for special permission to attend a state welfare conference in Milwaukee to discuss recent changes in state welfare programs. The mayor cut all travel expenses from the department's budget when it was set last year.

buying it well in advance of the time development began.

Other recommendations include continuation of the park school concept in setting aside land for future neighborhood parks, with school grounds and parks sharing sites. Sites of 10 to 20 acres each are suggested under this concept. Two neighborhood parks on the south side, one in the southwest, two on the east and three in the northwest are urged.

Besides Langedyke, three other community parks averaging 100 acres each are suggested in the northwest area near Lynndale Avenue and Ballard Road; the southwest along the Fox River near Strobe's Island, and the South on city-owned land near Hoover School.

In addition, the report favors development of the Center minimum of 400 acres, the Swamp area as a regional park.

Milhaupt contended this would require 636 parking stalls and create congestion. He suggested this would create too great a concentration of people in the area, which is not too far from another apartment complex.

Milhaupt said he represented the "people close to the area who are concerned about it."

Petitioners must be within a certain distance of the area and Appleton East is within this distance.

Ald. John Steidl (18th), chairman of the city council school advisory committee, said the city planning commission heard the rezoning request but took no action on it.

Create the Funniest Face,
You Can Win First Place!

BY CAPPY DICK
Boys and girls! Make a funny face and you may become the winner of a junior printing outfit, the Superior Flash Printing Plant made especially for boys and girls by the Superior Marking Equipment Company.

Use the face and eyes in the adjoining picture. Clip them out, paste the face on a piece of paper, paste the eyes on the face to make it look as funny as possible, then print your name, age, address and Zip number beneath it.

Decorate your contest entry in any neat, original way with paints, crayons or cutouts. Finally address it to Cappy girl whose contest entry is judged to be one of the 5 funniest, neatest and most original received from young readers of this newspaper. Local prize-winning entries from all cities, including Fox Cities, will then be considered by the contest judges in their search for the five best of all.

The printing outfit include an all-metal rotary-style printing press, many pieces of rubber type, type holders, tweezers, ink supplies, paper supplies and instructions for operating the press.

The prizes will be delivered by mail to the winners after their names have been announced here. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property and none can be returned.

Man Is Jailed For Disrupting Union Meeting

Ronald Skenandore
Also Did Damage To Automobile

A 28-year-old Appleton man who broke up a union meeting Sept. 15, was sentenced to 60 days in the Outagamie County Jail Monday.

Ronald P. Skenandore, 122½ S. Walnut St., pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct and doing damage to a car.

Appleton police said Skenandore burst into a meeting at the Appleton Labor Temple, 527 N. Appleton St., about 6 p.m. Sept. 15. Skenandore shouted profanities and starting throwing objects that police later learned he took from a car in the parking lot.

The car, owned by Richard Patterson, Sheboygan, sustained damage totaling less than $100, police said. Skenandore took several items from the auto.

A union official chased Skenandore from the hall and held him until police arrived. Skenandore had to be handcuffed after he struggled with police. The Appleton man told the court he had been drinking. He said he had been arrested several times in the past for similar offenses. Schaefer conferred with a state probation and parole agent before sentencing.

Shortly after Skenandore was taken to the county jail, on Sept. 15, he fell from a cell bunk and was injured. He was hospitalized until Monday morning.

$17,000 Toilet Building Under Construction at High Cliff State Park

SHERWOOD — A combination flush toilet building is under construction at the upper level of High Cliff State Park. The new facilities will serve the picnic area near Chief Redbird statue.

Gressl Construction Inc., Appleton, is the general contractor for the work costing about $17,000. Construction is expected to be completed by November.

Rural Seymour Woman Injured in Accident

Wendy Tyrell, 17, route 1, Seymour, was taken by ambulance to St. Vincent Hospital, Green Bay, after the car she was in was involved in an accident early Sunday at Outagamie County Trunk A and State 47, four miles south of Black Creek.

Miss Tyrell, who suffered a back injury, was in a car driven by Joseph F. Linsmeyer, 19, 1968 auto.

Lawyer Named at County's Expense

An attorney was appointed, at county expense, Monday for John Belfort, 27, 203½ W. College Ave., who is charged with burglarizing the Appleton Vocational School Saturday evening.

After naming attorney Vernon Lubinsky, Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer set bond at $1,500 and continued the case to this afternoon.

School employees caught Belfort in the building about 7 p.m. and held him until police arrived.

12th Robbery Fatal To Seattle Grocer

SEATTLE (AP) — During 23 years, holdup men robbed or tried to rob grocer Alfred Hathon 11 times.

Monday was the 12th time. The body of the 77-year-old Hathon was found in the doorway of his neighborhood store. He'd been stabbed under the chin. A paring knife was found on the floor beside the emptied cash register.

2 Detained for Cycle Thefts

Teen-Agers Alleged To Have Taken Two Parked Motorcycles

Two teen-age boys are in juvenile detention in the Outagamie County jail in connection with the thefts of two motorcycles in Appleton.

Juvenile aid bureau detectives said the boys, 13 and 16 years old, stole a motorcycle Sept. 15 from the James Jawort home, 2319 N. Racine St. Shortly after stealing the cycle, the boys accidentally ran it into the rear of an Appleton Police Department squad car. The boys, one of whom reportedly suffered a leg injury, fled, leaving the cycle behind.

The youths were apprehended after they stole a cycle from behind an E. Wisconsin Avenue supper club late Sunday night. The cycle, owned by Jacob Verrier, 1538 E. Pauline St., was recovered.

Police said both youths have past juvenile records. A Hilbert youth also was involved in the theft of the cycle Sunday night, but he is not being held, police said.

The youths also are suspected of stealing a motorcycle helmet and sunglasses from the William Deltgen home on N. Ullman Street.

BY TV SCOUT
8-9:45 Channel 11-9 - Walter Matthau and Robert Morse teamed up for a funny romp in a film titled "A Guide For the Married Man," on The Wednesday Night Movie. Matthau is a happily married (14 years) man and Morse is his swinging buddy, trying to convince him that a little philandering is good for a marriage. Lucille Ball, Phil Silvers, Jack Benny, Terry-Thomas and a dozen other top names all appear in vignettes.

7:30-8 Channel 11-9 - Teacher Alice Johnson (Karen Valentine) is faced with a dilemma on Room 222. She uses her assignment as faculty advisor for the Junior Class Follies to get an introverted student out of her shell. The lonely little girl then shocks Miss Johnson with her conception of a smashing finale.

8-9 Channel 5 - The Kraft Music Hall goes country-western again, with Eddy Arnold returning as host. His guests are Bobbie Gentry, Browning Bryant, Bernadette Peters and Phil Harris. It's not all C&W, with Miss Peters, a star of off-Broadway's "Dames At Sea," teaming with Arnold and Harris in comedy and song, including "We Saw the Sea."

6:30-7:30 Channel 2-7 - The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour comes swinging back for its second season with Tom and Dick Smothers, Barbara McNair and folk singer John Stewart guesting. Features include Stewart soloing his recording of "Armstrong" and joining Campbell with "Mother Country." Beside a comedy routine on unlicensed performers, the Smothers and Campbell do a medley of bittersweet old-time tunes.

9-10 Channel 5 - Keenen Wynn does a good character study of a man facing an old devil on... Then Came Bronson. His devil is a racing motorcycle he has hidden away for 20 years after promising his wife he'd never ride again. When Bronson comes by, stopping to repair his own bike, the older man takes his out and the mental battle begins.

6:30-8 Channel 5 - The Virginian gets into the blindness act tonight. He is blinded after falling from his horse. When he gets on his feet he gropes about the countryside, falling into a river and panicking at the sound of a rattlesnake.

7:30-8 Channel 2-7 - The Beverly Hillsbillies kicks off its eighth season with a story that has the family split and, as usual, Granny is in the middle. She has decided they will move back to the hills to get Ely Mae a hillbilly husband.

Six Broadway Shows Coming to Milwaukee

Marcus Theatres Bringing Pearl Bailey In 'Hello, Dolly' Others to New Center

Jingo has received some happy news from the office of Ben D. Marcus, president of the Marcus Theatres Management Company. It's all about top-flight, Broadway plays and musicals he's bringing to Milwaukee.

Not only will theater fans get a chance to hear and see such greats as Pearl Bailey in "Hello Dolly," Darryl Hickman in "George M.," "Canterbury Tales," "Man of La Mancha" and others equally as famous, but they'll be seen in the new Performing Arts Center in Uihlein Hall.

The dates have been set for six shows with "Man of La Mancha" optional. This is a requested repeat performance. Mail orders for the series are available now at the Marcus Theatres subscription office, 537 W. Wisconsin Ave., Milwaukee. Playing dates and the shows are as follows:

"George M.," starring Darryl Hickman, Oct. 21 through 26. "Canterbury Tales," Oct. 27 through Nov. 1. "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead," Dec. 29 through Jan. 3, 1970.

"Canterbury Tales," Jan. 26 through Jan. 31, 1970. "Plaza Suite," March 3 through March 8, 1970. "Hello Dolly," starring Pearl Bailey, May 19 through May 24, 1970.

In addition to the Broadway shows at the Performing Arts Center, the word is that more and different shows will be staged at both the Pabst and Palace Theaters when conflicting dates prevent the use of the new Center.

Your Money's Worth Smart Buyers Take a Look at the Calendar

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Our friend, Everett, was the envy of our little country town when he pulled into the garage this past weekend to buy gas for his new gold-colored 1969 Cadillac — and not just because it is an elegant-appearing car. Rather, it's because Everett has bought one of 1969's biggest bargains and all of us know it.

What's more, Everett commands our admiration because he is using his head to beat the surging cost of living and doing it with grace. You too can do this simply by shopping for seasonal bargains. You too can more than offset the current annual rate of rise in living costs just by strategic timing of your purchases of major items.

By this strategy alone, you can achieve an average overall saving of at least 10 per cent. of all your big-ticket items and that's a lot bigger than this year's 5 to 6 per cent rise in overall living costs. By this move, you can achieve savings as high as 25 to 30 per cent on many individual items.

To be specific, if you are also in the market for a new car, now is the time to buy a 1969 model.

Art & Frame Fair

and... SAVE UP TO 50% ON FRAMES!

Available in standard sizes and widths, these handsomely finished decorator frames will grow more beautiful over the years. Purchase as many as you want any time during this exciting Art & Frame Fair.

What's more, Everett commands our admiration because he is using his head to beat the surging cost of living and doing it with grace. You too can do this simply by shopping for seasonal bargains. You too can more than offset the current annual rate of rise in living costs just by strategic timing of your purchases of major items.

Or if you plan to install central or room air conditioning in your home, this is the time to start shopping. You'll probably find the lowest prices in December-January — but off-season for air conditioners has now begun. And off-season can easily mean savings of 10 to 20 per cent.

What else might you buy — TV sets and small appliances (but NOT clothes washers and dryers) before the new models are introduced in October;

— Snow tires before the peak winter prices are posted;

— Men's suits, particularly if they are on sale and before the expected price boosts of $5 to $10 or more on the new styles;

— And this being the harvest season, many perishable fruits and vegetables — ranging from cabbage to potatoes, onions, apples, squash, tomatoes — but not including eggs, beef, bacon and oranges which reach peak prices between September and November.

When to Buy

Here's a calendar which will guide you when you're in the market for the following products.

A used car: the best months usually are in the winter;

A fur coat: sweltering August when the furriers traditionally offer bargains or January, when spring and cruise clothes are on display;

Back-to-school clothes: August.

Linens: August or January.

Furniture and small appliances: Also August or January.

Storm windows: January, February or early March, for most storm windows today are made of aluminum, are a combination of storms and screens and thus are in their biggest selling season in April-June.

Fall clothes: August.

Winter clothes: January and February.

Garden and spring cleaning supplies: March and April.

Christmas gifts: But, of course, anytime but. (Copyright 1969)

'You're Fired'

Board Chairmen
Have Many Ways
To Oust President

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — You see the statements in the newspapers from time to time: The corporation president suddenly announces his resignation "to pursue personal interests." Is it true? Maybe. But it could mean he was fired.

Outright firings are always nasty affairs, especially when they involve high executives and are attended by heated emotions, charges and countercharges and even law suits. Firings are considered crude today.

Elaborate plans therefore are made to hide the true facts from the kibitzers—that growing population of stockholders, financial analysts, mutual funds and big stockholders. But the techniques are apparent.

After having spent two decades psychoanalyzing the corporation, Dr. Eugene Jennings, a university professor and professional kibitzer—he gets paid handsome fees for advising corporations—has detailed some techniques for firing the president.

Hidden in Background
None of the techniques refers to any specific individual or firing, but you can bet that in many instances something of the sort was hidden in the background.

The first technique is mush-rooming. The chairman gives the president lots of challenging jobs. This technique is especially useful if the executive is hungry, meaning very eager to please. A hungry executive is insecure.

Eventually the jobs accumulate until he is incapable of handling them all. He makes a serious error. No matter that he handled 98 per cent of the jobs well; he failed on 2 per cent, and that's enough to nail him.

Usurps Authority
Sometimes a curious twist occurs in which the insecure president participates in his own demise. In his effort to please he sometimes usurps authority—even if he can't effectively use that authority.

Having taken on more than he can handle, he begins delegating, and eventually he delegates a job to what Jennings calls the president's "intimate enemy," a man having no love for the president and perhaps even envious of him.

The intimate enemy does just enough to escape scrutiny, but not enough to be effective. He is a presidential saboteur, but he has power. He has support from other executives. And power, which is won, defeats authority, which is assigned.

Loses His Cool
Realizing that things aren't going well, the president loses his cool and orders the intimate enemy: "Do things as I say or get out." The powerful intimate enemy refuses. The matter goes to the chairman.

"I'm sorry Mr. President, but things haven't worked out as we expected," says the chairman, who prefers the loss of the president to the resignations of a dozen executive friends of the powerful intimate enemy.

Another technique: Detail the president out of the job. Keep him out of the office on assignments so often he doesn't know what's going on. Then ask him for a proposal. He won't be able to come up with it. He catches on. He quits.

A third technique: Expand his team. Turn the president's office into The Office of the President. Assign him three advisers—who report directly to the chairman. Dilute his powers. If he doesn't kick, kick him up to a powerless job.

Jennings hastens to explain that all executive changes are not maneuvers to do a man in. Some vice chairmen have little power despite their big titles. Others have enormous responsibilities.

And some presidents find their offices turned into The Office of the President not in an effort by the chairman to dilute the president's power but simply because the job is too big for one man.

Power vs. Authority
Essential to the effectiveness of any maneuver to displace the president is the matter of power versus authority. A president may have been assigned much authority in the company but have no power.

Power, Jennings notes, is something acquired, something earned, something developed by an individual's personality and accomplishments, generally over a prolonged period. Authority, which is given, is no match for it.

These two ingredients generally ignite the executive suite explosion that is muffled from the public and announced in the blandest language as a resignation for personal reasons. "Fired," is never used.

Three ways to brighten a carried lunch are these tangy, crisp relishes packed in small containers. Start with Fresh Tomato Relish, its flavor zesty with chopped dill pickles. Next, switch to Spicy Carrot Relish with sweet mixed pickles. Finally, make a real quickie, good for supper, too, by simply mixing canned corn and burger relish.

Three lunch bag menus, nutritious and well balanced meals, are shown above. There's the hearty meat, cheese and pickle combination in a sesame bun, lower left, teamed with grapes. At the right, chicken for finger eating goes with brown bread-cream cheese sandwiches and an apple. Upper left, a sandwich, salad, fruit and cookies make the menu.

Food for Totin' in Lunch Box Or Little Brown Paper Bag

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR
by Lillian Mackesy

Would you believe that a staggering 168 million lunches are carried from home to work, school and office every week in the United States? And that the number of toters . . . estimated at 20 million people . . . is increasing?

This is what a recent survey shows and it's completely believable when one thinks in terms of school children from the primary set right through high school, the men in the mills and factories, and the ever increasing number of office workers who have joined the "little brown paper bag" group of lunch toters. The boss, the teacher, the worker, the stenographer, student and clerk all are part of the crowd.

Interesting statistics show that in industry and business, about 98 million lunches are toted from home to work each week, with men wage earners making up the bulk of the lunch box contingent. Nearly one in every four students carry lunches to school on a regular basis, accounting for a weekly total of 70 million lunches per week.

Researchers also have found that most of these 168 million lunches are built around sandwiches, and many also include a vacuum container of hot soup. Hearty salads also are popular as is fresh fruit on the side.

Statistics on tastes bring out these facts: Adults prefer sandwich fillings of eggs, bologna, ham, canned tuna and cheese, although there still are devotees to special fillings such as peanut butter and jelly or salami and mustard, even baked bean and fried egg sandwiches.

Peanut butter figures more in children's lunch boxes as a popular item along with bologna, ham, cheese, jam and jellies. With all the canned soups available today, it's a simple matter for a mother and wife to send condensed soup favorites with husband and children. It's also possible to experiment a little and make personally liked combinations such as chicken with rice or stars with cream of mushroom soup. (These soups, of course, make wonderful noon lunches at home, too, because they are easy to prepare and easy to eat along with a sandwich or salad made ahead of time and stashed away in the refrigerator.)

Although the sandwich still remains the mainstay of carried lunches, the wide variety of vacuum bottles and other lunch containers makes it possible to carry soups, chili, baked beans and other main dishes along with salads and fruit.

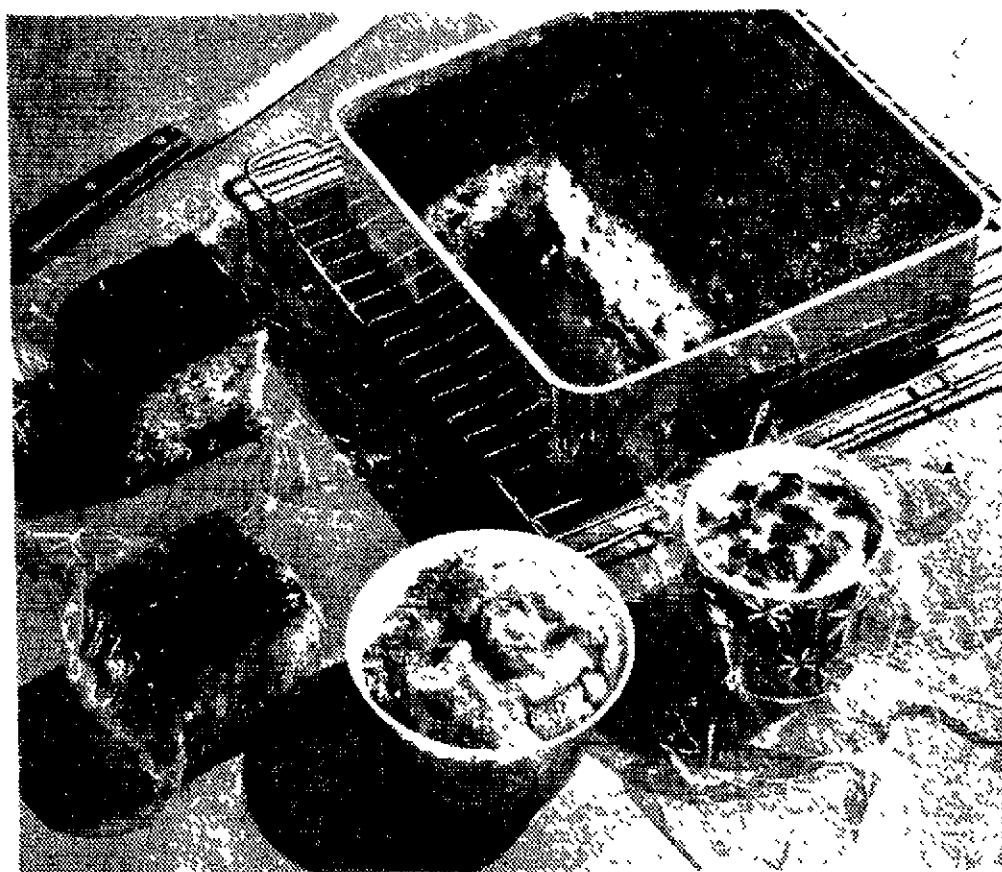

There's one thing to remember about children's lunches. Just providing a nutritious meal does not guarantee the child will eat it. Attractive packaging helps and, in case of swapping, it also serves a purpose when clear plastic film is used for packaging. See-at-a-glance technique, it's called.

Lettuce, tomatoes or pickles will stay crisper if wrapped separately in the plastic film wrap and then inserted in the sandwich at mealtime. Some adults bag-wrap sandwich ingredients, such as buttered bread, filling, lettuce and tomato slices, separately and "build" the sandwiches at lunch time.

With a little advance planning, a carried lunch can be nutritionally well-balanced, colorful and tasty. Sack meals should be kept in a cool place to protect the perishable foods. If a refrigerator is not handy, freeze the sandwiches and cooked meats before packing. As the frozen food thaws, it will help keep vegetable relishes and fresh fruits refreshingly cool. Also, if vacuum bottles or insulated containers are used, they may be refrigerated until packing time to help keep the lunch fresh.

The following recipes include three popular relishes, three menus that make for hearty

Many simple, easy-to-make desserts are overlooked as lunchbox foods. These will serve as luncheon desserts at home as well, but they must be packed in a suitable container if they go to school or work. Packaged or canned puddings can be made different and delicious by adding fresh or canned fruits, or crushed chocolate molasses chips. The cake is an easy but excellent Orange Dessert Cake, baked in a square pan.

eating and a recipe for sugar cookies and some wonderful ideas on how to dress up either packaged, canned or instant puddings to make excellent desserts

FRESH TOMATO RELISH

1 medium tomato, peeled and diced
¼ cup chopped dill pickle
1 tablespoon salad oil
½ teaspoon oregano
1 small onion, sliced
1 tablespoon dill pickle liquid
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix together all ingredients. Chill. For lunch box, pack in small insulated container for salads. Recipe makes one cup.

SPICY CARROT RELISH

½ cup grated carrot
2 tablespoons seedless raisins
¼ cup chopped sweet mixed pickles
2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Mix all ingredients together and chill. For lunch box, pack in small insulated container for salads. Recipe makes one cup.

QUICK CORN RELISH

1 can (12 ounces) corn, drained

¾ cup hamburger relish (about)

Mix together corn and relish. Chill. For lunchbox, pack in small insulated container for salads. Recipe makes two cups.

MENU 1

A sesame seed sandwich bun filled with slices of delicately flavored bologna layered with slices of sharp Cheddar cheese makes a hearty sandwich. Several slivers of dill pickles add a tangy touch to the sandwich. Fall grapes, white or red, are fine finger fruits for the carried lunch.

MENU 2

Fried chicken is especially packable. It can be cooked and frozen for carrying. Brown bread sandwiches with a cream cheese and chopped nut filling plus a crisp apple are a good combination with the chicken. Chicken is fun to eat with the fingers so no knife and fork are needed.

MENU 3

Cold roast pork thinly sliced and arranged on rye bread brings new variety to the lunch bag.

Succoth Jewish Thanksgiving

Every year, Americans of Jewish faith celebrate two joyous Thanksgiving Days. One is the national holiday that dates back to the Pilgrims. The other, which falls this year on Sept. 27, is Succoth, Feast of the Tabernacles, which commemorates the Exodus.

There are many striking similarities between these two holidays, along with a few differences. Most important, they are almost identical in origin and significance.

Both Pilgrims and Jews had fled religious persecution. As they strove to reach the Land of Promise — America in one case, Palestine in the other — they suffered great privation. So when they gathered their first harvest in freedom, they paused for a feast, to rejoice in their good fortune and to thank God for his bounty.

For both groups, the plentitude of vegetables, fruits and nuts of the season became the basis of the feast, and the meal was enjoyed under the heavens.

Thanksgiving Dinner is rarely served out of doors these days, but some Jewish families still build Succahs, open to the sky, in which they eat and even sleep during the holiday week. These shelters made of tree branches and festooned with fruits and vegetables are a reminder of the fact that the Jews fleeing from Egypt carried tree branches into the desert so that they could build sanctuaries, or Tabernacles, to house the Holy Scrolls wherever they stopped. Many American Jews build model, miniature tabernacles or Succahs to commemorate the occasion.

While the Thanksgiving menu has become traditional and fairly routine, Succoth calls for a wide variety of dishes. Among them are krep-lach (small dough pockets), noodle puddings, strudels, halishkes (stuffed cabbage rolls), and by extension, numerous hearty dishes made with harvest fruits and vegetables.

The cabbage leaves, rolled with a stuffing of meat and rice, and cooked in a rich, sweet-and-sour sauce, appear on the menu in every Jewish household during Succoth (and often during the rest of the year, as well). In a favorite version the sauce includes prunes — now Sunsweet's new Pitted Prunes, which make this old-fashioned dish even easier and quicker to serve. No pitting required, and no soaking — the old-fashioned specialty can be prepared with modern ease.

STUFFED CABBAGE ROLLS

(Halishkes)

1 large head cabbage
Sliced onion
2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce
2 sauce cans water
1½ pounds chopped chuck
1 onion, chopped
¾ cup raw rice
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup water
3 tablespoons lemon juice

3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 pkg. (12 oz.) pitted prunes

Carefully remove 12 large leaves from a head of cabbage. Slice away some of the thickest part of the center rib, to make the leaves uniformly thin. Pour boiling water over the leaves and let them stand until they are flexible and bend easily. Shred the rest of the cabbage finely.

Heat a heavy pan or Dutch oven. Brown a sliced onion in a little fat. If you have a few beef bones (short-ribs are very good) brown them with the onion. Add the shredded cabbage, tomato sauce and water: cook all together while you prepare the cabbage rolls.

Mix the chuck, onion, rice salt and pepper. Add ½ cup water.

Put heaping tablespoon of meat on each softened cabbage leaf. Roll up, tucking in the sides. Secure with thread, or tuck in the end. Lay the rolls in the pan, seam side down. Cover and cook about Cheese 105 Years Old?

MADISON (AP)—A crock of cheese that lay at the bottom of Green Bay for 105 years—but apparently still is edible—will be on display Oct. 3-8 at the 1969 World Dairy Expo in Madison.

The cheese was found aboard the wooden schooner hauled from 110 feet of water this summer. The ship tentatively has been identified as the Alvin Clark which sank June 29, 1864. She was hauled up to the surface July 29.

Dr. Norman Olson, a member of the food science staff at the University of Wisconsin said the cheese was believed to be the oldest in the world. He said his staff was seeking to determine if it still could be eaten.

James Quinn, director of the Neville Public Museum at Green Bay, a member of the crew that raised the ship, spotted the crock in the galley.

Quinn said the cheese "had a good cheese aroma and looked good enough to eat."

Olson said the oldest previous cheese he had heard of was found in an abandoned cheese plant in Sweden.

It was estimated to be 37 years old.

Well Cooled

He said cheddar cheese normally is aged for one year and some low-moisture cheese are aged for a few years longer.

Quinn said the good preservation of the Green Bay cheese may have been because at 110 feet, the water temperature is constant at between 36 and 40 degrees.

Racine Teen-Agers Prefer Steady Dating

By The Racine Journal-Times
RACINE (AP)—Teen-agers in Racine seem to prefer dating one person consistently—if for no other reason than for necessity.

"I would much rather date someone consistently," says Mary Sue Terselic, a sophomore at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside. "It provides good friendship, and it provides a sense of security by taking the strain off the people, allowing them to be more themselves and be at ease. It also eliminates strained, boring, and pointless conversations. It makes reading 'A Girl's Guide to Conservation, What to Say to Your Date,' and the 'NFL Football Handbook' unnecessary."

"I generally date one person consistently," said Joseph Lipari, a sophomore at Lawrence University. "however, I would prefer going out with many."

Julie Kirkegaard, a sophomore at La Crosse State, said she usually plays the field. "I prefer this," she said, "at least until I find that someone special."

Encounter Opposition

Most of the young persons polled felt that their tendency toward steady dating was the only real source of parental objection.

"Sometimes I encounter some slight opposition from my mother towards dating one girl consistently," said Dennis Phillips of Platteville State. "I believe she doesn't want me to get serious with any one girl."

William Novak of the University of Wisconsin said his parents rarely object to his dating, but when they do "it's mostly the 'we don't think you should be seeing so much of her' type."

While criticism from one's own parents may be expected, Robert Langdon, a sophomore at the UW Parkside campus, said objections from the date's parents are infrequent.

"A guy usually doesn't have much opposition from his date's parents these days if he has a hair cut and a shave," he explained.

Of about 20 Racine youths polled, most agreed that going to movies was the favorite pastime. Dances came in a close second. Parties and plays were about equally popular. Concerts and study dates got a few votes, with many students reporting they go to restaurants or drive-ins afterward.

The cheapest dates were study dates and parties. Movies averaged $4 or $5, according to the young persons. The overall average cost of a date was $6, and most students claimed they got the money from their own jobs.

Girl Gets Choice

None of the boys questioned said he decided where the date would be without asking the girl about it.

"Usually dates are influenced by what my date or I feel like doing at the time," said Dennis Davies of the Parkside campus. "I like to feel that I'm never forcing a date to do something she's not interested in."

"I like to find someplace to go that is mutually agreed upon," said Michael Hill, of Oshkosh State. "I usually ask the girl what she would like to do."

Phillips said, "I generally make suggestions to my date of places to go that would be enjoyable for both of us. I let her make the final decision or make other suggestions. It is mainly her choice."

Though opinions were divided on the subject, most of the teenagers indicated they preferred informal dates, provided one knows his companion well.

"I would like the majority of dates to be informal," said Miss Kirkegaard. "In an informal date, the entire atmosphere is more casual and relaxing."

"Structured dates are the best," said Langdon, "unless you've been dating one person for a while. I would feel awkward on an informal date if it were only the second or third date."

Depends on Date

"Where I go depends upon the girl," Phillips said. "If it's a first date or if I don't know the girl too well, then I prefer structured dates. If I know the girl pretty well, then I don't mind informal dates."

Most of the students reported dating two times a week, on the average, and usually on Friday or Saturday nights. Many said they dated once a week or twice a month. Some said they dated as often as three or four times a week and several indicated they got together informally during the week with other students between dates.

As for meeting dates, it seems to be no problem.

Novak said, "I meet girls in classes, cafeteria lines, registration lines, class change lines, ticket lines, or buying cigarettes at a drug store."

Lipari said, "At college, you meet your dates through classes, at the union, or through some of your friends. The latter is none too reliable."

Sally Hand, a sophomore at Wisconsin, takes the direct approach.

She said, "I like meeting people by walking up to them and saying, 'Hi, I'm Sally.'"

Marketing Memo Hard Shell Squash One Of Current Plentifuls

Hard shell squash are of good quality this season because of early summer rains and dry fall days. Standard varieties, Butternut, Buttercup and Acorn, are plentiful and will be reasonably priced, according to Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

The Hubbard variety is less marketed because of its large size, but may be sold in pieces.

When selecting squash, look for those that are heavy for their size and show no signs of bruising and decay. Mature, quality squash may be stored in a cool, dry, well-ventilated area for a month or more.

Commercial, with No. 1's most common in the stores.

For more information on potato varieties and uses, send for the leaflet, "Your Guide to Selecting Fresh Wisconsin Potatoes," Consumer Marketing Specialist, 148 Home Economics Building, Madison, Wis., 53706.

Vegetable Buys

Good buys in vegetables include onions, cauliflower, broccoli, tomatoes, carrots, peppers, cucumbers and lettuce. Local supplies are dwindling so expect prices to go higher as these items begin to come from distant producers.

Concord grapes are available only a few weeks at this time of year. Supplies are small, so prices are not at bargain levels.

With Western supplies of grapefruit over now, the Florida grapefruit harvest is just beginning and the outlook for this season is good. California Valencia oranges are in good supply but Florida varieties will not appear on the market until later this season.

Best fruit buys include pears, apples, peaches, grapes and melons.

Although meat prices have been rising sharply, consumers are eating as much or more per person than one year ago. Meals including pork chops and steaks, loin roasts and shoulder roasts are a good idea as stores will be featuring these cuts.

Good buys in beef continue to be chuck, ground beef and liver.

Sumptuous Tailgate Picnic Menu One Fine Idea in 'Guide to Entertaining'

Whether you've loaded the car for a day's outing at a Packer game, or a tour of the local zoo or High Cliff State park, a happy ending or beginning to the festivities is the tailgate picnic.

Better Homes and Gardens new "Guide to Entertaining" suggests you "sound the horn instead of the dinner bell and let guests help themselves to a mobile menu."

Precooked dishes that need only be reheated, on a portable grill and refrigerated foods that can be kept cool and crisp are perfect ingredients for a transportable picnic.

Country-style Barbecue Ribs precooked by gentle simmering, cooled, then reheated; Caraway Skillet Slaw tossed with hot bacon dressing just before serving; Quick Poppy-onion Loaf made from refrigerated dinner rolls; and Chocolate Daisy Cupcakes. Other all-time picnic favorites for extras are a pot of baked beans to reheat while ribs are heating, chilled relishes and hot coffee. To save grill space bring along flame-heated chafing dishes and vacuum containers.

Plan preparation so that foods can be served at their tastiest temperatures and bring along sturdy disposable eating equipment. For comfort camp stools or lawn chairs may be taken along for the ride, too.

MANY PARTY IDEAS
The Tailgate Picnic menu is only one of many party ideas and recipes in the Better Homes and Gardens new idea book. As its name implies — "Guide to Entertaining" — it does just that, offering 192 pages of ideas.

It's not a recipe, menu, nor an idea book alone but a combination of all three, deftly arranged to make it practical, fun to read and more fun to carry out. The party ideas range all the way from themes with proper decorations to exact etiquette. It has 40 pages of recipes; it also has a wine chart and a magnificent collection of basic and interesting punch and cocktail recipes.

But back to the tailgate picnic, so suitable for this beautiful autumn weather and the football season now in full swing.

CARAWAY SKILLET SLAW
4 slices bacon
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
4 cups shredded cabbage (about ½ medium head)
1 teaspoon caraway seed
Cherry tomatoes

In skillet, cook bacon till crisp. Remove bacon, drain and crumble. Measure ¼ cup bacon drippings — return to skillet. Add vinegar, onion, brown sugar, and salt. Pack to carry. Heat through on location. Add cabbage and caraway seed to skillet. Toss mixture lightly. Top with bacon. If desired, garnish with cherry tomatoes. Recipe makes 6 servings.

There's nothing more fun in pleasant fall weather than to roam the countryside by car and picnic on the way. The menu for a wonderful outing of this sort, is shown above. There are country-style ribs heating on the grill, coffee at hand and on the tailgate a skillet full of Caraway Slaw, a pot of beans, crusty bread and homemade Chocolate Daisy Cupcakes. The menu is one of many in the new "Guide to Entertaining" and the secret of success is precooked dishes that take to reheating.

COUNTRY-STYLE RIBS
4 pounds country-style ribs, cut in serving size pieces
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ cup catsup
½ cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed
Dash bottled hot pepper sauce
3 thin lemon slices
¼ teaspoon salt
Simmer ribs, covered, in salted water to cover till nearly tender, about 1 hour. Meanwhile, prepare barbecue sauce: In the saucepan, melt butter or margarine; add garlic and cook 4 to 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients, bring to boiling. Drain and chill or carry to site hot. Grill over medium coals about 11 minutes on each side brushing with sauce until well coated. Recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

If ribs are chilled before grilling, cook 15 to 18 minutes on each side.

CHOCOLATE DAISY CUPCAKES
½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup cocoa
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt

2 teaspoons instant tea powder
1 cup cold water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 can chocolate frosting
Cream together butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Sift together flour, cocoa, soda, and salt.
Dissolve tea in cold water; add vanilla. Alternately add dry ingredients and tea to creamed mixture, beating until smooth after each addition.
Line muffin pans with paper or foil cups. Fill each half full. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Cool. Frost with chocolate frosting. Arrange whole blanched almonds on each cupcake to make a daisy; add chocolate candy cake decoration for center. Recipe makes two dozen cupcakes.

No-Hairdresser Look Requires New Attitude

Whether your hair is curly or straight, long or short, the new no-hairdresser look is soft, mus- sible and the farthest thing from the fixed, sprayed, profes- sional set that comes from so many hairdressing salons. By following the ten leads from Glamour's October issue, you'll be heading in the right direc- tion.

Start by changing your atti- tude — you don't want a wash and set that will last a week. Ask for a cut that stands by itself, a wash and set that's clean and shiny with body and line.

A trip to the hairdresser every week isn't necessary. Find one who'll give a cut so good it falls into shape even when combed wet.

The hairdresser who is a loser takes shortcuts and is messy, isn't meticulous about shampoo- ing and rinsing or gently comb- ing tangles, and doesn't section hair so every stand is in place.

If you set your own hair do it the same careful way your hairdresser does — use end papers, a good setting lotion and brush thoroughly when it's dry.

Teasing Is a Prop
Don't use teasing as a prop for a bad set. Most good hairdressers will ask if you speak up against it.

If your hairdresser can't copy the picture you brought, it's probably because your hair tex- ture won't permit it. Something similar with adaption would be better.

To keep hair neat, spray it lightly. Never try to hide a bad set by spraying heavily.

Be on time for appointments and don't expect a good hair- dresser to rush. You're paying for time as well as talent.

Home Sewing To be Featured At Dairy Expo

MADISON — Teen-age girls and their mothers may not see eye-to-eye on skirt lengths but members of both generations are in increasing agreement that home sewing is the answer to stretching the clothing bud- get.

The home sewing bug has bitten a large number of moth- ers and daughters this fall, according to Betty Grayson, coordinator of the food and homemaker demonstrations that will be presented as a part of the 1969 World Dairy Expo program Oct. 3 to 8.

That's why one of the high- lights of the homemaker dem- onstrations in the "Family Liv- ing Center" at Expo will be a demonstration on "Fall Fash- ions to Make."

"While saving money is the key factor for most as they begin to sew," Miss Grayson said, "the personal satisfaction of creating a well-fitting and stylish outfit soon becomes of prime importance to most home sewers."

She said simplified sewing methods, easy-to-work-with fab- rics and fashionable patterns had caused much of the upsurge in the popularity of home sew- ing.

Two of the noon-time special features at the Expo Family Living Center have been design- ed to appeal to the interest- ing contingent of home sewers.

Region Four

Jaycettes Hear Dr. Turpin

Dr. James Turpin, founder of Project Concern clinics in Viet- nam, Hong Kong, Mexico and Tennessee, was the featured speaker at the fall regional meeting of the Region Four Jaycettes Saturday evening at Sturgeon Bay. Attending from Appleton were Mrs. Lowell Leinger, president; Mrs. David Tuch, state director; Mrs. Je-rome Kolosso, secretary; Mrs. Gerald Schoepke, region four public relations; Mrs. Keith Long and Mrs. Gerald Fisher, project concern chairmen.

Acting as hosts were the Sturgeon Bay Jaycettes. Mrs. Roger Rortvedt, Plymouth, and Mrs. Donald Blaisdell, Neenah, state vice presidents, region four, conducted the meeting.

Other special guests included Mrs. Ronald Neuendorf, Beaver Dam state internal executive vice president; Mrs. Philip Si- monis, Rothschild, state exter- nal vice president; Sen. Alex Meunier; Assemblyman Law- rence Johnson, and Mrs. James Rose, New Berlin, state chair- man Wisconsin committee for project concern.

Special recognition was given to the Appleton Jaycettes for their work in Project Concern.

Thousand Island Dressing spread on the bread keeps it moist and compliments the lean roast pork.

Keep in mind that whether hot or cold, pork is rich in thiamine, a very important nutrient. A small container of apple-coleslaw adds crispness and vitamin C to the menu. A banana and one or two crisp sugar cookies are the dessert for this meal.

Many who carry their lunch in a brown bag depend on vending machines for milk or some other beverage to complete their noon meals.

CRISP SUGAR COOKIES

1 cup shortening
4 cups flour
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon almond extract

Cut shortening into flour, using a pastry blender or fork, until the mixture is the consistency of corn meal and small peas. Combine remaining ingredients and mix with flour. Roll dough to 1/8-inch thickness. Cut into various shapes with cookie cutters. Bake on a baking sheet in a 350-degree oven 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned on edges. Recipe makes about 7 dozen cookies 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

CHOCOLATE CRUNCH PUDDING

FRUIT PUDDING

Add segments of regular orange, sweetened grapefruit or mandarin oranges to packaged pudding or other prepared vanilla pudding. If the person likes coconut, add 1/2 cup finely chopped coconut.

ORANGE DESSERT CAKE

1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
1 3/4 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2/3 cup buttermilk
1 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup sifted flour

Cream shortening and sugar together, add eggs and beat well, then add orange rind. Sift flour and soda together and add to mixture. Roll dough into 1/2-inch thickness. Cut into various shapes with cookie cutters. Bake on a baking sheet in a 350-degree oven 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned on edges. Recipe makes about 7 dozen cookies 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

Foods in this nutritious school lunch from home follow the pattern of the federal school lunch program. Ham and cheese sandwich with lettuce and cucumbers wrapped separately for insertion into the sandwich at lunchtime. Potato chips, orange segments and cookies provide necessary nutrients, and are attractively wrapped in plastic food wrap — easy for a child to eat. If milk is not provided at school, it should be sent in an insulated container from home.

Bake in a well greased and together 1/2 cup sugar and the oven. Allow cake to cool in pan. Bake in a well greased and together 1/2 cup sugar and the oven. Allow cake to cool in pan. Bake in a well greased and together 1/2 cup sugar and the oven. Allow cake to cool in pan.

1 1/2 hours. Check and add a little water, if necessary, to prevent scorching. Add lemon juice, sugar and prunes and cook about 1/2 hour longer. Taste the gravy and add salt and pepper to taste. Halishkes taste even better the next day, cover, and bake in a moderate oven until thoroughly hot. Recipe makes six servings.

QUICK PRUNE STRUDEL

1 box (12 oz.)
pitted prunes
Grated rind of lemon
2 tablespoons honey
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 package pie crust mix

Snip prunes into small pieces. (Buy kind with no pitting, no soaking necessary.) Blend with lemon rind and honey. Combine sugar and cloves.

Prepare pie crust mix, divide in half. Roll each to a rectangle about 8 inches wide and as thin as possible. Sprinkle each with one-fourth of sugar mixture. Add remaining sugar to prunes. Spread half the filling on each pastry rectangle, leaving a one-inch border. Roll up snugly and tuck ends under. Arrange rolls seam-side down on ungreased cookie sheet. Prick the tops, brush with melted butter. Bake in 375-degree oven about 45 minutes, until browned.

Psychic Reply Can Backfire

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The most amusing hand of the recent world championship made everybody look pretty foolish. Maybe you should cut the hand out and paste it in your wallet to show your partner the next time you have a ridiculous bidding misunderstanding. It can happen to world champions, too.

North's opening bid of one heart was a bit light in high cards, but nobody can quarrel with it very much. East had a normal overall of one spade.

and now Benito Garozzo, star of the world-championship Italian bridge team, decided that he could make a slam in clubs if he could stop a diamond opening lead. With this in mind he made a psychic bid of two diamonds

All might have gone well for him of Garozzo had jumped to six clubs at his next turn, but he couldn't resist probing for a grand slam. After all, his partner might have the ace of diamonds. So Garozzo showed his spade control.

When Garozzo eventually jumped to six clubs, North thought he was being asked to show a preference; and he clearly preferred diamonds.

Silly Lead

Garozzo had to bid seven clubs, and East doubled since he knew that South was out of line. Unfortunately, West woodenly opened the ace of spades. Every reader of this column would have led the queen of diamonds like a shot.

The spade lead brought no lasting joy to West. South ruffed and proceeded to lead out his trump in an apparently endless stream. West still thought that his diamonds were the key to the defense and carefully threw away his two hearts to give his partner the count.

This defense also gave declarer the count, and he gratefully took the rest of the tricks with dummy's good hearts.

Who says that crime doesn't pay.

Daily Question

Partner opens with one heart, the next player bids one spade, and you are next, holding: S — None. H — A 3, D — 8 6 3. C — A K Q J 10 9 5 3. What do you say?

Answer: The orthodox bid is three clubs, a jump that is forcing to game and hints at slam. Nevertheless, orthodoxy doesn't count for much when you have an eight-card suit. An immediate jump to six clubs might bring home the bacon.

Y Will Offer Charm Course

A four-session charm development course for women of all ages will be conducted by the Rosemary Bischoff Studios of Milwaukee starting on Oct. 6 and continuing on Oct. 13, 20 and 27 at the YMCA. The newest trend in make-up, how to achieve an attractive figure, how to dress in good taste and how to become more graceful, more poised and more confident will be discussed. The course will give special emphasis to social graces involving the hostess and guest, and conversation and communication will be featured along with good grooming.

Teen classes for eighth through 12th graders will meet from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. adult beginners, from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m., and the adult in depth class at 8 p.m. The course is open to the public.

Your Problems

She Played Dangerous Game and Lost

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing this letter on paper toweling since it is the only thing handy. I am sitting in a labor room with an unmarried cousin of mine. The poor kid is in her 11th hour of agony. It's too bad I can't get everything she is saying on a tape recorder. What I am hearing now would make interesting listening for the unmarried girls who are playing sex roulette. The moral of my cousin's story is that no girl who fools with sex is safe for sure, and the uncertainty isn't worth it.

My cousin was The Pill, but she says she became confused about the number of days she was supposed to lay off and that's how she got pregnant. Her psychiatric social worker told her this is not uncommon. They see many such girls. The explanation is that these girls have a subconscious desire to become pregnant so they get mixed up on purpose.

Whether one accepts the theory advanced by the psychiatric social worker is not important.

What is important is for every girl who is toying with the idea of a sexual relationship to know that it could lead her to a delivery room, giving birth to a baby she doesn't want and can't keep. Please say something on this subject Ann Landers. — A

Dear Witness: Somehow, a letter from a labor room packs more wallop than any-thinking of my 17-year-old son, who was in the kitchen at the time, saved the day. He immediately grabbed a large, flat pan and smothered the flames.

I have often read that housewives should keep a box of soda on the stove at all times for just emergencies as this, but when the emergency came for me, the box of soda was nowhere in sight. Today I bought a pretty aluminum canister and filled it with soda. I placed it right next to the stove and informed every member of the family why it is there and how to use it. I hope others in your reading audience will do the same.—Mrs. P.B.

Dear Mrs. P. B.: So do I. Here's another letter on a similar subject:

and now I'd like to contribute something. Yesterday I was visiting at a friend's house. It was hot and she suggested iced tea. While pouring the boiling water into the teapot, the kettle slipped out of her hand. She scalded herself on the leg and me on the arm.

I instinctively reached for the butter which was on the table. My friend stopped me at once and said I was doing exactly the wrong thing. She informed me that one should never put butter or grease of any kind on a burn. Her doctor had told her to use ice.

She immediately pulled out the ice cubes and together we

A Peek at the Tongue

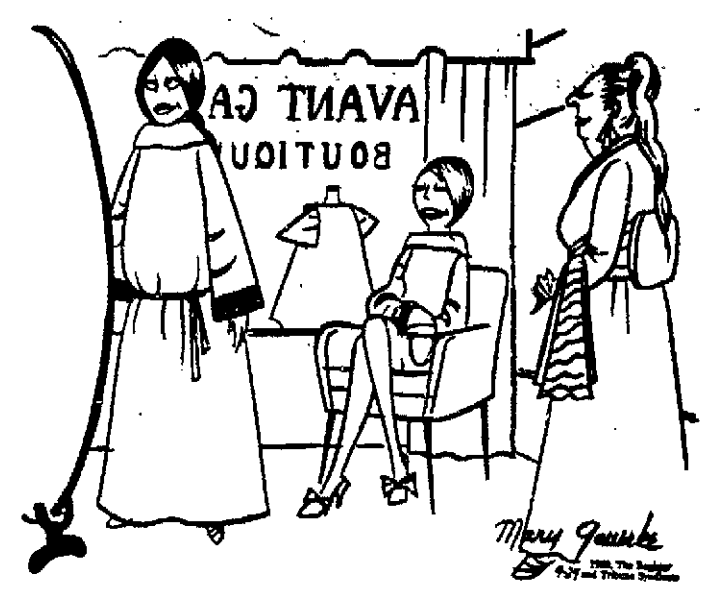

Revealing to Doctor

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M. D.
(First of two articles)
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I notice that most doctors in examining a patient ask to see the tongue. What is the significance of a coated tongue, black tongue, or red tongue? — A.K.

Looking at the tongue is one of a doctor's fishing expeditions. from a rather swift inspection. Lips, mouth membranes, gums, teeth all may give clues to a patient's health. It is considerably more than a matter of the tongue being coated, black, red, or brown. A modest coating on the tongue is normal. A brownish coating betrays a heavy smoker. A heavily coated tongue may indicate a fever. It results also if the patient is dehydrated. But mouth-breathing is still another possibility. Commonest cause of a black tongue is excessive use of antibiotics — the antibiotics decrease the bacterial population (both good and bad) so other micro-organisms flourish, particularly yeasts, which can accumulate to such a degree that the tongue looks dark. A normal tongue, of course, is of the fishing expeditions that pink. A smoker, however, very doctors use, because that would often will have a red tip of the do neither of us any good. Let's tongue. A smooth red tongue just say that a doctor, like a suggests a number of things: detective, is forever looking for pernicious anemia, sprue, lack anything out of the ordinary, of sufficient hydrochloric acid in and when he finds it, he looks the stomach juices, or a nutri- for further evidence which will tional deficiency, especially a either let him discard the item dearth of the B vitamins. or trace it into something Leukoplakia — whitish, thick- significant. ened areas on the membranes. tooth, smoking, or other source. Since leukoplakia may be pre- cancerous, it is well to keep watch of these spots and re- move them if they begin to look suspicious. There you have a list of some of the staple signs for which the doctor is looking when he says, "Stick out your tongue." I have a letter inquiring about a particular aspect, a burning tongue, and I'll write a bit about that tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 35-year-old woman and when I sleep on anything less than an extra firm mattress, I have a backache. Aside from manufacturers not guaranteeing their mattresses completely unless used with their own box springs, is there any medical reason why I should not sleep on a firm mattress placed on 3/4-inch plywood, and no springs used? — L.D.

No reason why you shouldn't. It makes sense. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been put in a terribly embar- rassing spot. I mentioned casually that I have had infectious mononucleosis and my husband said he would be careful about whom he mentioned this to, because it was nothing but a venereal disease. He says he knows this to be a fact, why else would they call it a "kissing disease"? He was a high school principal und hand- led a lot of situations where he knew it to be true. This is the first time I ever heard such a thing, and I am a nurse. Would you enlighten me if this is true? — Mrs. M.H.

It is not a venereal disease in any sense and got its nickname because it is most prevalent among teen-agers and young adults, an age at which, I am given to understand, kissing occurs. Too bad your husband never happened to observe an out- break in a girls' school, a military school, or other non- kissing population.

Mononucleosis is primarily a disease of young people. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of the booklet, "Mononucleosis," en- closing with your request a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling. Dr. Thosteson is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses their questions in his column, but because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters. WINE
On the Table
By William Clifford
The world's greatest white table wines all come from only a few varieties of grapes. The Riesling is the impor- tant grape of Germany. The Pinot Chardonnay (puri- sts call it just Chardonnay) ac- counts for the fine white Burgundies and most delicate Champagnes. Sauvignon Blanc and Semillon are the white grapes of Bordeaux. Perhaps we should add the Gewurz- traminer of Alsace to the prime list. These grapes are all grown in California, with varying degrees of success. Rieslings seem to thrive on a colder winter than California pro- vides, though I've had a good Johannisberg from Buena Vis- ta. (This word is used to identify the true white Ries- ling.) Sylvaner Grapes A secondary grape of the German vineyards, the Syl- vaner, seems to do better — good Sylvaners are made by The Christian Brothers, Robert Mondavi, and Paul Mas- son. Masson also makes an Emerald Riesling, a Califor- nia hybrid, which it calls Emerald Dry — reminiscent of Liebfraumilch. But the Chardonnay is the real challenge to California wine-makers. Apart from a few small, relatively unavail- able producers such as Han- zell, Heitz, and Stony Hill, the wines of Wente, Robert Mon- davi, Beaulieu, and Krug are among the better Chardon- nays. None of these is a match for the greatest white Burgundies of France. But with men like Wente and Mondavi working on them, they're headed in that direc- tion. Wente long has been consid- ered a leader in white wines, and you'd do well to try each of his varietals including Sau- vignon Blanc and Semillon. Taste also the Chenin Blanc of Martini, Krug, and Christian Brothers, which is somewhat less dry, and a pleasant wine for all-purpose use. Cresta Blanca Premier Se- millon is a dessert wine of exceptional interest, also hard to find and costly. Christian Brothers Chateau La Salle is another good sweet wine, a quality Muscar that's widely available.

Ex-Welfare Mother Claims Rotten Meat Is Distributed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A former welfare mother told lawmakers last week that rotten meat has been distributed to some poor people in Racine County as part of supplemental food aids favored by legislators who have cut the state's welfare budget.

And the charge, which stunned members of the Joint Committee on Finance, drew tacit support from the head of Racine County's welfare program.

Edwin Affolter, head of the county's social service department, told the lawmakers that he was "not naive enough not to believe that it could happen."

That rotten meat and bug-filled flour have been handed out as part of the federal surplus commodities program for the poor.

"I would rather see my taxes go for welfare than to put a course in prostitution so that I can support my family?"

Robert Tyler of Keshena appealed for the restoration of the aids to stepfathers. The stepfather of five children and the father of four, he said he needed the aids to support his family.

"I'm a proud man. My wife had to force me into going and asking for ADC in the first place," he said. "I agree with the people who are against a raise in taxes."

"But you can't just take nine kids and throw them out on the street," he told the committee.

Using Roses

"We have to pay taxes of toilet paper but not on flowers," so I guess we should start using roses in the bathroom."

Knowles has proposed a $33 million spending program to restore the welfare cuts and economic aid programs in Milwaukee's Inner Core.

Financing for the program would come from $36 million in new taxes covering a wide range of levy systems, including a hike in the state's beer tax.

The Republican-controlled Legislature ignored a Republican Gov. Knowles' original tax plan submitted to them last winter which included a beer tax hike when they wrote their financing plan incorporating the 4 per cent sales tax.

Hardest hit by the critics of the cutbacks was a legislatively imposed requirement on the state's welfare system that the total payments under the Aid for Families of Dependent Children program not exceed a level 120 per cent higher than the national average for such systems in any year.

A long line of witnesses told the committee that the cutbacks caused by that requirement administered by the State Department of Health and Social Services were costing them up to $70 and $80 a month.

Not Enough to Live

Welfare recipients no longer receive enough aid to live, the committee was repeatedly told.

Key committee members indicated they will recommend that Knowles' program be cut back to a minor portion of his recommendations.

Merkel, head of the special GOP caucus committee studying Milwaukee Inner Core problems, said that visits to the area have convinced him that two educational aids programs in the area should be continued.

They provide teacher aids in classrooms and a special language skills laboratory for students. He agreed with Assemblyman John Shabaz, R-New Berlin, that a recommendation of about $6 million in spending including some welfare restoration will probably come as their recommendation.

The committee members drew support from Eugene Everson of Beaver Dam, head of the Dodge County Taxpayers' Association, who said that Wisconsin ranks seventh highest nationally in the level of welfare spending.

The poor manage to live in 43 other states on less than they receive here, he said.

"Leave the cloud of sob stories and return to reality where most of us have to live," he asked the committee.

Mrs. Nancy Fellers of Campbellsport told the committee that, plagued by ill health, she gave up one of her four children so that he would not have to be raised on welfare.

"How much do you have to give up to live a decent life?" she asked. "Do I have to take a course in prostitution so that I can support my family?"

Robert Tyler of Keshena appealed for the restoration of the aids to stepfathers. The stepfather of five children and the father of four, he said he needed the aids to support his family.

Knowles has proposed a $33 million spending program to restore the welfare cuts and economic aid programs in Milwaukee's Inner Core.

Financing for the program would come from $36 million in new taxes covering a wide range of levy systems, including a hike in the state's beer tax.

The Republican-controlled Legislature ignored a Republican Gov. Knowles' original tax plan submitted to them last winter which included a beer tax hike when they wrote their financing plan incorporating the 4 per cent sales tax.

Hardest hit by the critics of the cutbacks was a legislatively imposed requirement on the state's welfare system that the total payments under the Aid for Families of Dependent Children program not exceed a level 120 per cent higher than the national average for such systems in any year.

A long line of witnesses told the committee that the cutbacks caused by that requirement administered by the State Department of Health and Social Services were costing them up to $70 and $80 a month.

Not Enough to Live

Welfare recipients no longer receive enough aid to live, the committee was repeatedly told.

Key committee members indicated they will recommend that Knowles' program be cut back to a minor portion of his recommendations.

Merkel, head of the special GOP caucus committee studying Milwaukee Inner Core problems, said that visits to the area have convinced him that two educational aids programs in the area should be continued.

They provide teacher aids in classrooms and a special language skills laboratory for students. He agreed with Assemblyman John Shabaz, R-New Berlin, that a recommendation of about $6 million in spending including some welfare restoration will probably come as their recommendation.

The committee members drew support from Eugene Everson of Beaver Dam, head of the Dodge County Taxpayers' Association, who said that Wisconsin ranks seventh highest nationally in the level of welfare spending.

The poor manage to live in 43 other states on less than they receive here, he said.

"Leave the cloud of sob stories and return to reality where most of us have to live," he asked the committee.

Mrs. Nancy Fellers of Campbellsport told the committee that, plagued by ill health, she gave up one of her four children so that he would not have to be raised on welfare.

"How much do you have to give up to live a decent life?" she asked. "Do I have to take a course in prostitution so that I can support my family?"

Robert Tyler of Keshena appealed for the restoration of the aids to stepfathers. The stepfather of five children and the father of four, he said he needed the aids to support his family.

"I'm a proud man. My wife had to force me into going and asking for ADC in the first place," he said. "I agree with the people who are against a raise in taxes."

"But you can't just take nine kids and throw them out on the street," he told the committee.

Using Roses

"We have to pay taxes of toilet paper but not on flowers," so I guess we should start using roses in the bathroom."

Persons denied a permit, or

In other action Carlton Loewe, route 1, Hilbert, in accordance with his agreement with the village, has asked that all paper deposited in the village dump on his property, be tied in bundles, like gestures had to be made sometime after the evening milking time and the morning milking time," the sheriff's department reported. Bow Hunters Kill Cow, Wound 3 Near Waupaca

WAUPACA — One cow was killed and three injured Saturday night by bow hunters who sunk their arrows into the Guernseys and Holsteins between dusk on Saturday and dawn on Sunday.

Kenneth Bergen Jr., route 1, Iola, reported to the Waupaca Sheriff's Department that he had found two of his Guernsey Supper Club a 8 1/2 season mark with arrows in their shoulders.

One of the cows is due to calve in October.

A neighbor Morris Hanson, route 1, Iola found one of his Holsteins dead and one with an arrow in its leg.

Both farmers live on State 49 and pasture their cows adjacent to the highway. "The sportsman-like gestures had to be made sometime after the evening milking time and the morning milking time," the sheriff's department reported. "The arrows were all of the same make."

Ken Ebert Honored For Performance Against Shawano

NEW LONDON — Fullback Ken Ebert was selected "Bulldog of the Week" by the football coaching staff for his performance in New London's 20-12 win Friday over Shawano.

Ebert, 5-9 and 195 pounds, gained 151 yards rushing in 20 carries and scored one touchdown. His 41-yard gallop late in the third quarter ignited the Bulldog offense — which had been held scoreless for nearly three quarters.

Larry Markman, a senior line backer, was the defensive back of the week with his two key interceptions in the first half and some fine open field tackling.

Len Luedtke, 5-9 and 205 pounds, was again the outstanding offensive blocker gaining the weekly honor. Middle-guard John Sanders and end Tim Murphy shared defensive line honors.

You've got a lot of money tied up in your car. So you keep it insured. You're covered in case some kid makes off with your hubcaps. Or there's a one-in-a-trillion bolt of lightning. But you don't back up a rust-eaten away your $200 fenders. Blisters your $175 paint job. Punctures both $50 rocker panels full of holes. And maybe chews up your backlines, steering, gas line, and suspension.

All it takes to get complete coverage against rust damage is one Ziebart rustproofing job. And that takes just one day.

Your car gets the protection of a tough, permanent rust-proof coating in over 30 areas inside the unitized body. Plus, the underside.

And you get the protection of Ziebart's written guarantee for 5 years or 50,000 miles. Ziebart rustproofing is just good policy. Come in for proof.

Padres Drop Giants From West Lead

By The Associated Press

The San Francisco Giants left Ollie Brown off their protected list for last year's National League expansion draft and the San Diego Padres promptly picked him No. 1. It took almost all season, but Brown has finally made the Giants No. 2.

It all came about in the ninth inning of Tuesday night's game in San Diego. Roberto Pena singled with one out and pinch runner Ron Slocum raced to second on reliever Frank Linzy's wild pitch. Up stepped Brown and singled to center, driving in Slocum and giving the Padres a 5-4 victory that knocked the Giants out of first place in the NL West.

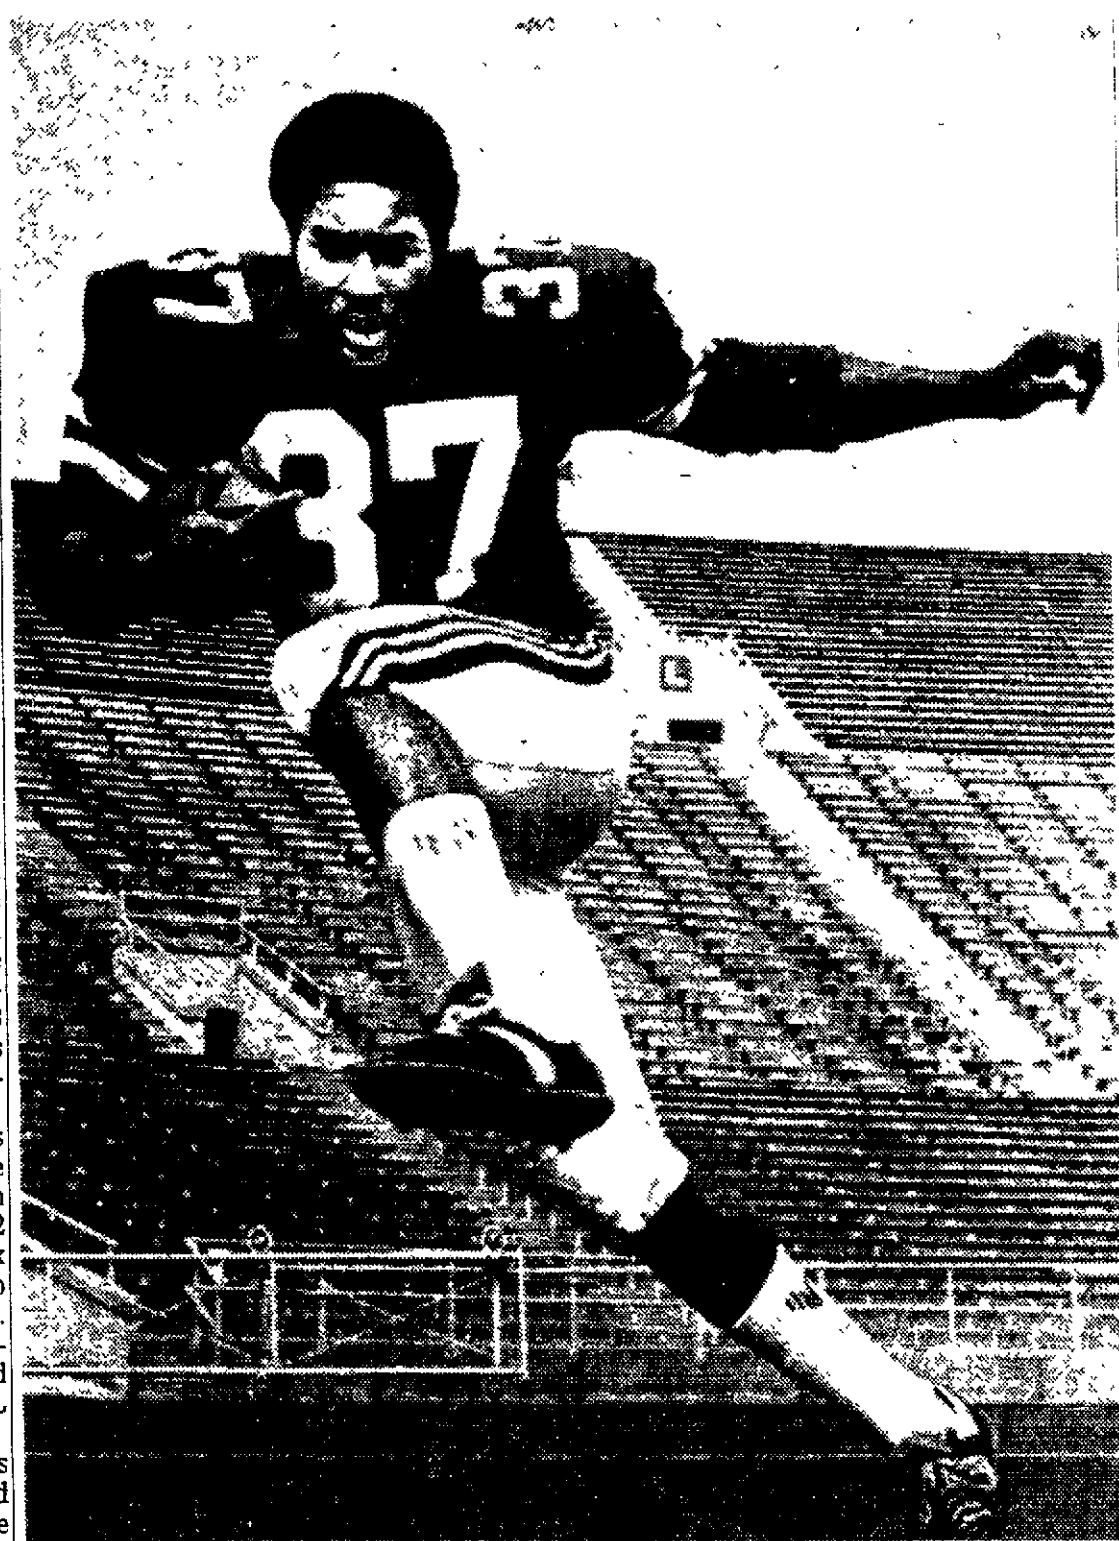

The Giants fell one-half game and three percentage points behind Atlanta, which trounced Houston 10-2, eliminating the Astros from the race. Cincinnati remained in contention three games out by sweeping a doubleheader from Los Angeles 6-3 and 5-2, dropping the Dodgers 5½ games off the pace and virtually ending their flag hopes.

The amazing New York Mets clinched a tie for the title in the NL East, edging Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 11 innings. That put them six games ahead of the Chicago Cubs, who lost to Montreal 7-3. Both teams have six games remaining. Philadelphia nipped Pittsburgh 4-3 in the other NL game.

The game-winning hit was sweet revenge for Brown, touted as a coming star when he played with the Giants in 1966 and 1967.

A year ago, Brown had a good spring but would up sitting on the bench while Jesus Alou

Thompson Provides Strong Running

UW on Right Track Behind 'A-Train'

By ARTHUR L. SRB

MADISON (AP) — If Wisconsin's football team is at long last getting on the track, it could be because it's getting behind the A-Train.

"A-Train" is the nickname of sophomore Alan Thompson, a broad-shouldered fullback who cracked Alan Ameche's single game school rushing record in Wisconsin's 48-21 loss to powerful Oklahoma Saturday.

Thompson bulldozed for 220 yards in 33 carries, 20 more than Ameche amassed in setting a Badger record in 31 carries against Minnesota in 1951.

In accomplishing his feat, Thompson outgained Sooner fullback Steve Owens, who rushed for 189 yards in 40 carries to become the first collegian in history to run for 100 yards or more in 10 consecutive regular season games.

"I said to myself before the game: 'Who's No. 1,'" Thompson recalled with a grin. "I like competition."

As a Badger, Thompson should get plenty of that.

Wisconsin, thin in numbers as well as experience, has lost 16 consecutive football games and hasn't notched a victory in 21 starts since Coach John Coatta took over at the outset of the 1967 season.

Hope for Few Injuries

Badger Backers say they hope the team can get past UCLA and Syracuse, their next two foes, with a minimum of injuries before launching Big Ten play.

Oklahoma is ranked sixth in The Associated Press national poll. UCLA is 13th and Syracuse got votes, but did not make the top 20.

"We know UCLA may be even tougher than Oklahoma, but Wisconsin's fastest backs in, we feel we'll be able to run on them," Thompson said. "We're four carries by the Sooners.

But Coatta said he hasn't lost faith in Johnson's ability.

"Once Greg gets over the idea that he's going to break away each time he has the ball, he's going to be a better player," Coatta said.

Graff completed five of 12 passes for 49 yards. Two of his losses were intercepted.

Our passing is going to have to improve against UCLA," Coatta said.

The meeting with UCLA will be the fourth between the two schools. Wisconsin won 12-7 in 1938. UCLA won 20-7 in 1952 and 13-0 in 1953.

UCLA's Prothro Praises Farmer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's football squad went through a two-hour workout Tuesday, preparing for its first road game of the season Saturday at the University of Wisconsin.

Bruin Coach Tommy Prothro voiced double praise of his senior wingback, Mike Farmer. Prothro commended the 6-foot-4, 210-pounder for both his pass blocking and pass catching.

Jim Grabowski Ranked Third In NFL Rushing

Travis Williams Ninth; Bart Starr 3rd Among Passers

NEW YORK (AP)—Both Jim Grabowski and Travis Williams made the National Football League's list of the top 10 rushers after their performances in the Packers 17-0 opening victory over Chicago in the opener Sunday.

Grabowski carried 16 times for 85 yards and one touchdown for an average of 5.3 yards per carry. He was listed third.

Williams was ninth with 67 yards in 18 carries.

Bart Starr was third in the passing department with nine completions in 14 attempts for 106 yards and one score.

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Dangerous Shawano invades first-place Kimberly, and Kaukauna journeys to defending champion Two Rivers in the major attractions on the Mid-Eastern Conference card this weekend.

Both tilts will be Friday night. Saturday action sends New London to Menasha for the third league tilt, and Clintonville has a non-conference engagement at Marinette.

Kimberly, at the top of the heap with a 2-0 mark and 3-0 overall, will try to dispose of the Indians (0-1 in M-E play and 0-3 overall) without looking ahead to the following week when they entertain Two Rivers.

On paper, coach Jack Wipich's outfit shouldn't have much trouble. But the Indians showed they were capable of causing some grief in last week's 20-12 loss to New London. Shawano held a 12-0 lead through much of the game before succumbing to the Bulldogs' ground game.

Score 40 Points

The Two Rivers-Kaukauna battle represents the old story about the irresistible force and the immovable object. The Raiders, who were held to a 7-6 victory over New London in their only league start, showed they haven't forgotten what to do on offense by trouncing Menominee, Mich., last week, 40-15.

Kaukauna, despite scoring just six points in two M-E starts, has yielded just 18 points—all of them in the loss to Kimberly last week. The Ghosts have allowed an average of 177.5 yards, the third-best mark in the league.

Menasha is still looking for its first victory, and at the same time, its first touchdown. Bluejays (0-2) are in the cellar, and getting out against rugged Bulldogs will be difficult.

Menasha rates as the worst team defensively, having given up a whopping 641 yards in two games, while New London is second offensively with 488 yards but first on the ground with 654 yards.

Clintonville will take its aerial circus to Marinette. The Truckers currently boast the two top passers in the league in Pat Ziegler, who has connected on nine of 19 for 183 yards and two touchdowns, and Randy Nelson, who has hit on eight of 15 tosses for 105 yards and also two touchdowns.

Clintonville is first in total offense after rolling up 497 yards in its first two games. In other statistics departments this week, New London's Ken Ebert is the top rusher with five catches for 88 yards.

Packers' Fred Carr Lined Up as Tackle To Confuse Bears

BY LEE REMMEL

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Fred Carr a defensive tackle?

Yes, Packer fans, at defensive tackle.

It happened in the fourth quarter of Sunday's salary success over the Bears, when the rangy sophomore lined up alongside Rich Moore in the Pack's front four on six plays, a move which must have created some slight consternation in the Bruins' ranks.

Let it be thought that Carr is launching a new career, however, it should be explained that this situation endured only until the snap of the ball.

Came Off Line

"I didn't have to go man against anybody in the line," Carr relaxing after the Pack's customary Tuesday running regimen, reported. "At the snap of the ball, I came off the line and functioned as a fourth linebacker."

"We used that defense because it was an obvious passing situation — the Bears were behind 17-0 and they needed a quick score."

Carr, who obviously, enjoyed that stint added, "I was near the ball a few times although I actually never did touch it."

It was not the first unusual assignment for the 6-5, 242-pound Texas-El Paso product, whose exceptional speed and coordination make him a highly versatile citizen.

He also has been employed at safety on occasion in short yardage situations, moving in at the weak spot to Willie Wood.

Only Replacement

Since Jim Flanigan suffered a fractured arm against the Bears, he is now the Pack's only replacement as linebacker and will be on standby in Sunday's match against the 49ers at Milwaukee.

It is unlikely, however, that he would be required to fill in at linebacker, Flanigan's position, GM-Coach Phil Bengtson has indicated.

Carr understudies both Dave Robinson and Lee Roy Caffey at the outside stations and should the normally indestructible Ray Nitschke be forced out of action, would take over at Caffey's right side post with Caffey moving to the middle.

A confident athlete, Freddie feels he could better patrol the latter area adequately, if need be.

Could Play Middle

"I think I've got it all down in the outside now," he said, adding with a smile, "so I think

Clay, Frazier Exchange Words But Police Put Halt to Fight

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Boxing Champion Joe Frazier challenged former heavyweight champion Mohammed Ali (Cassius Clay) Tuesday, but instead of leather the champion and ex-champion threw words

Ali appearing on a Philadelphia TV show Monday night, made disparaging remarks about Frazier as a champion, calling him among other things "flat-footed"

Frazier getting wind of Ali's remarks challenged Ali to meet him in a ring in North Philadelphia at 4 p.m. Tuesday. A lot of other people heard about the challenge and when the two fighters arrived for their showdown nearly 2,000 persons were trying to jam their way into the small gym

It looked like the Cassius Clay of old, bantering in the locker room about who was the greatest as he dressed for the ring. But before he could prove his words, the police arrived and nixed the bout because the crowd had grown so large it overflowed into the street outside and was tying up traffic. Never at a loss for words Ali suggested that the contest be held at a park several blocks away, and with that departed for the outdoors.

Frazier's manager, however,

Lew Alcindor, the Milwaukee Bucks' million dollar rookie, loosened up before a practice at Milton College Monday. Alcindor will display his court talents to-night at Carthage College in Kenosha, where the Bucks will play an intra-squad game. (AP Wirephoto)

Firing of Williams Stirs Up Boston Fans

By LARRY ELDRIDGE BOSTON (AP) — The firing of Dick Williams has stirred controversy galore in this town where just two years ago he was being idolized for leading Boston's 100-1 longshots to their Impossible Dream pennant

Fan reaction reported in newspapers and on radio and television was mostly critical of the Red Sox after the club announced the ouster of the controversial field boss with a year left to go on his $50,000-a-year contract

Speculation also was ripe that the action represented a coup for dissident players in a throw-back to the old "country club" days for which the team was famous before William came on the scene.

Number of Things General Manager Dick O'Connell told a news conference the firing was "a culmination of a number of things," climaxed by "a falling down of communications between the managerial staff and the players."

Williams acknowledged this as the reason given by the club, but also alluded to a "personality conflict" between himself and owner Yawkey.

Meanwhile most of the players weren't talking for publication—but in some cases they didn't really have to. "I don't have anything to say," commented George Scott, who was at odds with the manager almost the entire 1968 season. "I think it's obvious how I feel. It's gotta be."

Tony Conigliaro, who made no secret of his unhappiness with a couple of Williams' comments in 1968, also declined to get involved

Denies Involvement Carl Yastrzemski, considered by many to be the other principal in a star-manager feud which cost the manager his job, denied any such involvement

"We had no personality clash," the slugging outfielder said. "We had a few problems, and we had them right out in the open man to man. There was never any lingering problem."

O'Connell in his news conference conceded that there were cliques on the club, but said he didn't know of any cases of players going to Yawkey behind

Williams' back to voice complaints about the manager, as has been rumored.

He said the disappointing showing of the club this season was one factor in the decision to dismiss Williams, and added that the "falling down of communications" was not just a reason thrown at the manager out of the blue when he was fired

"We talked to Dick about some things during the year—things we thought should be changed," he said. Not Surprised Williams said at his home in Peabody that he was disappointed but not completely surprised. "There has been too much in the papers," he said. "I was even making other plans for next year."

The manager said he thought his biggest mistake was becoming "more lenient." He said he did so because he felt the team had matured during the pennant race, but that "I was going back to the 1967 regime next season."

In making their announcement Tuesday, the Red Sox said coach Eddie Popowski, a 30-year veteran of the organization, will serve as interim manager for the waning days of this season and will return as a coach next year.

The club said it would name a new manager between the end of the regular season and the World Series, and was considering three or four men

Casey Jones Hits 750 in Pin League

Other pairings have Pla-Mor Lanes, Chilton versus Arcade Lanes, Fond du Lac; King-Pin Lanes, Campbellsport meets Meadow Lanes, Manitowoc; Rudy's Lanes, Two Rivers faces Recreation Lanes, Oshkosh and Lakeroad Lanes, Neenah goes against Sopetto Lanes, Sheboygan Falls. All matches are the 41 Bowl.

Jones built his big series on games of 255, 248 and 247. Individual runnerup was Mike Putzer of Oshkosh with a 631 series.

Brown Compares Rookie Quarterback To Otto Graham

NEW YORK (AP) — Greg Cook, the strapping young quarterback who holds the key to Cincinnati's American Football League future, is beginning to remind Bengals Coach Paul Brown of past glories.

"If he stays with it, I've got myself another Otto Graham," Brown said last Sunday after Cook passed for three touchdowns and scrambled for a fourth in the Bengals' 34-20 upset victory over San Diego.

Graham quarterbacked the Brown-coached Cleveland Browns to a string of championships in the old All-America Conference and the National Football League while Cook was growing up in Chillicothe, Ohio.

But today the 22-year-old rookie was named AFL Offensive Player of the Week by The Associated Press. Denver defensive end Rich Jackson was named Defensive Player of the Week Tuesday.

Cook, Cincinnati's No.1 draft pick, fired scoring strikes of 78, 39 and nine yards against the Chargers, connecting on 14 of 22 pass attempts for a total of 292 yards. He also picked up 33 yards running, nine of them on an impromptu scoring jaunt when he found his receivers blanketed.

The 6-foot-3 signal-caller from the University of Cincinnati has paced the Bengals to two victories in two weeks and leads the AFL passing parade with a 58 per cent completion mark and 482 aerial yards.

Norm Joecks belted a 254 game and 646 series to set the pace in the Major Scratch League at Hahn's Lanes last night.

Stan Prue rolled a 608 series, Jim Weisgerber had 233-607, Buzz Laux slammed 244-595, Roger Blaesae had 594 and Mike DeBroux hit 590.

"I guess that's yet to be seen," he forthrightly replied. "I think it's a good team. I think we'll have a real good one if we stay healthy."

Big 10 Votes Against Post-Season Playoffs

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten in the community where it is reiterated its stand Monday against proposals of post-season NCAA playoffs to determine a national football champion. Commissioner Bill Reed told the Chicago Today Quarterback Club that such a plan would disrupt bowl games.

"And I'm exceedingly jealous of our competition in the Rose Bowl," he added. "Maybe a computerized rating system would be the most effective."

He said college football today is in its greatest shape ever. "The fall is the time of year as passing, has done much to when 10,000 students march without calling out the National Guard," he continued. "There is a growing, revived recognition of football as a congealing force in the community where it is played."

"Football is strong and well balanced throughout the country. In the Big Ten we have five outstanding teams."

"If Purdue is rated fourth or fifth in our conference, then we have to be strong because Purdue looked awfully good to me when I was down at Texas Christian Saturday."

Purdue won 42-35.

Quarterbacks Exciting Reed said the daring use of quarterbacks, running as well as passing, has done much to make the college game more exciting than ever before.

"The name of the game times. He retired in March 1949 and later failed in two comeback attempts."

In games last week involving Big Ten teams, the average combined score was 59 points and the average number of plays was 154 — that's 50 per cent more action than the pros."

Elroy Hirsch, new athletic director for the Wisconsin Badgers, who haven't won a game in two years, declared that "we won't be at the bottom of the heap again, and in two years we should be a title contender."

"Our slogan is 'Spirit is back'," he said. "Our 17 and 18-year old kids didn't give up against Oklahoma. If we can hold in there until we get past UCLA and Syracuse the next two weeks, we will be ready."

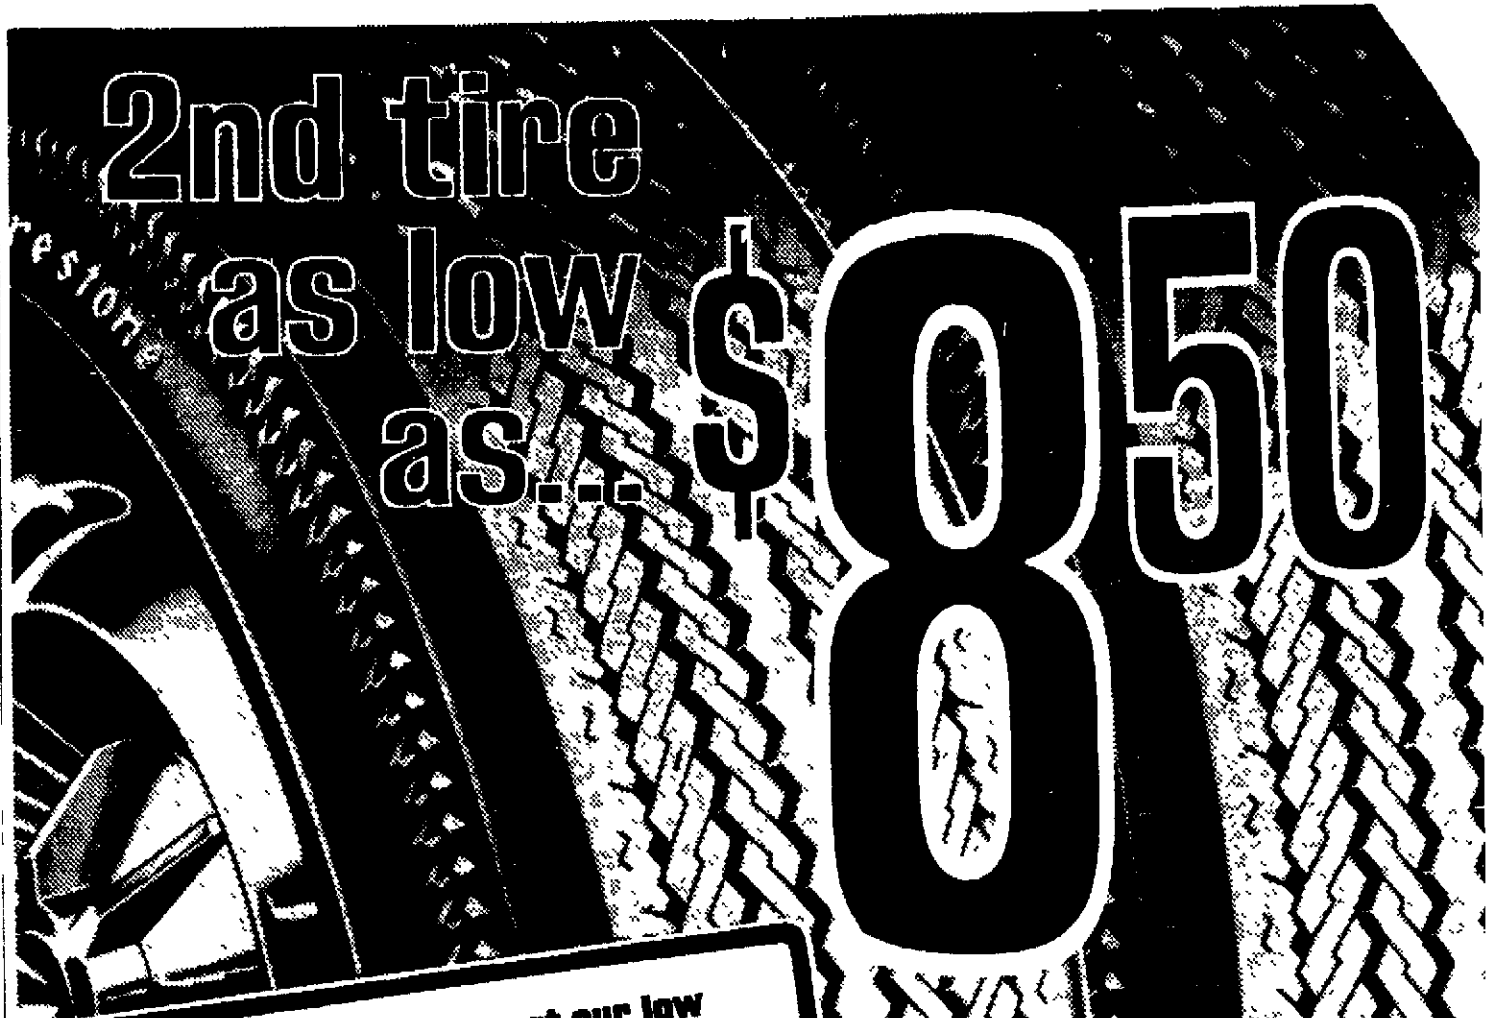

"What we want is respectability. When we take the field we have to have hope that we will win."

Oklahoma defeated Wisconsin 48-21.

Joe Louis Admitted To Hospital for Treatment of Infection

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Louis, former heavyweight boxing champion, was admitted to Henry Ford Hospital Monday reportedly for treatment of an internal infection. A hospital spokesman said it was nothing serious.

The 56-year-old Louis, who grew up in Detroit, won the championship title in 1937 and successfully defended his title 25 times. He retired in March 1949 and later failed in two comeback attempts.

roamed the San Francisco outfield.

"I thought of my showing in 1967 (13 homers, 53 RBI and a .267 average) that I'd get a good shot to start with the Giants, but it didn't work out that way.

"Being drafted was a whole new start for me. I'm glad to be with San Diego where I have a chance to play every day.

"I went to the Giants' camp in 1968 and led the club in hitting and was second in home runs and RBIs, playing regularly throughout the spring exhibition games. The newspapermen were writing I'd be in the starting line-up. I didn't start. It was disappointing."

Rookie Clay Kirby, staked to a 4-0 lead in the first inning, checked the Giants on one run and two hits into the seventh. But the Giants picked up two runs in the seventh on three

Gregory Sorry He Got Whole Thing Started

The time is now, the place the ivy-grown campus of a great university.

As the stage lights go up, we see a ghostly figure emerge from the gloom. It is Pope Gregory IX, the medieval father of the modern university. He appears to be searching for something or someone.

From stage right, another apparition comes into view. It appears to be a young man but he is encased in massive shoulderboards, wears a giant bubble-helmet with a cage attached, and plastic splints adorn his arms. He limps slightly. His cleats clatter on the quadrangle as he walks. Gregory speaks:

Gregory: "What ho, scholar! What news of the university? How fares our thousand-year quest for knowledge? Pray tell, what class are you bound for, thus caparisoned? Perchance the moon program? By the saints, man is at the very, frontiers of heaven!"

Student (shaking his head): "I go to practice, old one."

Gregory: "Ah! Perchance a lab! That accounts for the protective garment. Thy major, what is it? Physics? Chemistry? The classics? Look you to the stars?"

Student (nodding): "I study all the stars. Namath. Mackey. Morrall. Johnny U."

Unfamiliar Galaxy Gregory (perplexed): "A galaxy unfamiliar to me. No matter. I have heard tell Ptolemy was proved wrong. What is it thee strive to be?"

Student: "The tight end, old one."

Student (producing a football proudly, tossing it the Pope's way): "I pursue this. I catch it for an education."

Student (thinking hard): "Well, you might say I'm an entertainer."

Gregory: "Ah! Now I see winning run with one out in the 11th on consecutive singles by Ron Swoboda, Jerry Grote and Bud Harrelson. Swoboda made a game-saving catch in the eighth, a diving stab of Gibson's Aaron doubled home one of the liner with the bases loaded, two runs in the ninth and George Stone coasted to his 13th win.

Johnny Bench and Pete Rose tied today by beating St. Louis or the Reds' opening game victory over the Dodgers, then Rose and Ron Fairly helped the Ex-slammed a two-run homer in the nightcap and singled in the third run.

The Mets, reducing their mag-ic number to one, scored the third.

McDowell's 3-Hitter Stops Orioles, 3-1

By MIKE BRYSON Associated Press Writer

Sam McDowell figured there was an easy solution for stopping about the only regular-season challenge left for the Baltimore Orioles ... and it worked.

"I said (before the game) that games left, are shooting for the record of 111 set by the 1954 In-fast balls in and out," said McDowell. "I threw mostly fast balls tonight. I felt tired late in the game, but still had the fast homers in helping Boston to an 8-3 victory over the New York Yankees. The Orioles, who have eight RBI total to an even 100.

Brooks Robinson, who had a single and scored three runs himself, led off the third with the 200th homer of his career, and hit a two-run shot, his 39th of the season, in the eighth. Co-nigliaro hit his 20th leading off the sixth.

Joe Pepitone homered for the Yankees, his 29th.

Rich Reese knocked in three runs in the third when singles in helping the Twins past Kansas City. His Jackson's homer, a 420-foot blast over the centerfield wall in the first inning of the nightcap, was his 47th of the year, but his first since Sept. 6. It tied him with Harmon Killebrew for the major league lead.

St. John's CC Team Extends Dual Meet Skein

KIMBERLY — Little Chute St. John's cross country team won its eighth straight dual meet over a two-year period by defeating Kimberly, 22-36, Tues- day afternoon.

Kimberly's Paul Kluge ran to individual victory with a time of 10 minutes, 52 seconds, but the Dutchmen placed the next three runners and six of the next seven.

Trailing Kluge at the finish were Marv Janssen, Lyle Lam- ers, and Jeff Driessen—all of St. John. The Papermakers' Bill Bonzelet took fifth, followed by another trio of St. John athletes — Dick Brittnacher, Frank Wigert, and Don Brittnacher.

Kimberly's Tony Van Belkum and Steve Brockman rounded out the top 10 finishers.

Bengals' Coslet Out 5 Weeks

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals of the Amer- ican Football League reported Monday that tight end Bruce Coslet suffered a fractured kneecap Sunday while catching a pass for the final touchdown against the San Diego Chargers here. He will be out for at least five weeks.

Coslet caught a 39-yard pass from rookie quarterback Greg Cook in the upset 34-20 victory. Coslet shook off three tacklers in the race for the goal line. He slipped on the asphalt at the rear of the end zone and crashed against the concrete steps in the South end of Nip- per Stadium.

Hortonville Captures 3-Team Cross County Meet at Clintonville

UW's Thompson More Concerned With Loss Than Personal Glory

MADISON (AP) — Alan Thompson, Wisconsin's soph- omore fullback, apparently was not too impressed with his great running performance against Oklahoma Saturday.

Thompson exploded for 220 yards in 33 carries to break Alan Ameche's record of 200 yards against Minnesota in 1951.

Friends were sure Thompson would call his family in Dallas to tell them about his exploit. But he didn't.

"I was supposed to have called if we won," he explained.

Northern Illinois Baseball Coach Joins UW Staff

MADISON (AP) — Tom Mey- er, head baseball coach at Northern Illinois University for six seasons, has been appointed assistant coach on the Universi- ty of Wisconsin baseball staff, Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch announced Monday.

Meyer succeeds Fred Wegner who is enrolled in Wisconsin's graduate school working toward a doctor's degree.

Meyer, a native of Milwaukee, will serve under Head Coach Arthur (Dyne) Mansfield, who has announced he will retire at the end of next season.

Meyer earned three varsity letters in baseball at Northwes- tern and was a member of the Wildcat team which captured the Big Ten championship in 1957.

Ex-49er Veteran, Bosley, Picked Up by Falcons

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons picked up one needed experience at center Tuesday by signing Bruce Lee Bosley, a veteran of 14 years with San Francisco of the Na- tional Football League.

Bosley was signed as a free agent after he was cut by the 49ers and cleared waivers by other NFL clubs.

The 6-foot-2 Bosley weighs 240 and has played in four Pro Bowl contests—1961, 1966, 1967 and 1968. He played offensive tackle and defensive end at West Vir- ginia and was the 49ers second draft choice prior to the 1956 season.

At 35, Bosley will be the old- est man on the Falcon squad.

To make room for Bosley, the Falcons placed on waivers rook- ie center Jeff Van Note of Ken- tucky, who was drafted in the 11th round.

ND's Zimmerman Lost for Season

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame, the nation's ninth-ranked team, suffered a serious setback Monday when the Irish learned that fullback Jeff Zimmerman will be lost for the season.

Zimmerman, who missed the opening 35-10 victory over Northwestern, has a malfunctioning kidney. Doctors said it was a congenital condition and unrelated to football.

Zimmerman will be replaced by Bill Barz who scored two touchdowns against Northwes- tern.

SHERWOOD — Tabulation of visitors at High Cliff State Park topped last year at the end of August. A total of 458,000 were recorded, compared with 418,000 for the same period a year ago. Labor Day and September are not included in the total.

Attempt to Block Welfare Cut Is Denied

MADISON (AP) — A petition asking that the State of Wisconsin be temporarily restrained from making cuts in welfare payments was denied Tuesday by U.S. District Judge James E. Doyle.

In his ruling, Doyle said he believed the chance for ultimate success of the welfare recipients "is not sufficient to support the imposition of a temporary restraint."

Attorneys for seven Milwaukee County welfare recipients had contended that instead of cutting payments, the state should be increasing benefits to meet the rising costs of living.

Doyle said the question and the constitutional and statutory contentions raised by the recipients are "not insubstantial and are not frivolous."

Doyle forwarded to the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals an application by the recipients for the convening of a three-judge court to hear arguments for a permanent restraining order.

The recipients filed their suit against Wilbur Schmidt, secretary of the Department of Health and Social Services, after the legislature cut back certain welfare categories, including severance in the aid to dependent children program.

The Social Security Act of 1935, the welfare recipients contend, requires states to adjust welfare payments to reflect boosts in living costs.

Wolf Floodplain Studied

NEW LONDON — Technical information for regulating the Wolf River floodplain was presented at a public hearing Monday attended by about 100 persons.

Titled "Flood plain Information Wolf River, Lake Poygan to Shawano" the U. S. Army Corps of Engineer study accomplished establishing elevations of the floodplain — something hitherto unknown.

It also chronicled the history of flooding on the Wolf River in great depth.

Greatest advantage of the study will be gained by county zoning committees in exactly pinpointing the floodplain of their area.

Col. William Stewart, U. S. Corps of Engineer Chicago regional office head, said, "this is not a flood control or zoning study but a study analysis of hazards."

Stewart said the report was the first compiled by the district office entirely for the state and three additional studies are underway and will be completed in 1970.

Robert Fey, representing Carl C. Crane, Madison consulting engineers, made the official presentation. Citing two types of flood profiles included in the study.

Twice Yearly Intermediate regional floods are to have a frequency of once in every 100 years, however, the study shows a frequency rate of two per year on the Wolf River. Only twice in recordable history has an intermediate flood failed to occur.

Standard project floods are to occur very infrequently and be far more damaging than intermediate floods. Fey explained a standard project flood may have never occurred, but is one that could result under certain situations.

The study equalized all elevations so local authorities can determine the areas susceptible to flooding. Until this time a general idea was all that could be used as judgment.

Broad Flood Plain Fey said the Wolf River has a very broad intermediate floodplain, but little additional area will be emersed in a standard project flood as land elevations increase sharply past these areas.

Boyd Kinzley, Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission (NEWRPC) staff member, said the study gives a needed accurate description of the floodplain. Counties in the area should decide how they are going to adjust their zoning ordinances with the plan, he said.

Local authorities are to relay any information on variances or discrepancies in the study to the NEWRPC which will make corrections with the Corps of Engineers and State Department of Natural Resources.

Not Far Enough Wolf River Study Fails Its Objective

NEW LONDON — The latest Wolf River floodplain study didn't go far enough.

This was the opinion shared by a large number of persons attending a public hearing Monday on the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers study.

Herb Meidam, Town of Fremont chairman, said the study stopped short of its destination. "Why did this report stop at Lake Poygan?" Meidam questioned.

Gordon Bubolz, president of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, agreed.

Should Continue Meidam said the survey should have continued to the dam at Neenah, charging that the river controlled the level of the river and affected the entire flood plain.

Bubolz said a flood this past June and July was greatly contributed to by the closing of the dam. Not only did the dam cause additional flooding, but caused septic tanks to be flushed out and the effluent aided the growth of algae in the lake.

Toxic Algae The toxic algae killed thousands of carp and made drinking water in Menasha unusable.

More than 500 acres of bog were washed out by the flood, he added. Bubolz termed the net effect a tremendous loss.

Special interests have to be put aside for the public good, he said.

fluent society for high taxes. Increases in spending, he indicated, "evolve from our standard of living and what we want from government."

On the welfare cuts, the Rosendale Republican said he believed a legislative subcommittee would recommend exempting certain items from the 120 per cent of the national average limit.

Rent, in particular, was a major item with which there could be a problem.

In the budget, aid to families with dependent children was limited to 120 per cent of the national average, with the ceiling on rents being $72 per month.

Hollander appeared doubtful the aid programs for children of unemployed parents, children between the ages of 18 and 20 who are still in school, and children with step-parents, would be restored.

The statute for those programs was abolished, Hollander said. He first indicated the only help available for those families was direct relief from a township or city but later indicated that counties could, if they so chose, continue the programs without state or federal assistance.

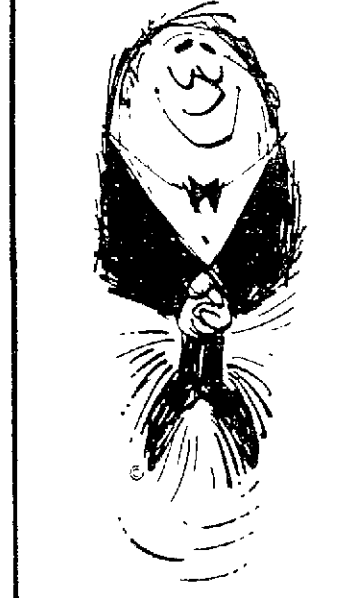

He defended the state welfare programs, saying: "I believe we have done a good job of screening applicants."

He noted that in terms of the number of welfare cases per 1,000 people, Wisconsin ranked 45th in aid to the blind and aid to the disabled, 43rd in old age assistance and 41st in aid to dependent children programs.

However, the state ranked fifth in the average amount of payment per case.

Computer Can Find No Job For Governor

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles was selected as the first user of the State Employment Service's new job finding computer and got an answer.

The computer evaluates a job seeker's abilities and quickly suggests a job he could fill.

The chief executive's qualifications were fed into the computer—an attorney, former state senator and, of course, a governor.

The wheels spun, the lights flashed. Suddenly, the screen went blank, and the employment service had its answer: There was no state job available for Wisconsin's No. 1 official.

New Town Hall Being Built at Brothertown

BROTHERTOWN — Construction of a new town hall and machine shed combination building for town purposes is underway.

The new structure is along St. Charles Road, just off Calumet County Trunk H near Jericho.

Mike Wallander, route 1, Manitowoc, is the general contractor. The project is estimated to cost about $40,000 and was approved at this year's annual town meeting.

Other contractors involved are Brantmeier Electric, Chilton, electrical; Groeschel Brothers, Pipe, heating and Norman Weber, route 2, Chilton, well drilling.

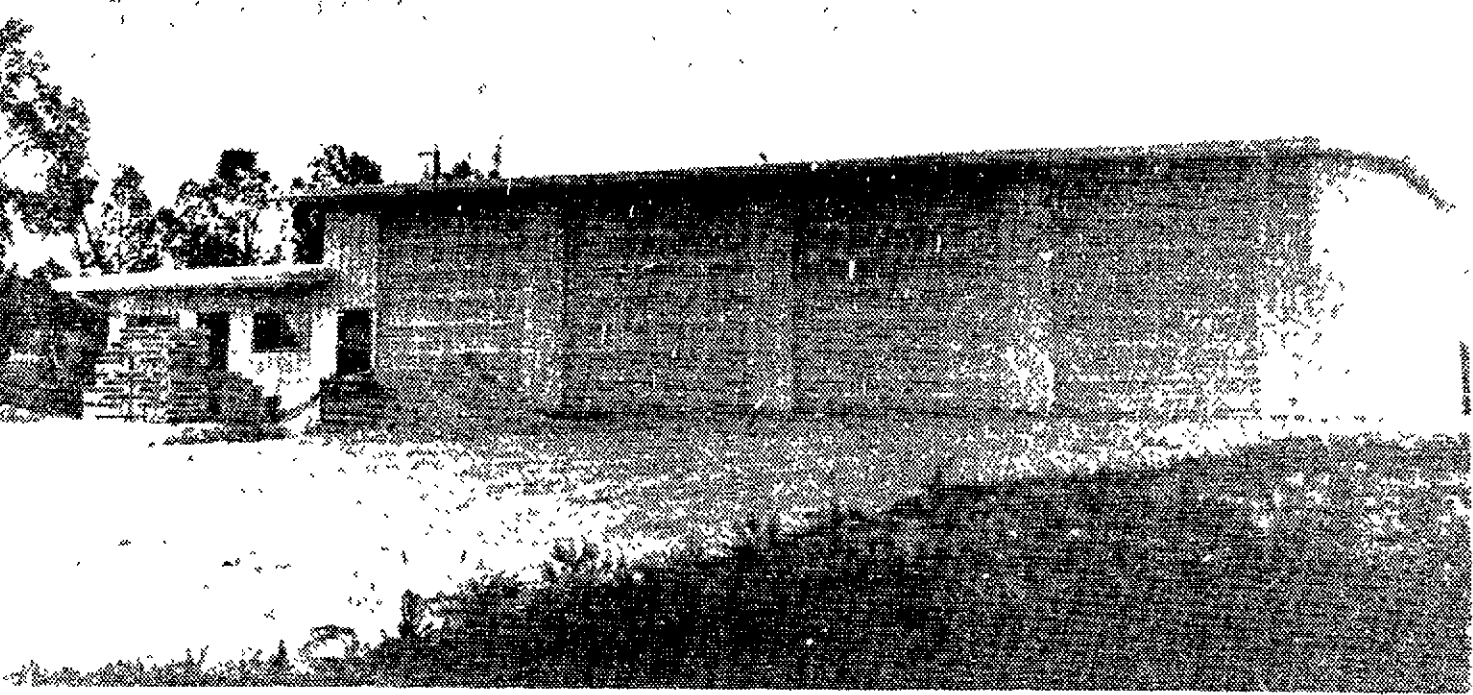

Two acres of land was purchased from Delmer Buechel.

The new steel 50 by 100 foot building replaces the small town hall on County Trunk H and machine shed at Jericho. The present hall has served the town residents for many years.

200 Pigs Killed in Barn Fire

BLACK CREEK — About 200 pigs died in a fire that swept a large barn on the William Springs farm, route 2, Black Creek, early today.

A passing truck driver discovered the blaze and turned the alarm in to the Town of Center Fire Department about 2:15 a.m. The farm is on Pleasant Road, just east of Oulagamie County Trunk A.

Firemen, who found the barn burning out of control when they arrived, remained on the scene until about 5:45 a.m. today. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. Firemen saved a corn crib near the barn.

Also destroyed were 800 bales of straw, several tons of hay, an elevator, and a corn picker. There was no immediate estimate of the loss. The barn was 100 by 40 feet.

Living quarters at the farm were not occupied. The Springstrohs presently live at route 1, Seymour.

From Hospital to Snake Pit

BY JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The priest was saying mass in the far, former head of the American Detroit nursing home, when an old man with white stubble on his chin raised his grizzled face and blurted out a childhood prayer: "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep."

"If I should die before I wake, Who the hell would care?"

George Lewis, who is 78, is one of almost a million Americans living their last days in nursing homes financed largely by the federal government.

For many of these patients, it is a lonely, desolate, empty end. "It is a living death," said a Los Angeles clergyman. "They sit and stare and wait—and private nursing homes watch each other die."

A Cleveland researcher, Dr. Margaret Blenkner, added, "Don't kid yourself. Just walk into a nursing home and tell me how many happy, laughing faces you see."

This hidden million are old and alone, confused and forgotten. Half are past 77. Most are widowed. For many of them, the mind is ebbing, or eroded—this, not ill health, is the main reason many are in nursing homes.

The grim sight of rows of patients who sit and stare at nothing is not a fault of the nursing homes. It is a fact of health, and a flaw of a nation that has no real plan for taking care of the mental nightmares that haunt the aging.

A study by Dr. Alvin I. Goldfarb, former head of the American Psychiatry Association's committee on aging, has listed 86 per cent of the patients in nursing homes as suffering from mental disorders that range from senility to insanity.

Yet a reporter who visited more than a score of nursing homes across the country failed to find any sign of psychiatric care. And, in interviews, several psychiatrists and psychologists agreed that such specialized care is almost nonexistent.

Drugs are used to keep patients subdued. The worst cases are kept in restraining straps. And state officials compound the crisis by dumping the elderly out of mental hospitals into private nursing homes.

The most common problem is senility, better defined in medical terms as "chronic brain syndrome." It comes with hardening of the arteries, starving the brain for blood, or with the sudden blockage of a stroke. It leaves the mind fuzzy, confused, and blank. Patients forget how to dress themselves, how to go to the bathroom.

George Lewis says he has been in a nursing home five weeks. Records show it has been five years.

Committed to Hospital

For another Detroit nursing home patient, Miss Viola Cook, it was a mental institution. In the back ward of a rural southern Indiana nursing home, a more than a dozen patients sit strapped into chairs. The administrator complains she has no choice—the state hospitals won't take the patients, and there is no place else for them to go.

Doctor's orders are generally required by state regulations for physical restraint. But checks of medical records showed this is loosely enforced.

Automatic Dosage

The trappings of restraint can range from modern, dignified chair devices to a bed sheet for a Minneapolis patient, a strip of cloth in Detroit, an automatic dosage of tranquilizing drugs for everyone in a Los Angeles home.

In these situations—when the mentally ill are mingled among other patients, with callous government indifference to the problem, when restraint is used as the cornerstone of care—a woman in a Minneapolis suburb remembers with vivid pain what happened when she took her mother, who had suffered a stroke, to a nursing home and returned the next morning to find her tied, without clothes, in bed in the midst of her own wastes.

"I will never forget that," the woman wrote. "It's seared into my memory, seeing her struggling to free herself, crying out for someone to help."

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The Montana Nursing Home Association says "the public is being misled and great injustice done" by a series of Associated Press articles on the nation's nursing homes.

In a statement issued by Rodrick R. Gudgel, its executive secretary, the association added: "Montana's nursing home administrators are among the first to admit that, even in Montana, nursing home care can and should be further improved."

The association's statement included a 700-word code of ethics which it said all member homes are obligated to observe or face exclusion from the association.

The five-part AP series, distributed for use in afternoon newspapers this week, made no mention of Montana nursing homes. The association's statement did not directly challenge any of the specific points contained in the articles.

Nursing Home Probe Sought By Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee chairman called today for new hearings into problems in the nation's nursing homes.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, singled out a series of articles this week by The Associated Press on nursing homes.

"The time has come for another hard look at chronic problems in the field," said Moss, who heads the subcommittee on long-term care, part of the Senate Committee on Aging.

Moss said in a statement he plans hearings on chain ownership of nursing homes, requirements in medical care, and payments under the medicare and medicare programs.

He also indicated he may hold national hearings similar to a series across the country in 1965 which led to stiffer federal regulations. No date was set for the hearings.

Moss said, "Attention must be given to entirely new problems which have arisen since passage of medicare and medicaid. The Associated Press has performed an invaluable service by describing those problems . . . and also in describing growing pressures for thoroughgoing professionalization in this field of medicine."

2 Worlds: One Day in the Life Of Paris and Vietnam

BY PETER ARNETT and HUGH MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writers

Paris 9 a.m.

The day is drizzly, chilled by the first touch of early autumn. In the charming suburb of Verrieres le Buishon, Ly Van Sau, a member of the Viet Cong or Provisional Revolutionary Government as it is now called, abandons his morning yoga exercises, gulps a cup of weak tea in a conference room decorated with pictures of American youths burning their draft cards, and climbs into a four-door black Peugeot with five other delegates. His boss, Dinh Ba Thi, the deputy chief of the delegation, rides alone in the back seat of a larger black Citroen.

An identical convoy rolls out from behind the tall blue fence, at the compound of the North Vietnamese delegation in the less charming suburb of Choisy le Roi. In the lead Citroen, flying Hanoi's red flag with a gold star, sits Col. Ha Van Lau, acting chief of the delegation. Although Choisy le Roi votes Communist in most general elections, the people in the streets and at the outdoor cafes neither smile nor wave as the motorcade sweeps by with a wail of sirens.

The day is also beginning for the Allied side. Wearing a light gray business suit and carrying a black metal attache case, Pham Dang Lam, chief delegate for South Vietnam, kisses his five children goodbye as they head off to the American School and walks briskly from his apartment in the Avenue de Villiers. His waiting Citroen flies the flag of the Republic of Vietnam, yellow with three red stripes.

In the lobby of the Hotel Crillon, at the Place de la Concorde, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, tall and debonair, strides down the main staircase; he never takes the elevator. This Thursday, he is earlier than usual, and his plainclothesman hasn't arrived. Alone, Lodge crosses the Rue Boissy d'Anglais into the garden of the U.S. Embassy, nods at the Marine guard on duty, and almost at a lope disappears into the annex building for a last minute staff conference.

In Vietnam, it is now 4 p.m.

A soft rain drips through the gnarled rubber trees as Pfc. James A. Reed of Odesa, Mo., pads along a fresh trail, his eyes searching ahead into the deepening gloom. He is point man for a platoon from A Company, 2nd Battalion, 3rd Regiment of the 199th Light Infantry Brigade, which operates northeast of Saigon in the eastern edges of War Zone D and in the rubber plantations of Long Khanh Province. Its mission is to prevent the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese from launching coordinated attacks, to develop pacification, and to help upgrade the 18th South Vietnamese Infantry Division. Reed, 21, is a draftee. He has been in Vietnam three months.

Suddenly, gliding around a bend in the trail ahead of him, is the first North Vietnamese Reed has ever seen, dead or alive. The young American drops to his knee and instinctively brings his 12-gauge shotgun to his shoulder. The Vietnamese swings up his AK47 rifle, but the American is quicker.

At 4:15 p.m., a Huey helicopter spins into Cam Tam hamlet to pick up Pfc. John Miller, a 19-year-old infantryman from Tiffin, Ohio, who has spent 183 days in the field and is being rewarded for good soldiering by being named the "old guard of the day."

The honor entitles him to change places with the battalion commander, Maj. Bernard Loeffke, of Malibu Beach, Calif. Pfc. Miller gets to sleep in his commander's comfortable bed back in base camp, drink his boss' beer, use his writing table and have breakfast in bed. The bronzed Loeffke will stay in the field.

In the tangled jungles of War Zone D, staccato bursts of fire shred the uneasy quiet. The point platoon for B Company, 4th Battalion, 12th Regiment of the 199th Brigade already has killed two North Vietnamese soldiers with a small group heading south. Pfc. Richard King of Pinellas Park, Fla., has lugged his cumbersome 90mm recoilless cannon to a well used path and is setting it up when bullets crack around him.

King, who is 22, falls to the ground before he can man his gun. An AK47 bullet is in his left thigh. He limps painfully to an opening in the jungle to wait for a helicopter.

Paris 10 a.m.

In the Avenue Kleber, near the Arc de Triomphe, workmen are digging up the street in front of the weathered old Hotel Majestic, now the Centre de Conferences Internationale and for the past 16 months scene of the Paris peace talks. The top cops of the Gardiens de la Paix, resplendent with red fourrageres at their left shoulders, have donned their white gloves and shooed the traffic into one lane. Nearly 50 police officers are on duty outside the hotel, but only a dozen spectators. American tourists mostly, and about as many reporters are on hand as the delegates drive up.

With all four delegations tucked safely behind the yellow satin draperies of the ground-floor conference room, the press retires en masse to L'Etoile Venitienne, a cafe across the street. At outdoor tables under red umbrellas advertising Dubonnet they commence the weekly vigil of waiting for the session to end.

In Vietnam, it is 5 p.m.

As the rain settles into a steady downpour, Lt. Col. Nguyen Cong Vinh, an impassive, thin-faced Vietnamese officer, sourly contemplates the water rising inside the old brick house that is his forward regimental command post. Vinh, once a sergeant in the French army, has seen war sweep across his land for three quarters of his 43 years. He and his fellow officers, watching the United States disengage its troops from Vietnam, are realizing that the full burden of the war might soon fall on them. Vinh has seen his casualties double in the past few months, while American casualties diminish.

Nixon Presents Long-Awaited Farm Package

Subsidies Play Smaller Role in New Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration unfolded today a new general farm program aimed at making efficient farmers rely less on government subsidies and enabling the poorest to get out of agriculture completely.

About 400,000 low-income farm families might be eligible for federal payments averaging $1,000 a year under the family assistance program recently proposed by President Nixon.

More successful producers would be expected to compete in the free market without some of the high-priced federal benefits now available.

The proposals were presented by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin to the House Agriculture Committee.

No Lone Remedy

The long-awaited administration farm program came as a package of alternatives and did not offer a lone remedy for the complex agricultural problems which have plagued the country for decades.

There was no estimate of total costs in Hardin's testimony. Federal farm programs this year are expected to cost more than $3.7 billion and have risen more than $1 billion since the Food and Agriculture Act was passed in 1955.

Hardin mentioned the issue of limiting federal farm payments in his prepared testimony but said only that the alternative proposals "are intended to be workable with a reasonable kind of payment limit."

The law, which sets production controls and payment rates on an annual basis, is due to expire next year.

Pilot Program

A massive land-retirement plan for taking whole farms from production and replacing existing commodity programs was not offered in the administration proposals.

But Hardin did recommend a pilot program in which up to four million acres a year could be retired permanently.

"Too rapid a rate of long-term land retirement would depopulate the rural areas," Hardin said. "An excessively large program would attract new land into production. Acres put to

Gromyko Softens Attitude

Rogers Sees Room for Hope

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers' first meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko gave the American some encouragement about possibilities for negotiations with the Russians.

"Progress" and "movement" are not words Rogers would now use to describe the state of the Nixon administration's efforts to make headway with the Soviets on the Middle East and some other outstanding issues.

But the secretary expects Moscow's answer on starting missile curb talks will be "yes," he thinks the Soviets are interested in moving the Middle East discussions ahead, and he found Gromyko's discourse free of diatribe even amid disagreement.

This picture of Rogers' three-hour dinner meeting with Gromyko Monday night was given by U.S. officials who spoke to newsmen under rules barring direct quotation.

The officials added this caution: Even if negotiations with the Soviets appear possible on some matters, it remains to be seen whether they will be successful.

If Gromyko's return dinner for Rogers Friday follows Monday night's pattern, it is possible that the Soviet leader will be invited to see President Nixon before Gromyko's return to Moscow, expected about Oct. 1. The Soviet minister is here for the U.N. General Assembly's opening weeks, as Rogers is. The officials gave this account of the Rogers-Gromyko meeting Monday in Rogers' hotel suite.

Gromyko said that since he had promised a Kremlin response "soon" to Nixon's June 11 bid to begin talks on limiting strategic arms, he hoped Rogers would not prod him further for the long-awaited reply.

Rogers said the United States had been careful not to be contentious about this important matter though it hoped to begin the talks as soon as possible. He spoke also of Vienna and Geneva as possible sites for the talks, and mentioned difficulties concerning Helsinki as a location. Gromyko did not propose a site.

Since Gromyko said the Kremlin's answer would deal with a time and place, and from his other conversation, Rogers got a clear impression that Moscow's reply would be favorable when it comes.

On the Middle East issue, the Big Four—the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France—were expected to resume talks about mid-October, and in the meantime U.S. - Soviet discussions are taking place.

President Named By North Vietnam

MOSCOW (AP) — Ton Duc Thang, 81, became president of the real source of power in North Vietnam today, succeeding Ho Chi Minh in that post. Thang, a revolutionist for more than 60 years and a veteran of Ho's Vietnam forces, was named successor in the Soviet news agency Tass report from Hanoi.

The elevation of Thang was expected. North Vietnam's constitution designates the vice president as successor in the event of the death of the chief of state. There has been no announcement, however, of a successor to Ho as chairman of the Lao Dong (Workers) party. The name National Assembly.

TV Blamed For Violence

Industry Standards 'Inadequate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violence on television encourages violence in real life, the National Commission on Violence said today. It accused the television industry of "pandering to a public preoccupation with violence that television itself has helped to create."

"It is reasonable to conclude," the commission said, "that a constant diet of violent behavior on television has an adverse effect on human character and attitudes."

"Violence on television encourages violent forms of behavior and fosters moral and social values about violence in daily life which are unacceptable in a civilized society."

The commission said the industry's self-imposed standards are inadequate and recommended:

- Abandonment of children's cartoons containing serious, noncomic violence.

- Less time devoted to crime, western, and action-adventure programs containing violent episodes.

- A change in the basic context in which violence occurs in such programs so "resort to violence is depicted as an unusual and undesirable outcome" instead of the norm.

- More industry research into effects of violent TV programs—although, meanwhile, "enough is known to make inexcusable any delay in taking action along the lines we have recommended."

The commission also recommended presidential and congressional support and financing for a corporation for public broadcasting "so that it may develop the kind of educational, cultural and dramatic programming not presently provided in insufficient measure by commercial broadcasting."

The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, headed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, was formed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968 after the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy. It is publishing a series of reports on various aspects of violence in American life.

The 11-page report on TV violence focused primarily on its effects on the young.

"Television is one of our significant national resources," it said, "but our greatest resource is our children. Children begin to absorb the lessons of television before they can read or write. In a fundamental way, television helps to create what children expect of themselves and of others, and of what constitutes the standards of civilized society.

Senate Post Won by Scott

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott was elected leader of the Senate's Republican minority today and told President Nixon he hopes to see it become a majority.

Scott defeated Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee 24 to 19 at a closed-door conference. Individual votes during the secret balloting were not disclosed.

Baker said he is considering seeking Scott's old job as Senate Republican whip. A contest for that position, with as many as a half-dozen candidates anticipated, was to be settled later today.

Nixon telephoned his congratulations to Scott soon after the vote. The Pennsylvania senator told the President, "There's no bitterness that I can detect at all," as a result of the campaign for leadership.

Democrats now control the Senate 57 votes to 43 but Scott told Nixon: "No one could want to be the leader of the majority more than I do, sir."

Scott took the call from Nixon with a crowd of reporters nearby.

"The President said that the conversation at both ends was off the record and he confidently expects to read it in the afternoon editions," Scott said.

Baker said Scott had been a noble and fair opponent.

"The Republican party of the Senate and the Republican party of the country is in good hands," the Tennessee senator said.

Among those mentioned for the assistant leader post—Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, Charles H. Percy of Illinois, James B. Pearson of Kansas, Jack Miller of Iowa and Baker.

Baker, Dirksen's son-in-law, announced his desire for the post Sept. 12 immediately upon his return to Washington after the funeral.

Scott quickly confirmed he was in the running.

A third entry, Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, dropped out after a week of campaigning when he failed to turn up sufficient support. He endorsed Baker.

Quick Action Saves Life

Punctured Heart Doesn't Slow Down Cadet

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Two weeks after the blunt end of a javelin sliced a hole in his heart, a cadet at the U.S. Air Force Academy is back in class and says he will soon be playing soccer again.

William J. Emmer, 19, Newark, Calif., was injured on an intramural field as he was jogging behind another cadet who was making short tosses with a javelin. Academy officials said Emmer failed to notice the javelin sticking in the ground and ran into the shaft.

One of the three surgeons who operated on the cadet, Dr. Richard G. Thompson of Colorado Springs, said quick action saved Emmer's life.

The shaft of the javelin, an eight-foot long pointed pole used in track and field competition, was jerked free as Emmer fell to the ground. The first to reach him, Capt. Joe Potter, a physical education instructor, applied pressure to the wound to stop bleeding.

Other academy personnel gave Emmer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Emergency equipment was rushed to the scene before Emmer was transferred to the academy hospital.

"The javelin had gone completely through the heart and also punctured the vena cava, the largest vein in the body," Thompson said. "I don't think the boy would have lived if it had not been for the spot emergency care he received."

With his heart patched up, Emmer, a second-year cadet, said he felt "almost as good as before the accident."

A regular on the academy's soccer team, Emmer said he would be able to play again when his broken breastbone heals "in about a month."

He attended classes Tuesday soon after he was released from the hospital.

Oil Depletion Allowance

Nixon to Reverse Self?

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of President Nixon's key political lieutenants has told a Republican stalwart in the heart of Texas oil country the White House will reverse its field and support the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance.

"The recent testimony before the Senate Finance Committee is to be corrected very soon by the secretary of the Treasury. The President continues to stand by his campaign commitments," deputy counsel Harry S. Dent wrote in a Sept. 4-dated letter to the head of the Midland County commission.

The commitment Dent referred to was made by Nixon in a Texas speech last fall when he said, "I oppose reduction of that (27½ per cent) allowance."

The testimony Dent said would be corrected came Sept. 4 when Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy delivered the surprising word that the administration would accept reducing the depletion allowance to 20 per cent as dictated by the House in its tax reform bill.

"Although the administration did not recommend a cut, we accept the House approach to increasing the share of the national tax burden borne by the petroleum industry," Kennedy told the Senate committee.

Dent, chief White House political liaison, could not be reached for comment. But his letter, written in response to a resolution from the governing board of the oil-rich Texas county urging Nixon to stand fast for 27½ per cent, said specifically the President "has asked me to respond in his behalf."

It was addressed to Mrs. Barbara G. Culver, head of the commissioners in Midland County, a West Texas area where oil is the major cash crop.

Mrs. Culver is an active two-term Republican in an area with strong conservative sentiment.

The initial acceptance of the allowance cut bore the unmistakable imprimatur of the President. It was hashed out in many conferences involving much of Nixon's staff and culminated with most of the Treasury's leaders going to the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., for personal conferences with the President and his staff.

To heighten the mystery canvassed by the Dent letter, a canvass of Treasury Department sources turned up no one who would admit knowing of the newest policy change indicated by what the presidential assistant wrote.

However, the Treasury sources did not seem too surprised such a policy change could be made without their knowledge.

Panel Votes to Double Birth Control Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee, after hearing pleas for massive programs to help combat the world population explosion, has voted to double U.S. expenditures for birth control.

This would boost the amount to encourage family planning in developing nations during the current fiscal year to $100 million, double the amount for fiscal 1969.

It was the same committee, in the 1968 foreign aid bill, which first wrote in specific authority to spend $35 million in the family planning field—although aid funds had backed such activities before that.

Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, offered the amendment Tuesday to earmark the $100 million in the Nixon administration's proposed $2.6 billion foreign aid authorization bill. The amendment, which doesn't add funds to the bill, was approved 17-5.

President Nixon earlier in the year sent Congress a special message on population and the administration pledged itself to carry on increased aid for voluntary family planning programs. But the administration bill did not specify the amount of funds.

A series of witnesses who urged the committee to set a specific amount included William H. Draper Jr., national chairman of the Population Crisis Committee.

"The time given the world to solve the population explosion before it is too late is growing shorter and shorter," Draper testified. "Only massive birth control operating effectively throughout the developing world can restore the balance and save what is today a deteriorating situation."

The foreign aid bill faces cuts again this year in Congress. More than $1 billion was slashed from President Lyndon B. Johnson's request last year, and the final appropriation was $1.75 billion.

The committee, still working on the bill, rejected attempts to cut the $100 million figure or to put the family planning funds on a matching basis with efforts by recipient nations.

The funds, which could be either loans or grants, could go for such things as demographic studies, research, dissemination of family planning information and provision of medical assistance and supplies.

Modities would move into foreign trade at competitive prices.

A second proposal called "domestic allotment and diversion program" also would involve lower price support loan rates for the three major crops.

In each plan, Hardin said, participation would be strictly voluntary, would eliminate marketing quotas and would not penalize farmers in any way for not cooperating.

Nixon Presents Long-Awaited Farm Package

grazing could unbalance the cattle industry. It is best to proceed cautiously, learning as we go."

The American Farm Bureau Federation supports a much larger land-retirement program aimed at gradually phasing out existing control programs and subsidy payments but this is opposed by most other farm groups.

Hardin offered two alternative programs aimed primarily at the most troublesome farm crops—wheat, cotton and livestock feed grains. Both proposals were said to be free of many of the restraints now imposed on cooperating farmers.

Under the first, farmers who chose to participate would be required to set aside a crop acreage equal to 75 to 100 per cent of their farm's share of the domestic cotton or wheat acreage allotment and 30 to 50 per cent of their normal acreage of feed grains such as corn, sorghum grain and barley.

They would receive no payments for idled land—as provided now—but would get price support loans on all the cotton, wheat and feed grains grown on the remaining acreage and direct payments only for the farm share of production used domestically.

A major feature would be flexible adjustments of price support loans on the three crops. These would be set annually at levels less than the world market price so farmers would sell their crops instead of having the government assume ownership of surpluses.

In other words, officials told newsmen earlier, the plan would mean crop production in excess of domestic needs would be free of artificially high government price supports so com-

Haynsworth Regrets Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge Clement F. Haynsworth says he regrets purchasing stock in a company involved in a case before his court in 1967 and has told a Senate committee "I'm not going to get in this predicament again."

Haynsworth, chief judge of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals and President Nixon's nominee to the Supreme Court, pleaded his case with some apparent success in a second appearance before the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday.

"I guess you will be (confirmed)," said Sen. Birch E. Bayh, D-Ind., who has taken the lead in probing conflicts of interest charges against Haynsworth at confirmation hearings.

Opponents to Testify

Bayh appeared to be conceding Haynsworth's confirmation before even hearing today's scheduled testimony from more than 20 witnesses, most opposing the South Carolinian.

Another committee member, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said "It would be one of the greatest tragedies the American people could suffer" if Haynsworth were disqualified because of his purchase of 1,000 shares of Brunswick Corp. stock.

Haynsworth said "it never entered my mind" that he had sat on a case involving Brunswick just before purchasing the stock for $16,000. He said the case had been decided at that time, although the decision was not made public until several months later.

The case involved rival claims by Brunswick and a Charleston, S.C., landlord over equipment of a bowling alley proprietor who owed money to both. A lower court awarded the equipment to Brunswick and the circuit court sustained the ruling.

"You wish you had never heard of the Brunswick stock?" asked Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky.

"I do, indeed," Haynsworth replied.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., told reporters he was re-evaluating what he had earlier described as his reluctant support of Haynsworth's nomination.

Griffin said the Brunswick case was "insignificant in and of itself but it sheds some light" on Haynsworth's sense of propriety and his interpretation of judicial ethics.

Bayh also asked whether Haynsworth had owned stock in the C & O Railroad and had sat on cases in which the railroad was involved. Haynsworth testified he had never owned any C & O stock but his wife had bought 10 shares for $641.

"Out of My Mind"

The judge said he had sat on a case in which the C & O had been sued by a man who had slipped on a grease spot and he had ruled against the railroad.

Haynsworth said after he and two other judges heard and decided the Brunswick case on Nov. 10, 1967, "I passed on to other cases and I put this out of my mind."

"When you make up your mind," he said, "it's done and you go on to something else."

Haynsworth said that in mid-December of 1967 when his brother, Arthur C. McCall of Greenville, S.C., recommended Brunswick stock to him, the case involving the company "didn't enter my mind."

"If it had, I would not have bought the stock," he said.

Television Blamed For 'Live' Violence

"seems to indicate the beginning of a favorable trend along the lines recommended here."

Some of the commission's findings

—Children and adolescents are the heaviest viewers of television, with some children in lower income families watching their sets five to seven hours each weekday.

—Children's cartoons, concentrated on Saturday mornings, "almost all . . . contained violence" in 1967 and 1968 surveys, "and the rate of violent episodes was quite high in both years—more than 20 per hour."

—Eight of 10 violent episodes "occurred in a serious or sinister context" as opposed to slapstick and satire.

—Those who commit acts of violence more often perceive them to be in their self-interest than in the service of some other cause. Nearly half of all the leading characters who kill and more than half of all leading characters who are violent achieve a clearly happy ending in the programs.

"To this extent, violence is portrayed as a successful means of attaining a desired end."

Improvements Noted

In mitigation of its criticism, the report said the three major television networks "have effected substantial improvements in the cartoon programs offered this season."

And it noted the networks' 1969-70 program schedule

Immunization Clinics Planned For Schools

Letters, which must be returned by Thursday, have been sent to parents of school children, announcing the immunization clinic, which will be held in the Appleton schools in October and November.

Offered will be smallpox vaccinations for all children who have not received it during the last five years and diphtheria, tetanus toxoid (standard) for those who have had no shots and boosters for those who have had "baby shots."

Kindergarten parents will be asked to bring their children to the clinics. They will receive a notice designating time and place.

"Those parents who don't wish to take part in the school clinics are urged to consult their family physician regarding their child's need for immunization," said Miss Lucy Lang, school nurse.

The first clinic will begin Oct. 6 and run through Oct. 15. Clinics will be repeated the week of Nov. 10. Included will be children who need a second dose and those who were absent during the first clinic.

Drug Information Program Laudable

The Green Bay Community Council on Drug Abuse, in cooperation with the Wisconsin State Medical Society, will present a two and a half hour television program over WFRV-TV, Channel 5 Oct. 8 to probe the dangers and perhaps the lures of various drugs and narcotics particularly to young people. It is an extremely important subject.

A major controversy is whether or not marijuana should be considered as dangerous as the habit forming and addictive drugs or such hallucinogens as LSD and even peyote. A considerable number of medical authorities, psychiatrists and a lot of young people argue that marijuana is less dangerous than alcohol and does not lead to addiction or to the use of more dangerous drugs. But a recent study by two members of the University of Wisconsin Business Research and Service, in cooperation with the director of public education in Madison public schools, found that in the Madison high schools "an alarmingly high proportion of those using pot are also taking the more dangerous drugs such as LSD, speed, dex, hashish and even opium." As these columns pointed out earlier, in part this may be caused by the students' belief that their elders had lied to them concerning the dangers of marijuana, so they were probably lying too about other drugs as well.

Even more startling in the Wisconsin survey is that "a disproportionately high numbers of the users" attended West and Memorial high schools which have a large number of students from university connected and from the more well to do and better educated families, and that "children of public school teachers and university professors had the highest proportion of drug users....children of government administrators and business executives, doctors and lawyers also had a disproportionately high number of users. Contributing relatively low percentages of users were offspring of salesmen, clerical workers, skilled laborers or craftsmen, semi and unskilled laborers."

It may be that there are more permissive parents among the more highly educated or at least that these parents encourage their children to make more of their own decisions and are less punitive when the decisions are not wise ones. But it also seems likely that among this group there are more adult critics of the Establishment, of authority in the nation today, of our dominant values, entertainment and standards of living and that the attitudes of the parents have been adopted by the children. The results, in the use of drugs, are certainly unhealthy. But at least it is better than the disillusionment with values offered by their parents.

Despite a wide number of surveys the real nature of marijuana remains undetermined and in controversy. Representative Koch of New York has suggested a presidential commission to determine how widely marijuana is used, what kind of Americans use it, what its psychological and physiological effects are and whether it really does lead to the use of what are known to be dangerous drugs with appalling long lasting effects. Maybe all of this is impossible to determine and conflicting reports so far indicate that it is.

Meanwhile the use of marijuana in particular is increasing among young people and by many is considered no crime at all. We need to know as much as we can about it so that regulations governing its use or its prohibition can be based on research and fact rather than upon prejudice or rumor.

ICC Needs New Power Over Trains

"I am content to state that after an exhaustive examination of the law and a most careful and deliberate consideration of the powers delegated by Congress to the commission, it is my opinion that within the four corners of the Interstate Commerce Act there are appropriate statutory provisions which empower this commission to assert jurisdiction in this proceeding and to determine the substantive question raised in the instant complaint as to the adequacy of rail passenger service."

With that formal and highly legalistic language, Mrs. Virginia Mae Brown, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was agreeing with the finding of an ICC examiner that the commission has the power to rule on the quality of railroad passenger service as well as such things as schedules and rates. The public perhaps would find no surprise in Mrs. Brown's finding.

But by a 7 to 2 vote, the ICC as a whole disagreed. The majority said the ICC has no such authority. It went on to ask that Congress provide the commission with such powers. To say the least, Congress certainly should — provided, of course, that Congress never intended to provide the ICC with such powers in the first place.

The crucial case before the ICC involved the Southern Pacific's Sunset Limited, the last through train between Los Angeles and New Orleans. Three years ago, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and Louisiana joined in charging that the Southern Pacific deliberately has set about downgrading service to discourage passenger traffic and, in turn, to ask that the train be discontinued because of a lack of passengers. The states said the railroad had taken off sleeping cars, replaced diners with vending machines, and didn't worry very much about making the train come in on time.

The ICC examiner ruled that the commission did have authority over quality of service and directed the railroad to restore dining cars and improve its schedule.

Critics of the railroads have said that the pending decision in the Southern Pacific case has spurred railroad petitions to discontinue trains, the idea being that the ICC can not very well direct improvements in trains which no longer were running. There were 73 such applications from mid-1967 to mid-1968 and 50 more in the subsequent 12 months.

The removal of rail passenger service — and the accusation that service is bad on purpose to discourage passengers — are not new to Wisconsin. The removal of the Peninsula 400 without a formal hearing is a case in point.

All of this is part of a much larger question: How to keep trains in service when they no longer are profitable. The railroads are right when they say the country has never squarely faced this question, in contrast to federal appropriations for airports and highways.

But of immediate concern is the ICC request for legislation to make clear that the commission can rule in the field of quality of passenger service. Such a law should be enacted, and the Congress should get down to the difficult business of trying to save what railroad passenger service is left.

The Bikini Migration

We are very happy to learn that the natives of Bikini Atoll in the Pacific Ocean are going to be allowed to return home. They were completely evacuated from the small island when the United States chose it as the site for testing nuclear explosives back in 1946.

Twelve years of testing left the island stripped of vegetation and badly scarred, but since the tests ended in 1958 lush foliage has returned. U. S. military and civilian detachments have cleaned up all the scrap metal and debris, and tests show the radioactivity level is actually less than on the U.S. mainland.

Wortkoetter Has Unusual Clocks

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Sept. 25, 1869

Happening in Mr. Wortkoetter's Store the other day, we noticed his importation of cuckoo clocks as well as those of a comical character

He has also one very choice, antique, carved wood clock in which the machinery is so arranged that at the striking of the hour doors open and a miniature bugler appears and the military bugle call is played most creditably and with good imitation.

These clocks are quite the center of attention, adding to the other choice goods kept by Mr. Wortkoetter Call and see his goods. He is also one of the best mechanics in his line to be found anywhere.

Soviets May Try to Neutralize West as They Deal With Peking

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

Six months ago in this column I suggested that there was a real chance of a Soviet pre-emptive attack on Red China. At the time, nobody paid much attention to it except the American Maoites, who accused me of masterminding a Soviet-American conspiracy against Peking. (And tickled both my ego and my sense of humor by asserting that I was the sinister force behind Lyndon B. Johnson!) These critics overlooked the key distinction between predicting that something would happen and wanting it to occur. They resemble the Kansas farmer who once tried to lynch a weatherman because he had predicted a disastrous tornado.

In the Sino-Soviet dispute the record is clear. In ideological terms, Moscow and Peking have been at war for three years. Both the Russians and the Chinese have read Lenin's marginal commentary on Clausewitz and accept the Prussian theorist's view that war is merely one dimension of politics. To put it another way, war is just one of many weapons-systems that political leaders employ to achieve their goals. The decision on whether or not to go to overt war is prudential, not principled, there is no room for "bourgeois pacifism." For that matter, there is no need to "declare" war; one merely employs military instruments whenever they are appropriate. (In the late 1930s the Soviets fought major battles against the Japanese along the Manchurian frontier, with no formalities on either side.)

DELUGED WITH ADVICE

Now the possibility of a Sino-

Soviet war is on page one, and President Nixon is being deluged with advice. The Paris paper Le Monde, which has never been noted for its pro-Americanism (it recently ran a feature on the 25th anniversary of the liberation of Paris without mentioning the U. S. Army's role), even went so far as to praise our post-war record of nuclear restraint. This was background for advising President Nixon to tell Moscow that an attack on China would be "pure aggression." On the other hand, there are those who lick their chops at the prospect of war and suggest, in effect, that Nixon should issue the Soviets a hunting license.

No sane man would welcome a war, particularly on in which both sides have made it clear that nuclear weapons would be part of the standard response. But at the same time, it is vital to appreciate the extent of which these events are beyond our control. That is, unless we are willing to take the absurd risk of climbing on the middle of the see-saw and trying to maintain an equilibrium between the two Communist giants. Like the Moslems during the Protestant Reformation, we should not dabble in the religious wars of other churches.

The Soviets are running on their own timetable. They have two problems, one strategic, the other tactical. Stratégically they want to fight on only one front, which requires pacification in Eastern Europe and detente with the West. Tactically their problem is geography: how to keep the Chinese out of their maritime provinces while they dispose of the nuclear factories in Sinkiang. In other words, they have to establish a defensive zone in Manchuria (perhaps centered on Harbin) that can be held against Chinese "human waves." From the Soviet view, the disposal of Sinkiang is no military problem.

NOTHING SENSIBLE TO DO

Obviously we can do nothing to alter Soviet tactical arrangements unless, at the strategic level, we are prepared to open a second front of some sort in the West. Concretely, then, we must ask ourselves: "Are we willing to heat up Europe and the Middle East to discourage a Soviet attack on China?" Announcing, in Le Monde's phrase, that such an act would be "pure aggression" would be a waste of everybody's time if not accompanied by vigorous action on our part. Perhaps if we had taken George Kennan's advice and rushed 100,000 troops to West Germany at the time of the Czech coup, the Russians might lie awake nights worrying.

But my guess is that they plan to neutralize the West by clever diplomacy: a recent overture to Bonn comes to mind. Indeed, probably the decisive signal that the Red Army is ready to move in Asia would be an announcement from Moscow that strategic arms limitation talks with the United States must begin. This would switch the whole United States government on to the arms control priority and nobody would worry too much about events in Central Asia. Which might be just as well. For when there is the sensible one can do, the sensible course is to do nothing.

State Mounts Active Recruiting Campaign For College Graduates

By CARL K. Wettengel
MADISON — One of the most significant and satisfying developments in Wisconsin state service during the last several years has been the expansion of our recruitment to attract more of our citizens to employment with the state. Included in these efforts are two specific groups — one, the recent college graduate who is looking for a career, and the other, the disadvantaged person who hopes to escape from poverty by meaningful employment.

The state has always been only the top three on an examination. Led by the federal government, the state has been reevaluating this concept to determine whether we were in fact eliminating many well-qualified people.

Last year the Positive Ac-interested in hiring college graduates for professional positions, but it was not until 1963 that a formal recruitment program was set up. The Program, called Wisconsin Career Candidate, now includes 88 job classifications in most occupational areas. The jobs are entry-level professional positions requiring at least a bachelor's degree and providing ample advancement opportunities.

TRAVELING RECRUITERS

This year recruiters for the state visited 45 colleges and universities, mostly in the Midwest, but also some in eastern and western states and several black colleges in the South. Nine hundred ninety-six graduates were hired under this program last year, and we expect to equal that number this year.

The state has been successful in attracting a large percentage of the top students in graduating classes. We feel that the reasons are the state's salaries and fringe benefits which are competitive with private business, the opportunities for promotion, and the opportunities for public service. Today's college graduate is especially eager for a career that challenges him to find solutions to the problems in our society. State service offers this challenge.

The state, together with much of private industry, has been slow in tapping a largely untapped labor market source, those citizens of our state who are living in poverty. For years they have been considered unemployable because they are often unskilled, and without skills there is no chance to escape from poverty — a vicious circle.

DIDN'T HAVE CHANCE

Disadvantaged persons have not traditionally found much entry into civil service because of the practice of hiring

Harris Disputes Maxim 'Ignorance Is Bliss'

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have never agreed with the maxim that "ignorance is bliss." On the contrary, I am convinced that knowledge is often the best medicine we can have.

If we try to learn how the human mind operates, this knowledge can give us a sense of comfort — for it soon becomes evident that every mind operates in pretty much the same way; that our individual fears and reactions are not unique or ominous.

For instance, I have learned it to be generally true that we do not get as much pleasure from the good things that happen to us as we get pain from the bad things that happen to us.

Last month, one of the newspapers that had been taking this column on a trial basis decided to drop it; at the same time, another and larger paper picked it up — with a net gain to me.

Yet, the pain of the bad thing outweighed the pleasure of the good thing: I was more depressed by losing a paper than I was exhilarated by gaining one. The loss seemed to confirm some deep fears of mine, whereas the gain offered

From my reading and observation, however, I know that this is a general feeling with most people. Self-confidence is not as common an attitude as we think; and many of the people who seem most self-assured are secretly troubled by thoughts of decline and failure.

To know this is a great comfort. We can then make the proper allowances for our own feelings when conditions become adverse. The only effective antidote to depression is the knowledge that certain depressions are normal, and that the emotional structure of the human being is so delicately constituted that we are more easily pained than pleased.

Whatever the mistakes or excesses of psychiatry in its early days, one of its happiest results has been the breaking down of the barriers of mental isolation among people.

The widespread dissemination of psychiatric ideas has provided a community of feeling. We now realize that our personal problems are neither so strange nor so singular as we thought them to be, and that our similarities to other people are greater than our differences.

Knowledge relaxes tension, for what we fear most of all is the unknown; and especially the unknown and submerged part of our own personalities. Recognizing that we share the fears and frustrations of most of mankind is the first and necessary step toward coping with, and mastering, these mental monsters of the deep.
